—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NAPOLEON SAID his government could not last if he allowed liberty of the press.

Chicago gangsters seem to have heard about that. On Monday a gangster bullet in the back of the head killed Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Lingle, it seems, knew more about gang criminals than a reporter ought to know, according to gang standards.

MR. M'CORMICK, WHO PUBLISHES the Tribune, is a young man of some energy. Perhaps he will find a way to discourage shooting his reporters.

It affects the price of silver, and that affects prices of many commodities.

It disturbs the British government, affecting British trade.

It will interest the intelligent to read parts that follow of a letter from one of the ablest, best known, most influential men in England.

First he describes the Viceroy, on whose judgment much depends:

"The Viceroy is an earnest and an honest fellow—not quite stupid, but inexperienced in wordly affairs. He is a typical example of a 'safeguarded' member of the Conservative Party.

"He was brought up with a silver spoon in his mouth, and he has led a sheltered life. Bad speeches by him are praised as masterpieces of oratory; good speeches are looked upon as unprecedented in history.

"The Viceroy was continually spoken of during his House of Commons career as of prime ministerial timber. But he has never had to face the realities of the world.

"Honorable and trustworthy, his word can be relied upon, and his promises are always performed. He leads a splendid private life with no feminine influences in it, believing in a big God with long boots, praying to him nightly for guidance.

"Such a man, if he stumbles on to the right course, will do it through God's grace and not on account of any worldly wisdom."

TO HIS EXCELLENT DESCRIPTION of a typical British diplomat the writer of the letter adds:

"The day that a policy of repression is decided on will mark the end of the crisis.

"There is no sense or reason in comparing the position with the Irish situation, which the Indians quote. In Ireland we were never free to bomb towns, wipe out villages, or turn machine guns on the people. In India we can, and the rebellion can be crushed the moment a decision is taken to do so.

"Will we do it? I say 'Yes, of course we will.'

"The English are a kindly but determined race. I need not tell you that in addition to their justice, their kindliness and their mercy, their critics believe them to be capable of extreme cruelty when the occasion demands it. It is a mistaken belief.

"How much further the trouble will go in India depends on how long we delay taking repressive decisions."

THE MAN WHO WRITES this is well-informed, not guessing, and he knows his own country. The British will be good natured as long as they can do so safely. After that, machine guns and airplanes will convince 300,000,000 Asiatics that they must not rebel against a handful of Englishmen, 7,000 miles away.

WHEN KING CAROL CAME BACK, abandoning the joys of travel, and offered to make up with his neglected wife, the Rumanians, according to press dispatches, delighted, danced in the streets.

All that is their business. Theirs to choose a king, if they choose, and the kind of a king that they want.

BUT LET US BE GLAD that, thus far, no League of Nations, or World Court can make it the business of Uncle Sam to send over men and money, in case anybody should attempt to interfere with the new king, Carol.

Russia thinks she needs Rumania. If we were in the original League of Nations, and Russia should attack Rumania, we should be told just how many men and dollars we must send to keep King Carol on his throne.

BANKERS WERE "IN THE MARKET" yesterday "steadying stocks." Not long ago some bankers were in the market unsteadying stocks by dumping new securities, 10, 20, 40 million new shares in a day. It is their turn to do some steadying.

OUR SHIPMENTS OF GOODS to foreign countries for April fell off $100,000,000. We lost nearly $30,000,000 in business with Canada alone in that one month.

This should persuade Washington to think earnestly about

VIRGINIA EDITH WUERTHELE

EX-PITT LIBERAL MARRIED

Frederick Woltman, former assistant instructor in philosophy at the University of Pittsburgh, dismissed by the trustees for his activities with the American Civil Liberties Union and the Liberal Club at the university, has won a bride. She is the former Miss Virginia Edith Wuerthele, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Wuerthele, of 1300 Murray avenue, Squirrel Hill.

The marriage was revealed as a surprise at commencement exercises at Vassar College, from which Mrs. Woltman was graduated yesterday. Her parents attended the graduation and they learned that their daughter had been Mrs. Woltman for much of her senior year.

Woltman was discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg after his arrest in 1929 for holding a meeting in Labor Lyceum without a permit.

SEIZE GUARD IN $2,300 ROBBERY

Bandits Kidnap Paymaster In North Side Plant; Dump Him Out at Riverview

Three armed bandits today kidnaped the treasurer of the American Coat and Apron Supply Company in front of the company's plant at 1005 Chateau street and escaped with a $2,363 payroll.

The bandits, lurking near the plant until their victim, A. H. Silverbert, 43, of 2333 Tilbury street, drove up in his car, covered him with pistols as he attempted to step to the curb.

SEIZED, THREATENED

Threatening Silverbert with death, they forced him back into the machine, a small coupe. Then they squeezed in beside him and forced him to drive to Riverview Park, where they seized the money, lur'ed him from the machine and sped away.

Recounting the robbery today, Silverbert told police:

"As I pulled up in Chateau street, I put my hand on the grip containing the money and opened the door of the car. As I did so, two men came from nowhere, both holding automatics in their hand. They threatened me with death and told me to get back into the car.

"When I looked to escape by the other door, there I saw another man armed with an automatic pistol. They all scrambled into the car and ordered

FAZIO ON STAND, DENIES KILLING

Philip Fazio, Clairton brewer, on trial for the barrel murder of William J. Gregory, beer runner, took the witness stand in his own defense today and denied all knowledge of the killing.

The last time Fazio saw Gregory alive, he testified, was March 29, at a club in Beltzhoover, where they had delivered beer. This was three days before Gregory's headless body was found in a barrel in Penn township.

TELLS OF THREAT

Mrs. Jennie Mitchell, of 905 Moravia street, testified in substantiation of the defense's claim that jealousy was the motive behind the killing. She said that Mrs. Gregory, wife of the slain man, had said to her:

"It won't be good for Bill Gregory and Helen Lightner if we find them. I have a brother in the Ohio Penitentiary and I may as well be there, too."

"We," the witness said, meant Mrs. Gregory and John Horne with whom she was alleged to be leaving for Ohio.

In his opening address to the jury, which followed immediate-

JUDGE COHEN DIES IN HIS 90TH YEAR

Dean of State's Judiciary Passes After Heart Attack; Almost 30 Years on Bench

Judge Josiah Cohen, dean of the Pennsylvania judiciary, died in his home, Schenley Hotel, this morning. With him when death came was his wife. He was in his ninetieth year.

Ill for several days, the veteran jurist had been confined to bed, but his illness was not regarded as particularly serious. Death was due to a heart attack.

He had been a judge in the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County almost 30 years.

Born in Plymouth, England, November 29, 1840, a son of Henry and Rose Cohen, he spent his boyhood in Falmouth and London.

The family moved to the United States in 1857, and settled in Pittsburgh.

Judge Cohen registered as a law student in 1863, studying in the law office of John M. Kirkpatrick and Thomas Mellon, and was admitted to the bar in 1866.

NOTED AS ORATOR

About this time Mr. Cohen evidenced an active interest in politics, and his ability as an orator caused him to be in constant demand for speech making during campaigns. He was recognized for a generation as one of the best platform orators of the Republican party in Allegheny County.

In 1882 he was chairman of the executive committee of the party, and in 1884 he was one of the presidential electors of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Cohen was appointed judge of Orphans Court in December, 1901, by Gov. William A. Stone. This marked the beginning of a long career on the bench. He served a year as Orphans Court judge.

In 1907, when Common Pleas Court No. 4 was created, he was appointed to a seat on that bench.

This mark was set in 1929 by Dr. Louis Leroy, of Memphis, Tenn., in the speedboat Bogie.

SEA AFLAME AS TANKER EXPLODES

International News Service.

BOSTON, June 11.—Trapped in a flaming inferno of gasoline and oil, 47 persons, according to latest official estimates today, were drowned or burned to death in Massachusetts Bay, off Scituate, last night, in a crash in the thickest fog in years between the Merchants and Miners liner Fairfax, Boston, and the oil tanker Pinthis, Fall River.

Twelve passengers of the Fairfax were officially reported dead or missing. Death toll among the crew was estimated this afternoon at 16—two quartermasters, one oiler, one fireman and 12 colored stewards. All hope was given up for 19 men aboard the tanker, which sank.

The steamship Gloucester, sister ship of the Fairfax, brought into port eight injured, who were removed to Carney Hospital.

HEROISM AND CRITICISM

The Pinthis left Fall River early yesterday for Chelsea and Portland, Me., laden with 12,000 barrels of gasoline.

Stories of heroism of the crew of the Fairfax were mingled with sharp criticism. Chief Quartermaster Edward O. Cullen, of the airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington, and several other passengers declared that 11 members of the crew of the Fairfax, armed with clubs and axes, stationed themselves in a lifeboat and even tore lifebelts from the panic-stricken men, women and children.

"NURSES REAL HEROINES"

It was explained that this action probably was due to the desire of the crew to prevent the passengers from leaping overboard or launching lifeboats in the blazing sea.

"Four nurses aboard the Fairfax were the real heroines. Without regard for their own safety these girls went right to the job of assisting the injured and burned. They saved many lives."

This was the tribute paid by Sergt. Harry E. Kipp, of Minneapolis, one of a group of Marines aboard the Fairfax, when he was complimented for the rescue work he and his companions accomplished.

INQUIRY BEGUN

Federal and state investigations were launched immediately after the docking of the Fairfax.

O. G. Haines, supervisor of steam vessels in this district, and a representative of the state fire marshal's office visited the Fairfax. No others were allowed aboard.

Failure of the Fairfax to broadcast an SOS distress call was explained by the fact that flames,

SHIP SURROUNDED BY BURNING SEAS

SS. FAIRFAX, WHICH RAMMED AND SANK TANKER IN MASSACHUSETTS BAY, NEAR BOSTON

Women on Burning Ship Saved by Praying

BOSTON, June 11.—(AP.)—A group of women knelt in prayer on the hurricane deck of the Fairfax during the height of the excitement, which followed the collision of that ship with an unidentified oil tanker last night.

Harry Hutchcroft, of Jacksonville, Fla., a marine, who witnessed the scene, said their action probably was responsible for saving many of their lives, since it resulted in postponing a decision whether to jump into the sea or stay with the ship.

Telling of their courage, he said:

"With a terrible death staring them in the face, they assembled, gasping for breath, in the stern of the boat while the apparently impossible task of saving the ship was undertaken by all aboard.

"Huddled in a group with unconscious forms all about them, they refused to become panic-stricken and thus allowed all the men to work in putting out the fire."

Repeats Refusal to Tell His Political Activities; Senators Ponder Course

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP.)—Walking in on the Senate Lobby Committee as abruptly as he had walked out on it last week, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., today answered questions on the activities of the Southern Methodist Church, but persisted in his refusal to undergo examination on his 1928 anti-Smith campaigning.

He surprised the committee meeting, called to determine what to do about his defiance. The investigators decided to let him testify and to consider their future course only after learning his attitude.

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, brought up the matter of anti-Smith funds obtained by Cannon from E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, but the witness reiterated his objections to answering questions about his political work.

ROBINSON WITH CANNON

Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, sided with Cannon, saying:

"I wonder what that has to do with the lobbying investigation."

As Cannon refused to answer a question from Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, about the 1928 Virginia anti-Smith funds, Chairman Caraway said the bishop's objection would be considered.

Blaine asked Cannon how much money had been contributed by C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge and now Republican national committeeman for Virginia. Cannon replied:

"I may be obtuse, but I thought I had stated those questions are distinctly objected to by me."

READS LETTER TO JAMESON

Blaine read a letter from Cannon to Jameson which mentioned contributions by Slemp. Senator Robinson interposed.

"I doubt the propriety of putting the letter into the record."

Blaine asked where the record of contributions was kept. Cannon replied:

"I decline to answer."

Blaine asked several more questions about the finances of the anti-Smith campaign. The bishop was silent each time. Then Blaine said:

"I understand you decline to answer any questions about money used for political activities."

Cannon retorted:

"Except as it relates to my activities in connection with the temperance board which you already have."

CARAWAY CITES TESTIMONY

Senator Caraway said Jameson had testified he gave Cannon $65,300 for the anti-Smith campaign and that the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had given $5,000, but that the only report showed receipt of only $17,000 from Jameson.

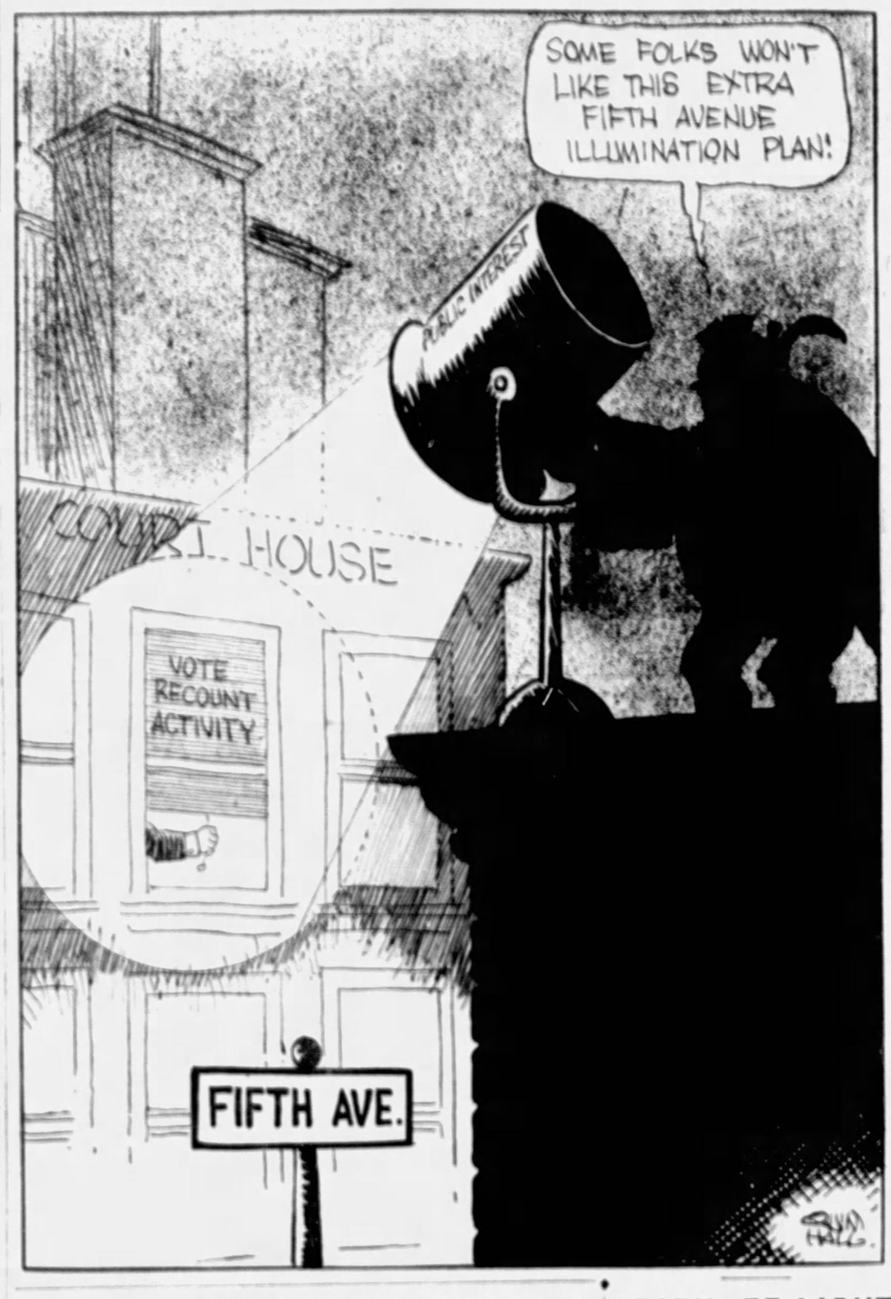
Walsh asked about the $5,000 from the Methodist board.

The bishop said he did not recall when he got the money.

Chairman Caraway said, after the committee had adjourned, that an effort would be made to reach an agreement by tomorrow on whether Cannon should be required to answer questions about his political activities.

The bishop was directed to be present again tomorrow.

THE GREATER WHITE WAY By Quin Hall



VOTE ON TARIFF 'FRIDAY, 13TH'

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Defying superstition, the Senate will vote on Friday the thirteenth to pass or kill the administration's billion-dollar tariff bill, with Republican leaders today predicting enactment.

Republicans say the vote will be 49 to 47 for adoption of the final tariff report. The Democrats privately are agreed on the outcome. The conference report then will go forward to the House, where its prompt adoption is assured. Then the bill will go to the White House for approval.

The attitude of Senators David A. Reed and Joseph R. Grundy, Pennsylvania's two high protectionists, remains rather uncertain, although administration leaders insist both will vote for the bill. Doubt arose, though, because of the known opposition of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

But administration leaders apparently were taking no chances on Reed and Grundy. They were reported quietly to have arranged for two additional votes, apparently among Democrats, in the event the Pennsylvanians vote against the bill. Watson declares:

"This bill will pass. We expect Senators Reed and Grundy to vote for it. But whether they do or not, the bill will pass."

IN NEWARK, N. J., Dozier W. Graham, a Negro candidate for United States senator and a Communist, has for his motto "Down with the Government."

Accused of shouting "Fight the police! Revolt!" he is on trial in the Court of Common Pleas. Some witnesses for the Communist candidate were not allowed to testify because they were atheists and would not take the oath.

Atheists, the judge said, cannot be allowed to affirm.

That privilege is for those that believe in a God, but do not like to use His name in swearing.

A man who does not believe in God necessarily does not believe in hell. Such a man might affirm almost anything.

BRIGHTER LIGHT FOR FIFTH AVE.

Council has authorized a new "white way" for Pittsburgh by ordering the number of 1,260 candlepower street lights increased from 66 to 146 on Fifth avenue between Liberty avenue and Sixth avenue at the eastern line of the jail wall.

Present lighting fixtures are attached to ordinary trolley poles a few feet from the top, but the new installation will include ornamental fluted standards capped by the lights. Wires will be underground. The additional lights will give the thoroughfare a total of 183,960 candlepower and are expected to make Fifth avenue one of the best illuminated arteries in the nation.

The improved street lighting system was requested by the Fifth Avenue Business Men's Association but Council demurred owing to lack of funds until the Duquesne Light Company agreed to immediate installation and to wait until next year for payment. No estimate of the cost was announced.

The same year he was elected to a 10-year term in that court, and in 1917 was re-elected for another 10-year term in that court. He polled the highest number of votes for Common Pleas judge at the time of his re-election of any candidate, receiving 79,043.

PHILANTHROPIST

In philanthropic and charitable work Judge Cohen was very active for many years, especially in behalf of Jewish organizations. He was particularly interested in the welfare of the Hebrew Relief Association, Gusky Orphanage and the Home for Aged Jews.

He was a member of the executive board of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, a director of Allegheny General Hospital and president of District No. 3, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith.

He was one of the organizers of Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, and was connected with the National Jewish Hospital in Denver. He was a director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and was a life member of the board of trustees of Carnegie Institute.

Judge Cohen always had been closely identified with Rodef Shalom Temple. He was vice president of the congregation for many years until 1910, when he was chosen to succeed Abraham Lippman as president of the congregation, which place he held until the time of his death.

In his youth Judge Cohen was engaged to deliver sermons in English corresponding with those delivered by Rabbi L. Naumburg, of Rodef Shalom Synagogue. He was a member of the county teachers association in 1862. In 1870 he married Carrie Naumburg, daughter of Rabbi Naumburg.

SHORTER LOREE LINE WOULD CUT COST

Railroad Man's Attorneys Here Prepare Evidence To Show Advantages

L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, who has been fighting for the right to give Pittsburgh a shorter railroad to the East, aims to spend $177,000,000 in Pennsylvania, a large part of it in the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

Loree wishes to build a line which would bring New York 100 miles closer to Pittsburgh. He declares the route would have lower grades than any other road between this city and the East.

His ambition is to put in existence a line which would operate at such low costs that Pittsburgh's freight rates to the East would be materially reduced.

Henry Oliver Evans, Loree's attorney in Pittsburgh, yesterday stated that local civic organizations and shippers in this district had shown surprisingly little interest in the possibilities of this line, construction of which is being bitterly opposed by all the existing railroads in this district.

PEPARING EVIDENCE

Loree's attorneys are busily engaged in preparing evidence to present to the Interstate Commerce Commission when the application of the proposed New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railroad again comes before that body.

The last development in the case took place on June 5 when exceptions were filed to the report of C. V. Burnside, assistant director of finance for the commission, who, following a review of the evidence, recommended that the Loree application be denied.

MINIMUM GRADE

The proposed line would extend from Pittsburgh to Easton, where it would connect with other lines which would carry traffic to points on the seaboard. It would extend 283 miles, according to evidence filed with the commission.

The line would have a maximum grade of only 0.3 per cent, which would be lower than over any existing route. Its curves would be more moderate than over present lines. It would start operations with the most modern equipment.

Low operating costs would be unparalleled by any other major eastern railroad system, it is declared. In the statement filed with the commission last week it was stated that the line would be able to move about 2 per cent of the ton mileage of the eastern region at an operating cost of 3.24 mills per ton mile and at a total cost for operation, all capital charges and taxes, of 6.50 mills per ton mile. This over-all cost would be actually less than the operating cost of any of the lines opposing the new railroad.

VOTE REPORTS AWAIT WORD OF JUDGE

Armstrong Returns; Says Commissioners Will Act When Sure of Legality

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, returning from Atlantic City today, declared that the Commissioners would certify the returns in the May primary election as soon as they have received from Judge James R. Macfarlane an opinion whether such action would be legal with the vote in 60 districts disputed.

The return board has been ordered to make a recount in these disputed districts.

Judge Macfarlane's opinion is expected within the next few days. The returns from Allegheny County are to be certified to the secretary of the commonwealth at Harrisburg.

A report submitted today on the recount of the vote in the First District of the Second Ward showed that Francis Shunk Brown, for governor, had lost one vote. The total was: Brown, 18; Pinchot, 141. The report, submitted to the prothonotary, stated that some ballots were marked with two kinds of pencil, indelible and black, but made no comment on this fact. It also stated that there were differences of from 55 to 75 votes between the recount board's figures and the official election board totals in the vote on candidates for ward committeeman.

The recount of the vote of the First District of the Sixth Ward showed that Brown had lost nine votes.

Judge Macfarlane conferred with the recount board and Attorney Frank I. Gollmar, of the Pinchot legal staff, yesterday, but would not talk to newspapermen after the conference.

At his chambers the tapstaff said Judge Macfarlane had said he would not see any newspapermen.

ment. Crafton residents favor repeal by a ratio of 2.6 to 1. A substantial total of ballots—695 in the three McKeesport wards and 445 from the borough of Crafton—represent the sentiment for a change.

The division between men and women is: McKeesport, enforcement, 61 men and 18 women; modification, 58 men and 17 women; repeal, 463 men and 78 women; Crafton, enforcement, 59 men and 49 women; modification, 30 men and 27 women; repeal, 194 men and 86 women.

The latest tabulation of votes in the poll from Allegheny County gives a total of 41,691 ballots, divided as follows:

	Men	Women	Total

For repeal	21,496	10,778	32,274

"We will show that this brutal murder was done by the deep, hellish feeling of jealousy, insane jealousy."

"I told my story to save myself from being charged with the crime."

STATE CLOSES CASE

As the Commonwealth closed its case Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren testified he had made efforts in vain to get in touch with Mrs. Gregory, who was to have been a Commonwealth witness, in Columbus, O., and Georgetown, Ky. Her testimony would have been simply to identify her husband as the victim which had been established through other witnesses.

Miss Mildred Schlander, of Lincoln avenue extension, identified a photograph of the scene where the barrel containing the body was found. She lives across a hollow from the spot, she testified.

SHIPS CRASH, BURN, 47 DEAD

NO WARNING

The Fairfax had been poking slowly through fog, moving at barely half its normal speed of 12 knots. Almost without warning, there was a crash as it ploughed into the tanker.

Blazing oil, in a blast that followed the collision, flowed out over the surface of the sea and rounded the ship. It shot her sides and dropped on deck, splashing upon passers and sailors outside at the time.

The explosions, according to the passengers, tore the tanker to pieces and after the ship had sunk from sight, only a flaming sheet of oil was left on the surface of the sea.

Men and women aboard the Fairfax, believing the ship doomed, hurled themselves into the sea, only to perish in the flaming oil.

There was no opportunity to render aid either to those who jumped from the Fairfax or to those aboard the wrecked tanker.

The Fairfax was stopped immediately and then anchored until the extent of the damage could be determined. It was found that a large hole had been ripped in her side by the impact with the tanker, but that she was in no danger of sinking. She remained at the scene of the crash until after daylight, and then started slowly for her pier in Boston.

32 DEAD, RUM SHOPS RAIDED

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—Accused of selling poisonous liquor, 36 proprietors, bartenders and bouncers from "smoke" shops along the Bowery were under arrest today.

Spurred by 32 deaths within a month from poisonous alcohol and other deadly concoctions dispensed to Bowery habitues at 14 and 25 cents a drink, Maj. Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator, led 50 federal agents in a series of raids yesterday on the drinking haunts of the down-and-outers.

The agents dressed in shabby clothes and with two-day beards on their faces visited drug stores, paint shops and speakeasies, purchasing samples of "smoke," so-called because of its clouded, milky white appearance, and arresting the dispensers.

The raiders said they found scores of patrons of the Bowery drinking dives lying in drunken stupor in the sawdust which covered the floors.

CHICAGO WARS ON KILLERS

CHICAGO, June 11.—(INS.)—Chicago struck back at gangland today for the assassination of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Detective Bureau squads, slashing into the haunts and hiding places of the underworld, hauled 40 alleged gangsters to the detective bureau. Additional squads seized more men and hurried them to outlying police stations.

All the prisoners were held incommunicado, secretly, without being booked.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner today offered a $25,000 reward, bringing the total to $50,000.

While every law enforcing agency in the city and county bent their efforts toward solving the murder of Lingle, Alderman James Bowler demanded a thorough investigation of the police department and its alleged connections with gangland.

Lingle, who had covered the intricate affairs of the underworld for his newspaper for several years, was shot down Monday in the midst of a subway crowd as he made his way toward a train. The killer escaped.

Authorities today sought a left-handed gunman and ex-convict, who is believed to have been imported from Brooklyn for the Lingle murder as well as several others of the 11 murders that marked the 10 days of gang warfare.

Head-on Into Brick Wall at 37 Miles Per Hr.!

Amazing Test of New GENERAL Dual-Balloon

The Blow-Out Proof Tire

AT the wheel was Captain Dick Grace, famous Hollywood daredevil and motion picture thrill king, whose spectacular feats have included the cracking up of 34 airplanes for such productions as Wings, Lilac Time, Hell's Angels, Young Eagles and other thrilling air dramas.

Because of his many daring exploits, Captain Grace was selected as the one man capable of giving the Blow-Out Proof Dual-Balloon a test such as no other tire has ever been asked to stand . . . crashing an 8-cylinder touring car under full power at 37 miles per hour into a solid wall of bricks and concrete.

The quick eye of the camera, an instant before the wall tilted, shows how the tires absorbed the first tremendous shock of the impact.

The force of the blow flattened the steel rims inside and outside on both front wheels. Yet neither the tires nor tubes were cut or damaged in the slightest. They had not lost a pound of air.

The Blow-Out Proof Test that Astounded Safety Experts

He Comes Up Smiling

Failing to sail clear over the wall as he had expected, Captain Grace was shot forward, doubling over like a jack-knife, bending the cowling out of shape, and was then hurled into the air and to the ground. But fortunately he was only dazed. In a few moments he was on his feet ready to study the effect of the crash.

"As I neared the wall and realized the speed at which we were going to strike I did not believe an automobile tire could be made capable of standing that blow. In engineering terms there were 170,000 foot-pounds of energy behind the impact," Captain Grace declared after the test.

AN 8-cylinder touring car drives head-on down the field into a solid wall of bricks and mortar. ¶ A shattering crash as its 3,500 pounds of speeding steel smashes against the barricade! ¶ The entire 10-ton wall, foundation and all, is lifted and tipped forward more than a foot, so terrific is the force of the impact!

Yet the General Dual-Balloon Tires, forced to take the first tremendous shock, are not blown out.

Note how the tires are pancaked against the wall by the irresistible weight and momentum of the car . . at the moment of greatest impact they were mashed absolutely flat between the wheels and the wall.

The force of the blow left the steel rims bent and flattened out of shape, but the Dual-Balloon Tires, with their built-in rubber shock absorbers, had withstood that battering punishment without a sign of bruise or break.

Examination immediately after the crash revealed absolutely no injury inside or out. Tested against tons of tempered steel and solid masonry, the Blow-Out Proof Tires alone had stood the shock without damaging effect.

This was a test without parallel in all the history of pneumatic tires . . . a demonstration of tire safety and endurance that astounded Akron's safety experts, rubber engineers and all who witnessed it.

Safe against the sudden impact of road holes and bumps that shatter the carcasses of ordinary tires at today's highway speed . . . you can trust your life to the Blow-Out Proof Dual-Balloon. Nothing before has even approached its amazing performance . . its all-road, all-weather, all-speed safety . . its easy riding comfort . . its lower final mileage cost.

400,000 casualties yearly due to tire blowouts, punctures and skidding!

IT'S TIME TO ACT!

Blowouts didn't mean much in the day of slow speeds and small tires, but with balloon tires it's different.

Your slowest speed on the highway today is 44 feet a second. At 60 miles per hour it's 88 feet a second . . . less than a tenth of a second from flat tire to tragedy where traffic is crowded, roads narrow and the ditch all too close!

If it cost more to be safe you might be excused for taking chances. But it actually costs less to run with the Blow-Out Proof tire. Its mileage is cheaper, it saves gas, your car stays quiet and new thousands of miles longer, and safety is yours without charge.

Four Pennsylvania Cities To Get Federal Buildings Under Bill's Provisions

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP.)—The second deficiency appropriation bill, calling for a direct outlay of $66,211,884 and indefinite allotments in excess of $51,000,000, to cover contingencies in operation of various government departments and agencies, was reported today to the House by its Appropriations Committee.

In addition to providing more than $25,000,000 for public building projects, the measure set aside $10,660,000 for initial work on the $165,000,000 Bulder Canyon dam project, and authorized the payment of $51,000,000 to settle German, Austrian and Hungarian war claims, under the Mixed Claims Commission.

PROVIDES FOR BUILDINGS

It increased the authorizations for a number of building projects and reappropriated numerous unexpended balances for various projects. Funds appropriated under the measure are to become available immediately upon enactment.

It sets aside $1,700,000 to begin work on a $3,850,000 penitentiary in the northeastern section; $1,000,000 for federal jails; $750,000 for prison camps; $500,000 for consolidated prison industries; $325,000 for initial work on a narcotic farm at Lexington, Ky., and $250,000 for the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission to continue its inquiry into prohibition enforcement.

The bill carries $40,000 for protecting the government's interests in naval petroleum reserves; $326,072 for the George Washington bicentennial celebration commission; $1,000,000 for the Porto Rican Hurricane Relief Commission, and $2,200,000 for the Veterans Bureau, in addition to reappropriating unexpended balances for military and naval compensation.

CALLS FOR POSTOFFICES

In the allotments for the Agriculture Deparement, $1,000,000 was set aside for the extension service, to encourage use of the Federal Farm Board's facilities, and $17,640 for enforcement of the grain futures act.

Scores of cities, large and small, all over the country, would benefit by erection of new federal buildings or remodeling of old properties, under the bill made public today.

Carrying $25,000,000 for public building works, the measure included appropriations for federal buildings in Altoona, Pa., $775,000; Clearfield, Pa., $145,000; New Kensington, Pa., $240,000; Rochester, Pa., $105,000; Uniontown, Pa., $265,000.

Ex-Clerk Destroyed City Records, Charge

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 11.—(AP).—Investigation into the disappearance of city tax records in Moundsville came to a climax here with indictment of John W. Edwards, Jr., former city clerk, on a charge of fraudulent destruction of the accounts.

The inquiry, which resulted in the Marshall County grand jury action, was launched by City Council, which declares the records were destroyed by fire which destroyed Edwards' automobile the night of Friday, May 9, while he was visiting friends in West Alexander, Pa.

85 Men Arrested In 10 Liquor Raids

Eighty-five men, mostly Negroes, were arrested in a series of raids staged by police from the Center Avenue Station this morning. Police under Capt. John Schnurr and Lieut. William J. Lavery staged the raids, visiting 10 alleged speakeasies. The raiders reported confiscating 350 gallons of moonshine.

SMILING SKIES GREET SHRINE PARADE

Informal Revelry Rules After Delay by Storm; Imperial Council Meets

TORONTO, June 11.—(AP.)—Encouraged by promise of fair skies, Shriners of the United States and Canada, in conclave here, prepared today for the parade and carnival, washed out yesterday by rain.

Despite the storm which compelled postponement of yesterday's procession after throngs had begun to gather for it, Shriners and their guests turned the city into a scene of informal revelry which lasted until the early hours today and this morning after a few hours of rest, the bands and gaily-garbed patrols turned out again.

Long before the hour set for the parade today multitudes headed toward Exhibition Park for the march of the grand escort.

Concerts on street corners, in inclement weather, by Template bands of the Ancient Arabic orders and impromptu divesions kept Toronto's downtown section in constant merriment yesterday.

Today's program called for band concerts at Queen's Park, close to the seat of provincial government; at the Exhibition Grounds; at the City Hall and other locations, culminating in drills at Exhibition Park amid a phosphorescent setting.

While Toronto interested itself in the spectacular aspect of the Shriners' gathering the members of the Imperial Council continued their deliberations today. Estes A. Fletcher was to accede to the place of Leo V. Youngsworth, of Los Angeles, as imperial potentate.

A proposal to change the annual convention to a triennial affair brought a protest from the Cleveland delegation, which has started a drive to land the 1931 meeting. Chicago, which wants the convention in 1932, lined up behind Cleveland.

CROPS IN STATE HIT BY COLD

HARRISBURG, June 11.—(AP.)—All crops in Pennsylvania were harmed by a combination of rainfall deficiency and cold temperatures during May, the monthly crop survey of the Department of Agriculture revealed.

Warm weather permitted much spring work by farmers. The crops, however, were retarded by lack of rain and damage by frosts in the latter part of the month.

Corn was reported as "yellow and sickly looking" despite as many as three cultivations in some sections. Much of the crop was frozen during the last of the month.

The aridness and freezing caused winter wheat to decline. Oats, barley and rye also suffered, while prospects of hay and pasture were reported poor with clover heading very short and many fields full of weeds.

Especially discouraging was the fruit report.

Memorial to Bryan Planned in Capital

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP.)—Erection in the national capital of a memorial to William Jennings Bryan by the William Jennings Bryan Memorial Association would be authorized under a Senate resolution adopted by the House and sent to the President.

The memorial probably will be a tower with carillon bells. The association has been engaged for several years in raising funds for it.

Ex-Senator Buried Near Memorial Site

GLENVILLE, W. Va., June 11.—(AP.)—Robert Franklin Kidd, 77, was buried here in the Linn cemetery on a hillside overlooking the site of the new library building at Glenville State Normal School designated by the 1929 Legislature as the "Robert F. Kidd Memorial Library."

The library was named for Kidd in recognition of his long service in the State Senate and House of Delegates. Kidd died Sunday night.

Wife Sues Lubitsch; Tells of 'Cruelties'

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—(AP.)—Ernst Lubitsch, film director, is being sued for divorce here, his wife, Helene, charging mental cruelty.

The complaint said Lubitsch insulted family guests, used "opprobrious" language, refused to converse with his wife for a month except in a scolding manner and frequently remained away from home until early in the morning.

Philadelphia Man Optimist Governor

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—(AP.)—Paul W. Gibbons, of this city, was elected fourth district governor of the Optimist Club. He is a former vice president of the International Optimists.

Samuel P. Orlando, Camden, N. J., and Ramsay Black, Harrisburg, were elected lieutenant governors for New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

U. S. May Provide Doughboy Uniforms

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP.)—The Army doughboys would be furnished blue dress uniforms free of charge under a bill introduced by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Rep.), Massachusetts. The measure would authorize $1,000,000 for the uniforms.

SOUCEK READY FOR NEW TRY

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—With favorable weather Lieut. Apollo Soucek will attempt today to break his newly acquired world altitude record for airplanes.

Unable to secure an official barograph in time yesterday after wind had swept the skies free of clouds, he took his tiny plane up 10,000 feet, but returned after he had satisfied himself with the operation of the motor. The metal propeller was set at a sharper angle than when he set his record last week.

After the attempt at the land plane record, he said the plane would be equipped with pontoons and a trial made for a new seaplane record to better the mark of 38,560 feet he set last year.

JUDGE REBUKES 'LIBERAL' JURY

Judge James H. Gray today rebuked a jury which had awarded $59,670 to John F. Mueller for 36 acres of land taken by Allegheny County for the South Park.

A previous award of $40,000 had been set aside as excessive by Judge Elder W. Marshall. The board of viewers placed a value of $36,900 on the property.

Judge Gray said:

"It is high time the practice of jurors being too liberal with the public's money should be stopped. You people have brought in a verdict $20,000 higher than was awarded the plaintiff at the first trial."

The court indicated the second verdict also would be set aside.

3 FAMOUS FLAVORS

Three FAMOUS FLAVORS
Which one suits your taste?

CLICQUOT CLUB GOLDEN: A mellow, golden, old-time ginger ale. Rich in quick energy, contains acidity—a real food beverage.

CLICQUOT CLUB PALE DRY: Lighter than the "Golden" type—this mellow ginger ale blends wonderfully into a mixed drink.

All are different . . . all are delightful . . . and, of course, being Clicquot, they are pure

ON THIS PAGE are pictured three types of ginger ale. The flavor of each is distinctly different from the other two. Yet all of them are delicious.

Many people have tried but one type of ginger ale flavor, not realizing that there are two other ginger ales that might please them even more. So now we offer three flavors. And we urge you to make the simple comparative test described below, to find out what your choice in flavor really is.

Won't you try them?

If you have tried only one type of ginger ale flavor, we strongly urge you to make this simple test! Buy a bottle of each of these three ginger ales. Taste each one. Note the difference in flavors. You're sure to find one exactly suited to your taste.

This comparative taste test has been a revelation to thousands who had never known before which ginger ale they really preferred.

Because tastes vary, Clicquot Club makes three types of ginger ale.

Golden . . . Pale Dry . . . Sec . . . these are all made with pure Jamaica ginger root, finest table sugar, real fruit flavors and pure water from deep rock springs. All three of these fine ginger ales are fully carbonated for zest and sparkle. All three are carefully aged six months in the making to give them a rarer and more mellow flavor. The difference lies only in the secret blending.

These Clicquot Club ginger ales are at your dealer's now. Remember to say that it is "Clicquot Club" you want, as no other ginger ale makes the three famous flavors—Golden, Pale Dry and Sec.

CLICQUOT CLUB SEC: A supremely dry ginger ale. The favorite in clubs, hotels and wherever discriminating people gather.

GULF OIL GETS PARAGON

Announcement of the consolidation of the Paragon Refining Company, of Toledo, with the Gulf Oil Corporation, of this city, will be made early next week, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

On May 28 E. W. Edwards, president of the Paragon, announced that he had accepted an offer of about $10,000,000 from the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh for the company.

Officials of the Union Trust Company and of the Gulf Oil Company at that time refused to state what use would be made of the Paragon company.

The sale of Paragon, which is subject to an approval of stockholders at a meeting to be held June 24, includes all the organization's assets except cash and accounts receivable. The company's stock in the Valvoline Company, recently acquired by Paragon, was not included.

PLAN SEA HOP THIS WEEK

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 11.—(AP.)—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator, and his three companions feel certain that they will be able to take off for the United States in the airplane Southern Cross at least by the latter part of the week.

The fliers had hoped to start today but the weather forecast, showing bad conditions over the Atlantic, necessitated another postponement.

Presbyterians Vote To Combat Divorce

HAMILTON, Ont., June 11.—(AP.)—The Presbyterian General Assembly unanimously passed a motion denouncing modern divorce as a "destroyer of civilization," and urging all ministers to fight it.

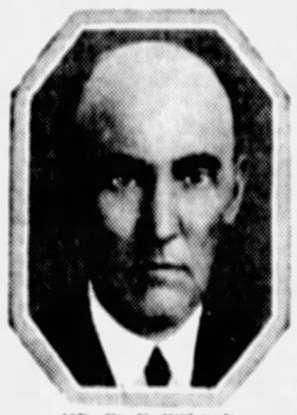
MODERN KONJOLA BROUGHT RELIEF IN THIS CASE

At Age of 67 Man Is Relieved of Neuritis and Stomach Trouble—New Medicine is Strongly Praised.

What joy and happiness over new health has Konjola, the new and different medicine, brought into the world! Just think what this fact means to all who suffer. In two years seven million bottles of Konjola have been used.



MR. W. F. WILSON

A medicine must have merit to make a record like that. Consider, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mr. W. F. Wilson, R. F. D. No. 3, Eighty-Four, Pa., near Pittsburgh. No wonder he was glad to tell what Konjola did for him. Would you not like to hear all about this new compound of 32 valuable, medicinal ingredients? Then meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and hear the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine. See what Konjola does, and then decide what you will do about Konjola. But right now read the grateful words of Mr. Wilson, age 67, who recently told his experience to the Konjola Man in the following words:

"Konjola is the best medicine I ever used. It is simply wonderful. For five years I suffered from stomach trouble and neuritis. My stomach filled with gases after practically every meal, and I had severe pains of indigestion. Neuritis struck me in my neck and shoulders. The pains of this dread ailment were dreadful. The sluggish condition of my liver caused dizzy spells and bilious attacks.

"But a four weeks' treatment of Konjola has given me better health than I ever expected to have again. Gas, bloating and pains of indigestion are things of the dread past. I eat what I want, and sleep soundly. Neuritis pains have vanished, and I am gaining in weight and strength. Many of my friends have taken Konjola upon my recommendation, and they are all praising this fine medicine now."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It is all pure, wholesome medicine, and every drop works.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily; explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

CENSUS RATES CITY TENTH

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—With the relative rank of those two new million mark cities, Detroit and Los Angeles, definitely established, the 1930 rating of the 10 greatest urban centers is now a certainty with a single exception.

Boston may possibly push St. Louis, which came in with only 9.7 per cent increase out of seventh place.

If Boston remains in her present place, the big ten will read, in order of population, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

Though the increase rate of Los Angeles in the past 10 years (113.59) was almost double that of Detroit (57.4), she couldn't quite catch up, for Detroit also was moving at a speed spectacular among great cities.

Back Seat Driving Duty of Wife, Court Rules

ATLANTA, June 11.—(AP)—The Georgia Court of Appeals ruled inferentially that it is not only the right but the duty of a woman to assist her husband by back seat driving.

Mrs. R. H. Pickard of Atlanta, had sought damages from the Georgia Power Company for injuries received when an automobile driven by her husband was struck by a street car. The court found that Mrs. Pickard had seen the car approaching and did not warn her husband.

By using ordinary care" Mrs. Pickard could have avoided the accident, the opinion, granting a non-suit, declared.

Stop wishing you owned an automobile—you can. There are many good used cars that can be bought for a very little money. Read the Classified Ads for these bargains.

AUTO EXPORTS IMPROVE

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Exports of automobiles from the United States are holding up somewhat better than are exports of automobile parts.

The Commerce Department statement of April business in that class placed the month's total foreign shipments of automotive product; at $37,443,000, a decrease of about $2,500,000 from the March figure, but declared the value of cars and trucks exported had been slightly in excess of similar exports for March.

Associates Pay Tribute to Judge Cohen

Sincere sorrow and high praise for the life and efforts of the late and jurist were expressed today by members of the bar and other prominent in the business and civic life of the city following the sudden death of Judge Joseph Cohen Common Pleas.

ROBERT S FRAZER Justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court—I knew Judge Cohen intimately previously for upwards of a member of the bench and before that time had occasion to be connected in the professional with the court. He possessed a very legal mind and was an able and diligent judge. He will be greatly missed by both the bench and the public generally.

MAYOR CHARLES H KLINE—I was deeply shocked and grieved at the death of my very dear friend Judge Joseph Cohen. While on the bench he was a good lawyer to come before, and it was for this I admired of his many beautiful and lovable characteristics. He will be missed not only by those for whom he labored so well but the Civic as well, for among both he had thousands of friends. His place in society will be difficult to fill.

R M GIBSON presiding judge of United States District Court—It is with profound regret that we hear of the death of Judge Cohen. He has served the county upon the bench long and well and his absence from the court will be one which will be greatly felt by the public. But that will not be the only loss for had a most remarkable personality and the wisdom and kindly will he be remembered with generosity and a loss regretted by a host of personal friends. And in many public ways outside his duties upon the bench the death will leave a vacancy. He was greatly interested in all worthy public activities and never failed to do his own share in support of them. A notable and worthy figure has been taken from us by his death.

JUDGE JAMES H GRAY—It is four years since I became a judge and my chambers have been next to his. I probably saw him more than any other judge of this court. The most remarkable thing about him was the extraordinary facility he showed in the enjoyment of his work and his outstanding good humor among his associates. He saw the bright side of life and took a keen interest in every thing that went on. He was in his chambers early before court days, and appeared fresh and well. I never knew him to be in a hurry or to be at a loss to dispose promptly of the business at hand. He was a man of the highest personal integrity and his word was as binding as his bond. His passing will be a loss to the community.

JUDGE SYLVESTER J SNEE Quarter Sessions Court—Judge Cohen was a loyal associate and after hearing the unfortunate news of his death I felt that one of the few friends who were instrumental in my being elected to the bench had been taken from me. Although he lived beyond the allotted span, his mind was as active as ever. He was a man of the highest ideals and integrity and his passing will be a loss to the community which he served so well.

JUDGE HARRY H RHOADS—The news of Judge Cohen's death brings to me deep personal regret and sorrow. My many years of association with him as colleague on the bench and friendly intimacy as a fellow citizen, have made me appreciate the greatness of his character and the fineness of his spirit. He was a true friend, a wise counsellor and a loyal citizen. His passing will be deeply lamented by all who knew him.

JUDGE THOMAS J FORD—In the passing of Judge Cohen I feel that I have lost a friend and a brother. I have known him since childhood. He was a kind considerate and helpful friend, admired and respected by laymen as well as the bar. He was one of the old school with a depth of understanding that this fast moving world can ill afford to lose.

JUDGE D M MILLER County Court—He was the last of the old school of lawyers prominent when I started in the bar and was recognized as a brilliant lawyer and judge and an eloquent orator. He was the last of that famous group embracing Attorneys D T Watson, George Shiras Jr, John W Dalzell, Thomas M Marshall and Judge S Ferguson.

JUDGE JAMES B DREW—Judge Cohen's death will be a shock to many of the citizens of this county. But many of the friends have come from the young heart of a boy. Honor has ever been his motto. He always stood for justice and equality. His unfailing integrity, ability, industry and what is most necessary to a real judge, courage made him pre-eminent. I hope his successor will be worthy of him.

JUDGE M WARD FLEMING Centre County—Pennsylvania has suffered a great loss. The bench has lost an able and understanding jurist.

ANDREW T PARK district attorney—A heart that throbbed with human kindness has been stilled. A voice that rang with fatherly advice to those who had erred has been hushed. In his death I have not a more loyal personal friend. A man who in his long association as assistant district attorney I had come to love and respect and look as a father. I can say no more in the inadequate way than to express the deep sympathy which I feel for those bereaved.

E A BABCOCK County Commissioner—Judge Cohen was a member of Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County. I have been blessed with a long and useful life. Never before has sudden death shocked me. I have always considered Judge Cohen as the best type of husband and most prominent citizen of Allegheny County. I sympathize deeply with the family in the loss to them and the loss to the community which he served so well.

C C McGOVERN County Commissioner—I am very sorry to hear of Judge Cohen's death. I have known him for 40 years. He was a fine asset to the Allegheny County bar, an esteemed citizen and also a true human being with a fine sense of humor.

JOSEPH N MACKRELL register of wills—I had known him since childhood. He was a kind considerate and helpful friend, admired and respected by laymen as well as the bar. He was one of the old school with a depth of understanding that this fast moving world can ill afford to lose.

JOHN S HERRON president of Council—I know that the deep regret with which I heard of the death of Judge Cohen is shared by every one who knew him. His friendliness, great ability and wonderful character made a deep impression on me as well as on all who came in touch with him during his long service for Pittsburgh. I remember vividly his impressive oration at the inauguration of Mayor Kline in January. Judge Cohen was one of the city's outstanding citizens and his place will be difficult to fill.

JOHN FRANCIES county treasurer—I have known Judge Cohen all my life. With his keen mind was coupled a kindly nature and it has been given to few men to ably serve their community so many years.

MAJ A B HAY assistant district attorney—Judge Cohen was the only lawyer at the bar older in practice than myself. He was admitted in 1866 and I was admitted in 1868. We had offices in the same dwelling house on Fifth avenue and William Penn way which has now been replaced by part of Kaufmann's and have always been closely associated. When Judge Cohen came from London and was admitted after teaching school here a while he was the first Jewish lawyer in Allegheny County. I saw his practice grow rapidly and saw him build up a reputation as an orator which has stood unassailed throughout his career.

CHARLES M CULVER, visiting judge from Bradford County—Judge Cohen was a lovable man, a distinguished citizen and an able jurist.

JOSEPH G ARMSTRONG, county commissioner—In the passing away of my lifelong, sincere and bosom friend Judge Josiah Cohen, words fail me. True he almost arrived at the venerable age of 90 but the association of years with so loyal a friend and so loveable a character suddenly broken causes me to feel the loss acutely. To him, differences of distinction in every sense of station in life meant nothing. Great and eminent Judge that he was he left behind him the wife, family. The Jewry of America has lost a leader. Pennsylvania and Allegheny County a great public servant and worthy citizen, the bar of Allegheny County its leader and friend. I have lost a friend.

J A McCAUGHEY visiting judge from Mercer County—To me as a visiting Judge Cohen was to have been. He had the splendid trait of being cheerful all the time. He was a judge of ability.

MAJ JOHN H SHENKLE chief clerk Quarter Sessions Court—Judge Cohen was a lovable and distinguished citizen and an able judge. He was loved by all for his great human understanding of his fellowmen.

CONGRESSMAN P J SULLIVAN—Judge Cohen was one of the most charitable and humane men that ever sat on the bench in Allegheny County.

SHOOTS BRIDE, KILLS SELF

CHICAGO, June 11—(INS)—William Collins, 20, was dead here today of self-inflicted bullet wounds after shooting his 18-year-old bride, Gladys, and her mother, Mrs. May Kibler, after she had rejected a last proposal that she return to him.

The couple were married 10 weeks ago but after several weeks of married life the young wife returned to her mother. Collins went to his mother-in-law's home last night and when refused entrance drew a gun and rushed to the wife's bedroom.

Contagious Foot Disease Attacks Millions—Watch Out

You May Have It

An Intense Itching and Burning Under and Between the Toes Often Spreads to Soles of Feet—Skin Breaks and Blisters

Stop Infection Before It Spreads

Look at your feet tonight and especially under and between toes. The United States Public Health Service asserts in a recent bulletin that at least one-half of all adults suffer from it at times.

And bear in mind it is no disease to trifle with for many of its victims have been disabled for weeks. Usually the skin cracks—it blisters—when the blister breaks there is often an oozing of liquid.

If not caught in time the disease usually spreads along the sole and sides of the foot—the skin reddens and may peel off.

CAUTION: The disease is infectious—someone in your own home may have it—find out tonight. Beware of bathmats, either at home or in hotels—use a newspaper—it's safer. Wear your own slippers and walk as little as possible in your bare feet.

TREATMENT: After bathing the feet apply Moone's Emerald Oil generously not only under and between the toes but over the bottom and sides of foot. This powerful oil soothes and penetrates—stops the itching and checks the growth of the germs.

Women Get Freedom Then Don't Want It, Girls Tell Marion Davies

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—Now that woman has gained her freedom she finds that she no longer wants it!

At least that is the opinion of numbers of entrants in the Marion Davies style contest. In gaining her liberty—by means of shortened skirts and hair by dint of discarding the restrictions of an older day she has lost her modesty her allure and her right to expect chivalry, they say. And they aver that she regrets her loss. They see in the new trend of fashion a desire on the part of women to revert to the clinging tactics of our grandmothers and to renounce the "equality" for which the sex has struggled.

Trailing frills and furbelows—such as Marion Davies wears in her newest picture, "The Florodora Girl," now playing at the New Pantages Theater will restore woman's femininity, these writers imagine and bring back the gentler manners of the nineties.

SPEAKS AS PRUDE

"I speak not as a prude, but as an observer," writes Marie De Abad, 1441 Ellis street, San Francisco. "The new-found freedom of woman has cheapened her in the eyes of the passing generation to which I belong. Independence is all right—but it becomes license when carried too far—and that is not a pretty word.

"In the new mode we find much of the healthily comfortable, but alas! much of the vulgar, too—leave the past to itself. Tone down the new mode.

"When modest charm is taken from a woman—and it is mostly done by dress—her chief allure for man is gone. Present day fashions more invite the chase than chivalry."

LOSE INDIVIDUALITY

"Having gotten exactly what they set out to get when they decided to be men's equals, women have found that they really do not want it after all.

They thought that they must look masculine, act masculine, and even dress so, if they would attain their objective—equality.

"At last every woman looked just like every other woman, so far as costume—or lack of it—was concerned. This was a great drawback and women have begun to realize it. They have lost their individuality. Mystery and allure have vanished. This is too high a price to pay for freedom.

"I think we shall see the return of the picturesque, the feminine—but these adapted to modern needs."

Not all the contestants agree with these views—as you will see in the excerpts from other letters which follow:

MODERN STYLES BEST

"In my opinion the modern girl looks best in the modern styles to suit the individual type, made in moderation, to bring out her special points of beauty. The girls of today can look and be just as sweet and attractive as in the gay nineties if they will only be content to be so and not try for sensationalism.

"BLANCHE PRATT,
"308 Normadie Apartments, "Seattle, Wash."

LET MEN TRY 'EM

"Those masculine designers who make the styles and those men who advocate women going back to them, let them wear them and see how they like it.

"MRS. LUCILLE GOODRICH,
1117 N. Dearborn, Chicago, Ill."

KEEP LEGS FREE

Why cover up legs and arms now when they have been showing for 10 years? We are all through using our imagination. We are using our eyes and you don't hear of any more people going blind than you did 50 years ago.

"DOROTHY WISKOWSKI,
732 Eighth Avenue, West Allis, Wis."

HYSTERICS COMING

"All styles seem laughable after they have gone out. In 20 years from now people probably will have hysterics when shown a picture of the present day.

"MARGARET M. DILWORTH, 14760 Mettetal Avenue, Detroit, Mich."

FASHIONS KIND

"The skimpy 'glad rags' of 'Miss Today' are eye-holding and sensible. I doubt that the attire of the 'Florodora Sextette' had these splendid virtues. Surely the fashion pages of that past period did not display them!

"The style calendar has been kind to the modern lass and kind to us males that find her so very fascinating.

"THOMAS R. AKERS,
"782 West Hamburg Street, Baltimore, Md."

Can You Write On Style?

Do you remember the famous Florodora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies, the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1,000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

The contest closes at midnight, Saturday, June 14.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

The basic requirement for good health is rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

When S.S.S. is indicated in your case you owe it to yourself and friends to try it.

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

GOSSIP AND COMMENT ABOUT HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY LIFE

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.

Announcement of the cast which will support Mary Pickford in her next production, "Forever Yours," has been made by Miss Pickford. Among the players are many well-known names.

Kenneth MacKenna, the young stage actor who created the role of Stanley Shanklin in "What Every Woman Knows" on the New York stage, has been signed for the leading part. Miss Pickford's MacLaren still vividly remembered for his portrayal of Stephen Moore in "Coquette." Lew Morton will play her father.

Don Alvarado, last seen as the [illegible] in "The Bad One," and Nella Walker, who [illegible] the dramatic [illegible] in "Coquette," will also be featured. Richard Dix, Forrest Kerr, Ben Bard[illegible], Mae Busch, Walter Hiers, Marie Shotwell, Ann May, Willard Mack, Dwight Frye, New York [illegible] and Vera Lewis will support Miss Pickford in "The Voice of the City," which will be her next picture after "Forever Yours."

A GOOD LUCK ROLE

If the run of Tommy de Pictures brings to Arthur Lake the good luck it brought to William Janney, who played it on the stage, Arthur may begin figuring on the age for Stella [illegible].

It was while William Janney was playing the part of Tommy in a Los Angeles Theater that Mary Pickford saw him and engaged him for her brother in "Coquette." This was the beginning of a successful picture career for William.

By a peculiar coincidence both "Tommies" are now working on the R K O lot in Hollywood—Lake in the film by that name and Janney in the Richard Dix picture, "Square Dix."

AN EARLY "STEAL"

Bebe Daniels' star of Radio Pictures' all-talking drama "Lawful Larceny," declares it is the most unusual production in which she has appeared because another woman steals her husband in the first few feet of film. Usually she points out, a woman isn't double-crossed by her husband until the fourth reel, at least.

Lowell Sherman, Helen Millard, Prunell Pratt, Kenneth B. Thompson and Maud Turner Gordon have already been assigned to the cast of "Lawful Larceny," which is a talking screen version of the stage play by Samuel Shipman. Lowell Sherman is directing.

MOTHER AND SON

One mother in Hollywood knows where her young son is spending his time. Mrs. James Gleason is supervising the picture in which her son, Russell, is playing the leading role.

When the picture "Sally" is released, it will show what the mother and son combination brings forth. Mrs. Gleason is the first feminine associate producer in Hollywood. She expects to direct pictures later on.

An automobile will add greatly to your joy of living. Buy a good used car through the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads.

Plays Polo

Jack Oakie as hero in "The Social Lion" coming to the Aldine Friday goes in for polo in a big way.

PITTSBURGHERS LAND TARPON

A. H. Burchfield and Joseph Alexander, local insurance men, distinguished themselves recently in a tarpon fishing tournament in Florida. It was learned today. They each caught fish weighing more than 100 pounds.

Mr. Burchfield, who is president of the Joseph Horne Company, is going about it declared it to have been one of the biggest thrills he ever experienced.

He said:

"It was my first tarpon and he gave me quite a tussle. It took me an hour and a half to land him, but I wasn't taking any chances on his getting away."

Mr. Burchfield's fish weighed 108 pounds. Mr. Alexander's topped his by 10 pounds, placing second in the tourney.

The department store head was the guest of Mr. Alexander at the latter's Florida home in Sarasota. The tournament runs until July 15.

Drama by Synge Closes Tech Theater

Two performances of Synge's historical play of Ireland, "Dierdre of the Sorrows," Thursday and Friday, will close the Tech Theater for the year. It will be dark for four months. Martin Brown, now in England, directed the play. Final production will be completed by Chester Wallace and Miss Margaret Heckett. Miss Ida Sneakay and Miss Conn will play the Dierdre.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Exit

I'd like to see you far more often, dear,
In fact I'd very willingly confess
You stand apart—you're quite without a peer
In charm and manner—poise and loveliness;

But sad to state I share my toss views
With scores of other young determined males.
And when I call you up and you refuse
My plea for dates—your glamour rather pales.

"Such popularity must be deserved."
But why compete against a cigaret?
The pace is far too fast—you'll be unnerved
And find your victories will bring regret.

Well, I bow out—I hope you'll understand—
To seek and find a less distinguished brand!
—Brooke Edison.

Observation

Russ Phillips, Hal Brown and Gertrude White, the ghost-chasing young Dougherty, the lad who won the $5,000 on the Graham lot-lark. While I read the latest account in the paper about the head of the family over the spoils that the kids were fighting about, the split-up how the two governments, the United States and Canadian, were stepping in to collect off taxes and the $75,000 cut that must be paid to the agent who sold the deal.

"When it's all over," observed Brown, "the kid probably will owe the horse ten bucks!"

Add Similes

Concrete Example

Those of you who are acquainted with this department know by now how phoney we think the average Broadwayite is. Here is a concrete example of what we have been meaning right along. A booking agent died last week and one of his pals attended to this and that for his deceased friend. Then the pal went up to the funeral parlors and cried furiously over the remains. Oh, he cried for 15 minutes.

Only to be informed by an attendant that he was in the wrong room. So he had to cry all over again.

As It We Didn't Know

Mr. Benjamin Holzman, one of the more shrewd Broadway observers has discovered why it is so difficult to solve the Times Square traffic stitch-ee-ay-shun.

"Because," says Mr. H., "Broadway is a one-way street and it's mostly DOWN!"

Pun My Soul!

Take it from Monte Brice, the Park Avenuer, a merry magdalen was giving her undressing-room mate a piece of her allegee mind over her conduct with a pair of rich Johns.

"No wonder they didn't like you!" thundered the bawler-out, "why weren't you more aloof?"

"I thought I was aloof, a little," answered the other.

"You were, but not half enough!" yelled the scolder.

"Well," tittered the big tease, "half aloof is better than none."

And they slam doors!

Older Than God

In the days of yore a King summoned a man who kept making up terrible puns. Finally, the monarch decided that the punster should be hanged, and it took all the friends of the condemned fellow a month to persuade the King to grant him a pardon. The King gave in but only after it was agreed that the man never utter another pun.

In great joy and greater haste they rushed to the jail and as the executioner had put the rope around the fellow's neck:

"Hold!" they cried, "the King has pardoned you!"

A twinkle replaced the terror in the punster's eyes. All he flipped: "The noose is good enough!"

No one knew who sprung the trap, but the banquet to the executioner was the gayest event of the season.

The Morning Mail

"Dear Ketlan Chellwyn," devotedly writes Clark Kinnaird, "among those NOT in the new 'Who's Who in New York City and State' are Texas Guinan, George White, Peggy Joyce, Earl Carroll and Walter Winchell. Is your face red?

"Among those listed, however, are F. P. A., Adele and Fred Astaire, Ben Bernie, Babe Ruth and Winifred Sackville Stoner, 2d, etc."

The last mentioned celebrity being the little lady who makes the front pages frequently via the man-trouble route.

Why? ? ?

Well, let down the facts. You build a story around them if you like. He once was poor but now he is immensely rich, and he is spending his coin in the humanitarian manner. Last year he turned over one of his beautiful mansions to all his poor relatives' children so that they, too, might enjoy life, as well as his own tot, a three-year-old.

He engaged governesses and tutors for them all (20 children) and they have ponies to ride, and swings, and toys and pets, fresh air and sunshine and most of the goodies that few other children have. When he passes on, each of the kids will inherit a goodly sum.

"It makes me happy," he said, "to make all my nieces and nephews as happy as my own baby."

Last week his own child died!

As Sober as Judge

"And what we now want to know is when Walter Winchell is going to write the Main Stem Song?—Judge."

How much is a hatful of nickels?

In Fewer Words

You would not knock
The jokes we use,
Could you but see
Those we refuse!
—Phillip McCollum

Oop!

"Your 'Things I Didn't Know Till Now' column made a big boner this week," writes a finger-pointer. "You say frogs sing with their mouths shut. How 'bout Chevalier, you dope?"

Not New But Clean!

Joe Hanratty, of the H. Liveright offices, would have you believe he actually overheard it in the Go-Ghetto District, where there is a pushcart peddler for every broken heart.

Two pushcart pushers were pushing their pushcarts along the congested area when the one on the left, whose name was Moe, said to the other, whose Christian name was Ben: "Nu, howz business?"

Ben made no reply.

"I sad," reiterated Moe, "Howz business?"

To which the stubborn Ben boomed:

"Does Macy tell Gimbel?"

RECOVER LOOT AFTER CHASE

Seven alleged robbers accused of looting a Hill district tailor shop were arrested this morning when they took refuge in a small shed after an automobile chase through the district. Several of the 20 suits the men are accused of stealing from the shop of Louis Lefkovitz, at 117 Dinwiddie street, were recovered by police.

Lieut. Jack Lavery and several officers were searching the district for the thieves when they sighted an automobile containing seven men. They gave chase and followed the machine from the Hill district to Oakland and back in Center avenue to Soho street. Here the car was abandoned and the occupants took refuge in a shed.

Lavery and the officers of his squad surrounded the shed, broke down the door and arrested the men. At the station the prisoners said they were Joseph Grey, 23, of 238 North Craig street; James Walsh, 23, of 4602 Penn avenue; Harry Trautvetter, 27 of 2330 Reed street; John McGann, 37, of 541½ Protectory place; Francis Connors, 19, of 2319 Reed street; Marone Anthony, 28, of 1816 Webster avenue, and George Harrison, 32, a Negro, of 1228 Webster avenue.

138 TRAFFIC CASES UP

With 138 cases of traffic violations up in Traffic Court today before Magistrate Carl Papale, an all-time record of number of cases listed for hearing had been set in Pittsburgh. Two hundred ninety-three violators of the traffic laws have been called for hearings Monday, Tuesday and today.

Five women were among those summoned today.

The great majority of the cases —120 in all—are said to be for violations of city ordinances. The others result mainly from accidents.

The check on the violators is a result of a crusade against reckless driving, "snake" driving, passing of stop lights and speeding started by police this week. Violators are notified to appear for hearing within five days. Failure to appear will result, Papale says, in warrants being sworn out for the arrest of violators.

FIREMEN'S SWIM MEET TONIGHT

A swimming meet in the Brentwood borough pool tonight will feature today's program of the annual convention of the Allegheny County Volunteer Firemen's Association in that borough.

A water battle tomorrow will be one of the high spots in the week's program. It will be followed by election of officers.

More than 3,000 firemen are expected to be in a parade Saturday. They will represent 85 companies.

'Razz Sheet' Names 'Rebel Yell' Staff

The annual "razz" sheet, a tabloid publication produced by University of Pittsburgh students, has made its appearance on the campus as a feature of graduation week. Faculty, students and fraternities are all hit by its "exposes" of this and that. One of the first page features of the paper published as "Pitt's Dink" is a "revelation" of the publishers of the "Rebel Yell," anonymous liberal publication, which has appeared several times during the year on the campus.

Those responsible for the "Yell," according to the "Dink," are:

"Teitelbaum, Grumet, Tronzo, Kaplan, McDowell, Wasson, Mosco and Robins."

'Show Boat' Girl Asks $250,000 Balm

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—Dinorah Castillo, who was in the chorus of "Show Boat," today had petitioned the Supreme Court to appoint her mother as her guardian.

At the same time, the mother, Mrs. Anna Castillo, made a motion to examine Henry S. Carrington before trial, disclosing a $250,000 suit for alleged breach of promise to marry, which she started against the wealthy broker several months ago. In a supplementary suit, the mother asked $50,000 for loss of her daughter's services.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

William Pfarr
On vacation.
Dear Bill:

During your vacation you ought to drop down to West End Park and see the flowers. Neil McCullum, former superintendent, planted them. Versed in flower lore and with Shakespeare a hobby, he sent to England and elsewhere for seeds of all the flowers the Bard of Avon mentioned in his books—and they now blossom and bloom in the West End.

Neil is dead, but his son, Donald, carries on, with cuckoo buds, cowslip, eglantine, dead men's fingers, daisies and the rest profusely growing.

Incidentally, there's a flag pole in the park, and when Donald, now superintendent, was a boy, he decided to use the ball on top as a target. He riddled it full of holes. Now the bees have utilized the hollow ball as a home, exiting through the holes Donald made.

While you're in New York, invite some pole sitter to try his luck on this one.

Martha Washington, prominent socially when George was president, liked silver candlesticks. She also was very fond of some of the ancestors of Ezra Young, 88-year-old young man who lives in his big home in Shields, near Sewickley. Martha made a present to the Youngs of old, a pair of beautiful silver candle-sticks. Mr. Young still has them. He's proud of them and a 200-year-old piano, perhaps the oldest in the land. In his home, however, there are many other marvels.

A friend paid him a visit the other day. The kindly Mr. Young showed him over the place, exhibited the antiques and show pieces he, once the manager of the old Expo in Allegheny, now prizes. But the friend was impressed, most of all, by this:

With his own hands, Mr. Young had devised ala Rube Goldberg a piece of cord by which he could, when in bed, control the electric light without getting up.

"It's good legal practice to be paid for arguing," he explains.

Arthur Chapman and Lee Curran, a couple of newspapermen, dropped in to see Mrs. Mary Reddington, the 96-year-old grandma of Peter Higgins, who knocks them cold with that tenor voice. They dropped into chairs (they were asked) and like all curious people looked around the room while they awaited the arrival of their hostess.

On the wall was framed "Out Where the West Begins" the well known poem.

"You see," Chapman explained, apologetically, "My dad wrote that and I haven't seen a copy in a long time."

Claire Wingerson, Glenshaw citizen, the other afternoon was driving about without any particular destination in mind. Coming to a crossroads in the rural district of Butler County, he espied a farm lad perched on a fence rail. Stopping his car he inquired of the boy:

"Where's this road go to, boy?"

To which the boy replied:

"I reckon it don't go nowheres, mister, it just stays here all the time."

So Long,
ED. PRENDERGAST.

NEW YORK, June 11.

Just back from Washington. Had a nice chat with President Hoover. He's looking fine, and in awful good humor. Had the pleasure of keeping Senator Dave Reed waiting till Mr. Hoover and I went over all the different "propositions." Dave will vote for the tariff. He is only waiting to be begged. About a week from Saturday Mr. Hoover is going to let off, for good behavior, about 400 of his handicaps, but is going to keep 96 of the worst ones in, and make 'em listen to Senator Johnson during those crisp Washington days of July.

Yours,
WILL.

Anne Advances When Janet Resigns Her Position

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Larry Eaton, president of the Eaton Advertising Agency, is puzzled by the strange actions of his secretary, Janet Andrews, who has been in his employ for five years. When Miss Andrews starts to cry while taking dictation from him, Eaton allows her to go home for the rest of the day. Eaton then decides to get a new secretary. He plans to give Miss Andrews a long leave of absence and get pretty Anne Murdock to work in her place. Miss Murdock is secretary to the vice president of the concern. When Anne hears about the proposed change she is delighted. Anne proves that she can do the new work efficiently. Anne's sister, Kathleen, announces to the family that she has a new job as chorus girl. Her father disapproves. Ted O'Hara, who works with the agency, loves Ardeth and wants her for his wife. She explains to him that she prefers a business career.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

A day or so later Anne telephoned Janet Andrews and, finding she was still in town, made an engagement with her for that evening.

Janet, as trimly utilitarian at home as she was in the office, went with her around the corner to one of those dimly lighted basements which provide music and a plate dinner.

"I want to consult you," Anne told her, over coffee. "Oh, just office routine. Every man has his own way of wanting things run. I hate to make more mistakes than I can help."

She asked her questions and Janet answered, grudgingly at first, and then, as she looked at Anne's friendly face, more openly.

"Is—is he well?" was what Janet wished to know in her turn as they walked back to her home.

"The chief?" Anne looked at her, astonished. "Why, I suppose so. He seems fine."

"He gets overtired," Janet explained, "and then he sometimes takes cold. When he works in the office at night I generally get one of the porters to go out and bring in malted milk or something. He doesn't know where it comes from half the time, but he drinks it just the same."

Going Away
Will Not Return to The Agency

"I see," said Anne, and made a mental note. Surely, she thought the chief could take care of himself! But, of course, if he were used to these extra attentions she'd certainly see to it that they were forthcoming.

Janet went on talking, warning Anne against certain importunate callers who had a way of trying to get past the desk, telling her, a little feverishly, of Eaton's like and dislikes.

Anne thought, amused: "I suppose he has to be coddled like all the others. I wonder if he really likes it."

Somehow it didn't fit in with the mental picture she had of the man—a picture which she had carried about with her for three years; which she often looked at with admiration and by which she made, unconsciously, many comparisons.

Janet's flat was well furnished, but wholly lacking in charm. Anne talked as they sat there together, while Janet indulged in her solitary relaxation of incessant cigaret smoking.

"Aren't you going away?"

Janet lighted another cigaret. "Funny to see her smoke so much," thought Anne. "She doesn't seem to be the type."

"Yes, in a day or so. I've a cousin who has a farm up near Albany. I've planned to go to her," Janet answered. Suddenly her eyes filled. She crushed out the just-lighted cigaret on a standing ashtray. "I won't be coming back—to the agency," she said slowly. "He doesn't want me."

Unusual Advice
Friend Tells Janet to Fall in Love

"But Janet," argued Anne, trying to make her words and tone carry conviction, "of course you'll come back. You'll get well up there and— Why, the chief can't get along without you!"

Janet tried to smile. "Yes, he can," she contradicted. "He'll forget to miss me, after a little. And you"—she looked directly at the younger girl—"you'll get the position, Anne. That's one reason why I've been trying to give you little hints about things it would take you a long time to learn, but which mean a lot to his comfort."

Anne asked, with clever directness: "If you should not return would you be angry if—if I did get the job?"

"No, not angry," Janet laid one unsteady hot hand on Anne's. "Take care of him," was all she said.

Then they talked of other things until Anne rose to go. Janet went to the door with her.

"I shan't wait for my dismissal," she said. "I shall send in my resignation before my leave is up. I'll try for something else after a while. Meantime I've something saved."

She did not tell Anne that she had already spoken to a friend of hers, the head of a large employment agency, and that Miss Mackaye had told her: "You won't be easy to place, Janet. You've given too much to this last job. My advice is, go out and learn to play before you look for a new one. Get outside interests—and if you can—fall in love."

Loses Control
Janet Thinks of Office And Starts to Cry

Fall in love!

Janet turned back to the empty flat and started straightening chairs and cushions. Anne—Anne would get the job.

He wouldn't look at Anne, of course; not as a person, that is. He wasn't that kind. And yet—Anne, with her ardent red lips and her round, slim body and pretty hands! He wouldn't be a man if he didn't look at her sometimes.

Would any man be content with just—looking?

She went into her bedroom and stared about it dully. She must plan her packing—must formulate mentally the phrases of her dignified resignation, every word of which would be a knife in her heart.

Over the daily contact, the work that was all for him, the tense waiting for his word of approbation, the shrinking from his reception of an error, the lightness in her breast when he smiled—all over.

Suddenly she picked up a tall glass vase and flung it violently against the wall. As it shattered to the floor in a hundred tinkling pieces the tension broke within her and she flung herself across her bed, sobbing. . .

Anne Works Hard
Listens to Conversation Of the Chief

Anne, walking to the subway, though with a decent unwillingness: "So that's the reason!"

She knew Freud and Ellis no better than did Janet. But she needed no books to tell her what was the matter with the older woman.

"Poor thing," she thought, disturbed and with an aching pity tempered with the wholesome

Pitt Senior Co-Eds Crowning Their Queen

FANNIE MAE CHARLESWORTH CROWNING GRACE HAZEL AUSTEN QUEEN OF INCOMING PITT SENIOR CLASS CO-EDS

PITT SENIORS CROWN QUEEN

Withall the pomp and ceremony that could ever have featured the coronation of a real queen in the Old World, senior women at the University of Pittsburgh invested Grace Hazel Austen with the queenship of the student body.

The coronation, held in the Heinz House, was marred somewhat by the heavy rain, which made it necessary to eliminate the procession from State Hall to the scene of the coronation.

Supporters of the Queen were Emma Brown and Katherine Maneval. The retiring queen, Mabel Grace, was supported by Anna Louise Semmelrock and Marguerite Davis. Music for the event was furnished by a choir of women students.

Self-Inflicted Stab Wounds Kill Man

Stab wounds in the chest which, according to police, were self-inflicted, today caused the death of Anthony Toph, 49, of 1916 Lithgow street, North Side. Toph died in St. John's Hospital, where he was taken after the stabbing Sunday afternoon. The coroner's report stated that the man had been in ill health.

STATE BAKERS ELECT LATUS

BEDORD, Pa., June 11.—C. C. Latus, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected secretary of the Pennsylvania Bakers' Association, at the twenty-second annual convention held here. H. B. McNeal, of Pittsburgh, served as a member of the nominating committee. Horace W. Crider, of Homestead, who recently retired as president of the Western Pennsylvania Bakers' Association, after heading that organization for 13 years, was honored at the annual banquet last night.

About 350 bakers were present from all parts of the state attending the convention in the Bedford Springs Hotel. At the banquet last night, William E. Seaman, of Hamburg, the retiring president, was presented with a clock. The convention will close today with a business session and finals in the golf tournament. The tournament started with R. T. Hambleton, of Pittsburgh, in charge.

TRIMBLE HEADS ALUMNI GROUP

The Pitt Engineering and Mining Alumni Association heard John Weber, superintendent of engineering and business manager of the University, read a report on the advance in construction of the new Cathedral of Learning and elected officers at their luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday.

According to Weber, the stone work should reach the top of the building by fall. Stone now is set from the fourth to the seventeenth floors, other stone being ready for laying as high as the twenty-sixth floor. The building is expected to be entirely enclosed, stone work, brick backing, and installation of windows and glazing by next spring.

Officers for the coming year were elected at the luncheon. W. F. Trimble was made president, D. W. Pollock, vice president; J. E. McLean, secretary-treasurer; W. M. Bradshaw, O. Bright, H. L. Fullerton and C. W. Bidinger were elected to the executive committee.

Fluid Blast Burns Man in Warehouse

Richard Shipp, 26, of 214 Elwyn avenue, Overbrook, was in the South Side Hospital today with burns suffered last night in an explosion in the basement of the Terminal Warehouse, South Third street and Terminal way.

A tank of inflammable fluid in the basement occupied, firemen said, by a chain grocery exploded. Showered by the burning fluid, Shipp suffered burns about the body. Firemen extinguished the blaze with a loss estimated at $100.

RIGID PARKING BAN DISCUSSED

Solve the downtown traffic situation by prohibiting parking during business hours on all principal thoroughfares in the business district. This was the suggestion discussed informally by members of Council in committee sessions yesterday. All favored drastic action to improve traffic conditions.

The parking evil came up during a discussion of a proposition to authorize the Better Traffic Committee to employ a new traffic engineer at a salary of $7,500 a year and provide for trained assistants.

Parking on Wood street had resulted yesterday in a complete halting of traffic during the morning hours, said Councilman Robert Garland. When other councilmen agreed they had observed similar conditions downtown, he added:

"Eventually Pittsburgh must prohibit parking on all the principal downtown streets. Los Angeles is doing this and other cities have similar measures under consideration. When the streets are open as a result of non-parking, the traffic question largely will take care of itself."

Builders 'Imported' By Ford to Get O. K.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP.)—Labor Department officials indicated today it was probable the two English artisans brought to this country by Henry Ford to set up an ancient English cottage at Dearborn, Mich., would be permitted to enter the country after a special hearing, to be held before the secretary of labor.

ARGUE OVER SUCCESSOR TO MARSH

Pitt Man Reported Slated; Backers Asked to Name Source of Extra Money

Council today will consider an ordinance adding $7,500 to the city's annual payroll by increasing the salaries of two jobs and creating another in the traffic bureau.

The measure would increase the pay of traffic engineer from $5,000 to $7,500; assistant engineer from $3,000 to 4,000, and add a traffic planner at $4,000.

The $5,000 job, vacant more than a month, was formerly filled by Burton W. Marsh, who resigned to accept a similar position with the city of Philadelphia paying $7,500 a year. Donald P. McNeil is the assistant engineer.

ACTION HELD UP

Action on the bill was deferred yesterday when R. J. Alderdice and Robert Garland at a meeting of the Finance Committee asked more information as to who was to get the vacant position and where the money was coming from to pay the additional payroll costs.

While no name was mentioned in yesterday's discussion there were reports Marsh would be succeeded by L. W. McIntyre, professor of engineering at University of Pittsburgh, who as a member of the Better Traffic Committee, was closely associated with Marsh.

In asking approval of the ordinance, President of Council John S. Herron said the increase for the engineer was justified because the man to be selected had the unanimous indorsement of the Better Traffic Committee and "was head and shoulders above every engineer in Pittsburgh.

GARLAND QUESTIONS RAISE

Garland pointed out Council should have a letter from the Better Traffic Committee explaining the proposed employe's qualifications, and stating whether the additional funds would come from the committee's budget or from Council's contingent fund. Alderdice concurred, and Garland added:

"Not a week goes by since the budget was closed without new men being added to the payroll. The committee ought to come in and tell Council what the plans are. We can get a man well qualified to do the work for $5,500 or $6,000."

Garland recalled that Marsh offered to remain here if he was raised to Philadelphia's offer of $7,500, and resigned only when he was told that the maximum he could expect was $6,000.

HERRON RESENTFUL

Herron resented Council's refusal to accept him as the Better Traffic Committee's spokesman and said he would bring in the entire 50 members to assure Council of its recommendations.

He yielded to the suggestion of George J. Kambach that a letter from the committee would be sufficient, after Kambach had warned against inviting deficits by incurring expense without knowing funds were available.

Boys Blame Street Car For Arrest in Holdup

Two 17-year-old boys were in the toils of the law today because they lacked an automobile following the alleged holdup of a pedestrian at Roup Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad last night.

The two, Larry Vojtko, of Sherryman street, and William Wodkowski, of Talbot avenue, both of Braddock, boarded a street car after they were alleged to have robbed Oliver Courtwright, 60, of 8450 Dearsaw street, of $2. Courtwright followed the pair and saw them board the car.

Half an hour later police arrested the boys as they alighted from the car at Penn and Highland avenues.

An armed thug who obtained $90 in the holdup last night of the Arch Pharmacy, at 701 Arch street, was being sought by police today.

H. Lipman, the proprietor, and has clerks, William Hasbaly and Mabel Hays, were ordered to throw up their hands by the robber while he looted the cash register. A man, whose name police did not learn, was in a telephone booth at the time, unaware of the robbery.

BANK ROBBERS' CAR SEIZED; PUSH HUNT

Police Find Auto Abandoned After $2,039 Holdup; Thug Shot, Bullet Hole Hints

Recovery of the automobile used by the trio who yesterday held up three messengers for the East End Savings and Trust Company, today spurred police and detectives in their search for the holdup men. A bullet hole in the rear of the machine bears out the possibility one of the bandits was wounded in making his escape.

The car used in the robbery had been abandoned in Alder street, East End. It was found this morning by a policeman making his rounds, about 2:30 o'clock, but had not been on the street when the officer passed an hour earlier. The machine, owned by E. E. Tallack, of 5810 Kentucky avenue, had been stolen from in front of his home Monday night.

The automobile was used by the three robbers, who obtained a satchel containing $2,039 from the messengers as they were leaving the plant of the Baur Baking Company, 6448 Penn avenue. Philip McFarland, a cashier at the baking plant, emerged just in time to see the bandits leap into their machine. He fired several shots at them as they sped away.

John Wennogle, 19, 4702 Stanton avenue, and Arthur Dilman, 19, of 1404 Morningside avenue, messengers, had left the plant after making a collection, when two of the robbers confronted them with drawn revolvers. They snatched the satchel from the messengers and ran to where their companion was holding at bay Earl Beyer, of 4121 Main street, another messenger.

The messengers said the loot consisted of the receipts of three companies and fines levied in Traffic Court.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question — Should Judge Macfarlane's vote recount board, from whose custody important documentary evidence of election fraud disappeared, be allowed to open more ballot boxes?

Mrs. Miller

MRS. J. O. MILLER, former chairman women voters, Squirrel Hill—Before other ballot boxes are opened the matter should be thoroughly investigated and the guilty persons discovered if at all possible.

MISS MAY F. KLAGES, secretary, North Side—Yes, I do think that this same board should be allowed to open more ballot boxes.

Miss Klages

Mr. Francis

HAROLD FRANCIS, business man, Mt. Lebanon—I have complete confidence in Judge Macfarlane and I feel that his board is capable and is anxious and willing to protect the interests of the voters.

WILBUR SMITH, lawyer, Morningside—It certainly seems that there is something radically wrong with the system being used by the recount board and this should be straightened out before the board is permitted to go further with the count.

Mr. Smith

GEORGE N. GROVE, business man, Mt. Lebanon—For a clean, proper and fair election I feel that all ballot boxes should be opened and counted.

Mr. Grove

MRS. ADEN FILLMORE, chairman women voters, Buena Vista—Yes, I think the board should open more ballot boxes. That seems to be the best thing to do to eliminate fraud and to bring out the truth of the matter. I think, too, that both parties should be represented by thoroughly reliable persons.

Mrs. Fillmore

QUIZ REPPERT ON NEW GRADE

Council has asked C. M. Reppert, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works, to submit a written report confirming his oral statement denying a claim by the Mackintosh-Hemphill Company, of the South Side, that the city could make a big saving in property damages by changing the grade of the proposed improvement of the contemplated Tenth Street Bridge.

Reppert explained to Council yesterday that the county engineers had first proposed a grade from Carson street to the bridge that would have called for a fill of about 11½ feet at an estimated cost of from $500,000 to $600,000.

He told Council that city engineers consulted the county engineers and representatives of Mackintosh-Hemphill Company, and changed the grade so that a fill of only seven feet would be required, and thereby saving about $250,000 for the city.

Reppert said every effort was made to effect an agreement with the company, by pointing out that the changed grade would avoid the necessity of building a ramp into the plant of the Mackintosh-Hemphill Company.

However, Reppert said, the company's engineer, John M. Rice, who is a member of the City Planning Commission, still insists on a lower grade.

UNIQUE RECORD IN DEBUT HERE

Pittsburgh tomorrow will be able to test a new phonograph record that can be thrown around, stepped on, hammered, bent almost double or held over a flame—after which treatment it will play as well as ever.

Made of a new substance known as durium, discovered by Dr. Hal T. Beans, chemistry professor at Columbia University, the record is the same size and shape as the usual 10-inch disc but is amber in color and as thin and light as cardboard.

It is handled like a weekly magazine. A new dance hit is put out each Thursday, and because of the records' lightness and shatterproof qualities, news dealers, sigar stands and other stores will be able to stock and sell them.

Durium is described thus by Dr. Beans:

"It is a liquid in its original form which is transformed by subjection to heat into an insoluble, infusible solid which combines hardness and flexibility to a remarkable degree."

Drum-processed records can be stamped out with metal dies at the speed of a printing press.

The tone of the records is full. The weekly selections are made by a committee of notables and played by popular orchestras.

"Song of the Dawn," by Phil Spitalny and his orchestra, will introduce the records to Pittsburgh. They have been on sale in the East for several months.

GAS STATIONS UNDER FIRE

The Pittsburgh Motor Club announced today it will continue to send tourists to Washington, Baltimore and the south over the Lincoln instead of the National Highway until the alleged illegal practices of several service stations between Cumberland and Hagerstown are discontinued.

This statement was sent to George G. Young, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, who petitioned the club to send its traffic over the southern route.

One garage proprietor, of Piney Grove on the National Highway, who over-charged and threatened George O. Neff, Jr., of Pittsburgh, recently, has been sentenced to 15 months in the Maryland penitentiary for assaulting another motorists in an argument over charges, Maryland state police report. The motor club complained to Capt. Harry C. Butler, of the Maryland state constabulary, concerning Norris.

COUNCIL SHIFTS ZONE LOCATION

Council has ordered an amended ordinance to change the zoning classification of property on Brownsville road at Calhoun street, to permit H. L. Linde to build a gasoline filling station.

Recently an ordinance was presented to Council that changed the classification of Brownsville road frontage from the line dividing Carrick and Mt. Oliver Borough to a line 252 feet south of Calhoun street.

Owners of five lots north of Calhoun street objected to being included in the changed classification, and the amendment ordinance was ordered.

Approval was given to an ordinance changing the classification of property in the Saw Mill Run Valley between West Liberty avenue and the former borough of Overbrook from an "A" residence and a second area district to a light industrial and a third area district.

The Planning Commission was asked to consider an ordinance changing lots Nos. 100 and 101, on the easterly side of North Aiken avenue, from a commercial to a light industrial district.

Council affirmed an ordinance changing property at the four corners of Davison and Forty-fifth streets from a residence to a commercial district.

Street Widening Projects Approved

Council has authorized the widening of McKnight street and Woodville avenue, which are to be improved at the expense of Allegheny County as extensions of Saw Mill Run boulevard.

Reunited Brothers Seek Estate of Hermits

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP.)—Two brothers, James Butler, 70, of Bird City, Kan., and James West, 68, of Marias, Mont.—reunited after a 32-year separation—presented claims in Probate Court to the $200,000 estate of two hermits who died in December, 1926.

One of the hermits, John Lynn, 72, died of pneumonia at thes hack where the pair lived. His brother, James Flynn, 70, committed suicide. A search of the shack revealed the hidden fortune.

Butler said he was sent with his brother to a Chicago orphanage when their parents died, and the brother took the name West from a family which adopted him. An investigation for the estate reunited Butler and West, who say they were cousins of the hermits.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Leovy Weds in Church

One of the most beautiful, impressive weddings of bridal June was that yesterday of attractive Elizabeth Monroe Leovy, daughter of the Frank Adair Leovys, and Roberdeau Green Annan, son of the Roberdeau Annans, of Cumberland, Md.

The ceremony took place in Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church at 5:30 o'clock with the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiating in the presence of many of the outstanding figures in Pittsburgh's social world.

Large pink peonies and delphinium and ferns in tall white standards and streamers of ribbon marked off the aisle leading to the altar with peonies and lighted cathedral candles and palms decorating the altar and the chancel.

The petite brunette bride who was given in marriage by her father looked distinctive in an exquisite gown of white chiffon fashioned with a bolero of rose point lace which also formed the brief sleeves and a simulated peplum. Her train was of lace over a train of chiffon, and her veil was of rose point and duchess lace, falling from a lace cape decorated with sprays of orange blossoms. A double strand of pearls was her only ornament and she carried a cascade of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

All the bride's attendants wore gowns of white crepe moulded to the figure to the hip line marked by two narrow circular ruffles of the same material forming a peplum. The skirts had the smart below-the-knee fullness and even hem-lines and brief cap sleeves simulated by narrow circular ruffles of the white crepe. Their hats were of delicate green horsehair, turned up in front with the matron of honor, Mrs. Clarence Stanley, and the maid of honor, Helen Leovy, both sisters of the bride, wearing darker green hats. All the bride's attendants wore green slippers to match their hats and carried sheafs of calla lilies.

Smart Gowns

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Gwinner, III, Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys, Mrs. Paul B. Dickey, all of Pittsburgh, of course, Mrs. Robert Millard of Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. Francis Callery of New York, sister of the bridegroom.

Francis Callery of New York was his brother-in-law's best man, and Clarence Stanley Frederick Gwinner, III, Kenneth Orr, Edgar K. Lowry, Samuel Casey, Stockton Gaines, John McK. Lazear, Potter Gillespie and Capt. Frederick McMahon, all of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Frank Wilson, Gene Landis and John Street, of Cumberland, Charles Cooper, of Mt. Vernon, O., and William Barker, of England, were ushers.

Many Ushers

Among the guests I saw Mrs. Frances Burke Rodgers, wearing a blue and white flowered crepe dress and a blue straw hat; Jane Allderdice, wearing white crepe, a white straw hat and a coat of quilted white silk; and Agnes Stewart, wearing a rose and beige flowered chiffon gown with a beige horsehair hat.

I noticed Mrs. T. Howe Nimick and Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., among the late arrivals and Margaret Stewart, who wore white crepe with a white wool coat and a blue baku hat.

Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon chose a gown of beige crepe and a hat of brown straw, and her daughter, Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, appeared in a gown of fleur bleue crepe and a straw hat of the same shade.

Flowered green chiffon was worn by Mrs. George A. Kelly, III, with a green hat, and a brown crepe dress and a brown hat by Elizabeth Carroll Marjorie Kimball. I noticed among the guests with Mrs. Macdonald wearing a brown and beige ensemble, Mary Carroll wore a black crepe dress and black straw hat, and Mrs. Robert D. Totten and her daughters Louise and Phyllis were there wearing dresses of red and eggshell crepe with cape collars and hats of red and eggshell straw and coats of quilted eggshell crepe.

Wedding Guests

Mrs. Mortimer Miller was among the guests as was Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., in brown crepe with a green straw hat. Mary Childs in a black ensemble, and Mrs. Jack Bissell in green satin and a green felt hat.

Mrs. James Verner Scaife looked distinctive in a gown of midnight blue chiffon with a ruffled skirt, and I saw the W. S. Dalzells, Mrs. J. Merrill Wright and Mrs. W. S. Liggett, who wore beige crepe and a brown straw hat.

Straw Popular

Mrs. Harvey Childs, III, chose a black and white ensemble, and I caught a glimpse of Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelley and Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk. Priscilla Hall, wearing a beige silk dressmaker suit and a brown straw hat, was with Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright and her daughter Harriet.

Mrs. Joseph Scribner chose a flowered chiffon gown with a brown straw hat, and Mary Shiras wore a black ensemble. Mrs. Roy A. Hunt chose black chiffon and a black straw hat.

Mrs. J. L. Dawson Painter, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, in blue crepe with a blue felt hat; Mrs. John W. Lawrence in beige crepe with a beige straw hat, and Mrs. Herbert A. May, in American beauty chiffon and a black hat, I also saw among the guests.

Others in the smart assemblage were Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, who wore red and green printed crepe, with a straw hat; Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon, in red crepe and a red straw hat; Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick, Betty Scott, in a black crepe gown with the

COTTON FABRICS POPULAR FOR AFTERNOON FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 11.—Picking cotton as the fabric for your afternoon or informal evening frock, will prove you to be a person of discrimination and good clothes sense. For, cotton materials, with organdie especially emphasized, are among the season's leaders and every collection has one, two or even more models of this crisp, friendly fabric that is so demure and pleasing to wear. Some of the models are made on clever, sophisticated lines making it possible for the more mature woman to indulge her desire for an organdie frock without having the idea that she is trying to appear coy or kittenish, for organdie is a fabric that has always been associated with the younger generation, hence its label "girlish." But in the hands of master craftsmen the essential youthfulness and fresh appeal of the material is retained, but the result is a eminently "wearable" frock for even the lady of over thirty Summers.

THE MODEL SHOWN here is by Lanvin who uses organdie in aquamarine blue with a delicate tracery of pink embroidery. Looped bretelles at either shoulder reaching down to the hips, are edged with tiny fluted ruffles. The double flounces of the bouffant skirt are cut in points and form very irregular hemlines. The bodice is slightly bloused into a narrow set-in belt.

THE SILK SUIT is liked here for cooler days and for the suit shown, Mirande has chosen black ottoman silk with white coindots, and trimmed it with a generous border of black fox. The short, flaring jacket fastens with one button. The collar, blouse and clever, pleated panel at the front of the skirt are of white georgette. Little looped tabs of the georgette trim the close-fitting sleeves at the wrists. This suit is an ideal example of the silk suit in the grand, Paris manner.

News comes from the East of a betrothal of interest to Pittsburgh folks. Mrs. Frederick Searles Armstrong, of Park avenue, New York, has made known the engagement of her younger daughter, Suzanne, to Samuel E. M. Crocker, Jr., son of the Samuel E. M. Crockers, of Manatuck Farms, Stockbridge, Mass.

Suzanne is a sister of Mrs. Beverly Randolph Shriver, of Pittsburgh, who was Elizabeth Armstrong before her marriage February 5. Marjorie Kimball was a bridesmaid at the Armstrong-Shriver wedding. I recall Suzanne is a graduate of the Ethle Walker School in Simsbury, Conn., and later attended Bryn Mawr. Several seasons ago she made her bow to Gotham society, and she is a member of the Junior League. * * *

Ken Dejected When Ardeth Gets Into His Office

CHAPTER LIV

The weeks which followed were filled for Ardeth with a strange sense of waiting. Hushed expectancy underlying the days and nights; a mysterious foreboding which set up a flutter in her heart—rising in her throat to stifle her.

Though what she waited for, she could not tell.

The desire to see Ken had been madness in the first few days. She called him up. His voice was strained and tired—even curt. He would not see her and she knew he stayed away on her account.

The resignation for which she had battled so long was gone. Bitterness welled in her heart. "Fools—fools that's what we are—standing like three figures in a chess game," she whispered to herself. "Wasting life!"

A sense of outraged justice shook through her, lashing her to madness. She was being cheated of the sweet and natural things of life the things which were her due. And she was only asking what was right—a home like Mary Eastwood had—another small Chickadee with Ken's eyes. Ken's smile.

She saw herself growing older—going through life in a prim routine thwarted, futile like Jeanette but without Jeanette's merciful ability to deceive herself.

Tom Calls

The poetry club had ended in unpoetical and feminine fireworks. Jeanette and an angular spinster were touring the country now by themselves. Jeanette Ardeth shrewdly suspected, would eventually settle in Paris and become one of the restless, acidulous, expatriated Americans which infest that good-natured city.

Wildness seized the girl when she thought of Jeanette. Oh, life for her must mean more than that!

And then, on a day when it seemed that the vicious circle would never break—Tom phoned.

Ever after, the scene was painfully clear in Ardeth's mind.

There had been little business that day, for it was early spring and pocketbooks had not as yet recovered from the heavy onslaught of Christmas. Mid-afternoon sunshine was streaming into the empty shop when the telephone pealed shrilly.

She answered languidly, her eyes idly watching the dust motes swimming in a sunbeam, but at Tom's words she was instantly alert.

"Tom! What's the matter?"

Afraid for Ken

His voice was shaking. "It isn't me. It's Ken. I just left him. Something queer, Ardeth. It had me worried after we parted and I went back to his office. The door's locked and he doesn't answer—but I'm sure he's in there and I'm afraid—I'm afraid."

Her nails were digging in her palms but she did not feel them. "Afraid?"

"Well people sort of go haywire through brooding, and Ken's been on the ragged edge lately. I'm afraid he's due for a complete breakdown, or—or—something worse. Get here quick, Ardeth. You can always do something with him."

"Where?"

"His office. I'll be waiting for you outside. Hurry."

No need to tell her to hurry. She raced to the rear room for her wraps, flinging excited directions to Ah Ling who was in there tidying the place. Out on the street she hailed a cab and sat with clenched hands mentally shoving the car ahead until it reached Ken's office and she saw the stocky figure of Tom coming toward her.

As he hurried her toward the elevator he explained. "Just as I told you—I've seen Ken going to pieces for the last few months. I've heard it, too, from several sources, but, well, we weren't as thick as we had been, you know—"

Only too well Ardeth knew that it was the thought of herself which had come between the two former friends.

"I ran into him today," Tom's low, tense voice went on. "He looked like a man in hell, Ardeth, and there was a sort of desperate edge to his talk which got me suspicious. He'd lost heavily in the stock market. Cleaned him out, I hear. And I suppose that was the last straw."

Ken Doesn't Answer

He stopped as he shoved her ahead of him into the elevator. Ardeth was shaking and in her heart a little incoherent prayer had begun. "Oh, God . . . please, God."

Down the hall, almost running to keep pace with Tom's long strides.

"Ken!" his voice was cautiously low. "I know you're in there. Let me in, old fellow."

Silence. The heavy silence of one who pretends not to be there.

At Tom's motion Ardeth put her lips close to the crack and pleaded. "Dear, it's Ardeth! Aren't you going to let us in?"

She stepped back, grasped Tom's arm and pointed to a window in an angle of the wall. "The fire escape goes under one of the windows in Ken's office. I can get in—"

"Let me—" He was beginning when her motion silenced him.

"No—I can do more with him—"

Ardeth Enters Office

She had unlatched the window as she spoke and stepped onto the fire escape. A reeling moment when she saw the city far below. Then the intense need of the moment swallowed every other emotion. She was at Ken's window—struggling to open it.

She had a glimpse of him—at the desk writing and she saw his startled face turn as she succeeded in flinging up the window.

An open drawer at the desk. The glimpse of a revolver. She was running across the room, flinging her arms about him.

"No, darling! Not that! Never that! Oh, my dearest—"

Under her touch he sagged like a man suddenly deprived of strength. He slumped into his chair which creaked sharply under his weight, his head dropped forward into his outflung arms and the sound of his smothered sobs tore the girl.

Ardeth saw what Tom had feared. Ken was broken. Utterly gone. She quickly unlocked the door and as Tom burst in she flew back to Ken.

Goal of Marriage Is a Lasting Bond of Real Loyalty, Fay King Counsels

By FAY KING

SOMEONE says it is unfair to remain married when love has flown.

Love has not flown.

It has developed into a calmer, more sane companionship. Marriage, prompted by ardent love, should grow into a beautiful partnership.

Married romance lasts when the welfare of the home and children becomes the unselfish beloved duty of affection.

Love should graduate into united loyalty, life's firmest force. Those who always seek the thrills of falling in love are only reading and re-reading the nursery rhymes of romance.

Love to life is like enthusiasm to business. It takes more than enthusiasm to succeed. It merely starts one on the road to success.

What is unfair is to so readily forsake the realities of marriage for the mirage of romance.

Madge's Nephews Arrive in Midst of Mystery

Katherine's query came so sharply and unexpectedly at the end of her recital of the unexplicable behavior of Noel and Mary, that for a second or two I could only gaze at her wide-eyed but mute.

"How can I make anything of it," I evaded, "when you and Lillian are yourselves at sea?"

"Ah!" Katherine gibed. "The modest violet by the stone, the primrose by the river's brim, and all the rest of the retiring flora have nothing on our Marguerite. I know that's a most awful pun and you can slay me at your leisure for it—some other time. Just now I'm interested in the question of Noel and Mary. Suppose I explain in monosyllables—more or less. Lil and I can't see this thing. Why? For we've been too near to it. You've just met it. Your point of view would be a fresh one. Then, too, you have been known to hide a keen thought in your head once in a great while. So—get me?"

"Mary would tell you, 'thanks for the lettuce sandwich,'" I told her, smiling. "But that doesn't alter the fact that I have no contribution to make to this problem, except—that I agree with you the letters probably did not come from Jack Leslie. Noel has too much sense to keep anything like that from Harry Underwood when he knows that Harry has undertaken to round up Leslie."

"I notice you don't mention Mary's common sense in the matter," Katherine commented.

"Oh! Mary!" I retorted impatiently. "Does one ever know what that child is going to do next? That's part of her charm, I suppose, the artistic temperament, and all the rest of it, and she is the most lovable youngster in the world—you know how fond of her I am, but her thoughts and plans are provokingly elusive."

"That's because they are so changeable," Katherine said. "I doubt that the child knows one day what her course will be on the morrow. But that doesn't alter the fact that both Mary and Noel are so tensely wrought up over something—probably the letters that I'm worried about the consequences to Noel, at least. But at any rate, I have him safely out here."

"Yes," I agreed somewhat despondently. "But are you sure it's a wise move? You know what a houseful I'm going to have—those nephews of Dicky's—Lillian said they wouldn't disturb Noel."

"No," Katherine grinned, "she said they'd be good for him. They'll probably disturb him a lot, but that's what he needs to get away from this half-hysterical worry about Mary, and whatever else he's threshing over in his mind. If he can get a healthy mad on concerning your nephews I'll be mighty glad. It'll be tough on you, old dear, but for my purpose I hope Mary's brothers are regular hellions."

I recalled her wish uneasily two days later when a wire from Dicky announced that the Harrison boys were in New York and that he would bring them out with him on the evening train.

At my first sight of them, however, descending from the train with Dicky while Junior tugged me frantically toward them, I felt ashamed of my misgivings. Three well-set up lads they were, manly in their appearance.

It was upon the way home with Dicky driving, Roderick and Junior in the seat beside him and William and Henry in the rear seat with me, that I heard William murmer:

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

What She "Sees in Him"

When you see a pair of starry-eyed young things standing at the altar, promising "forever and forever," you sometimes wonder just "what he sees in her" or "what on earth she sees in him!"

But, what a woman sees in a man when she marries him is—nobody's business!

It may be that she sees the fulfillment of her dreams—and it may be merely that she sees an end to her doubts and a chance to stop worrying about "getting married."

It may be that she sees a Prince Charming or a Sir Galahad—a knight in shining armor; or it may be only that she see "Mrs." on her calling cards, a vindication of her attractions, and a chance to put over a show wedding and prove to her friends that she could DO it.

* * *

It may be that she sees "God's Gift to Women"—and it may be that she sees merely the future father of her future children, someone to name her first boy after—and to blame the children's faults on.

* * *

It may be that she sees a fascinating "man about town," the Perfect Escort and ideal dinner-companion; or it may be that she sees merely a man-about-the-house, to punctuate the day and make the dinner worth getting. Something to break the silence besides the ticking of the clock and the purring of the cat. Something to wake up for mornings and to WAIT up for nights.

* * *

It may be that she sees in him a "haven" or it may be that she sees in him an ESCAPE—someone to "take her out of it all." A release from parental restriction or from the monotony of the daily grind and the office desk.

* * *

Or just as escape from HERSELF—someone else to think about and plan for and LIVE for!

It may be that she sees in him a life-companion, a pal, or "an answer to prayer." Or it may be that she sees only an adventure, a new experiment, or the means of getting a new "kick" out of life.

It may be that she sees in him a Conquering Hero or a devastating cave-man. Or it may be that she sees in him merely someone to mother, to nurse, to bully or to "reform;" someone whose socks need darning, whose digestion needs watching, whose backbone needs stiffening, and whose money or whose soul needs saving.

You never can TELL when you see a woman standing at the altar-rail and gazing into a man's eyes what she may be seeing in him or through him. More women marry a man for what they see THROUGH him than for what they see IN him!

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

some scorn of a youngster who has not yet been deeply stirred by life. "Poor thing. Why are women such fools?"

Couldn't they keep sex out of it save as a useful weapon? She wondered if they couldn't realize that the man was only the symbol of the earned income. Couldn't they see him as merely a means to an end?

During the following week in Eaton's office Anne worked hard, marked much and caught one intimate glimpse of the caliber of the man. She was in her own room when Joe Brown, one of the copywriters and a friend of O'Hara's, came into the chief's office.

"Sit down, Joe," invited Eaton. "I want to talk to you about your copy for the Garden Silk people. Are you satisfied with it yourself?"

Brown's answer followed after a perceptible hesitation. "No, I'm not, Mr. Eaton," he said.

"What do you think is the matter with it?" asked Eaton. "To my mind, it's good-enough routine work—solid stuff—but it hasn't any vitality. Not an atom of punch. It hasn't the quality which lifted your work for the Dayton crowd, so far above average."

"You've wonderful hunches, Joe. You've a good command of the written language. You know what the public wants to read, and you can sock 'em in the eye, arrest their attention. You know people. Your dealer work in the Dayton instance was great."

Eaton Proves Self

"You've a big future. You've proved it again and again. But something has been wrong for the last month. What is it? Don't you like the work—or what?"

"I do," Brown told him. "I'm crazy about it, but—I'm shot, Mr. Eaton. My mind isn't on the job. I'm mechanical; I haven't any pep. I—oh, I know what's the matter, all right," he said, boyish and ill at ease and unhappy.

"What, then?" asked Eaton.

"It—it's a personal matter," Brown burst out despairingly. "Just one of those intimate things that play the deuce with a man's job. I'm—I'm nearly off my head, Mr. Eaton. I can't eat, I can't sleep, I can't work." He added dully, "But I can't tell you about it. If it means the loss of my job I can't tell you. And I deserve to be fired. I've let you down badly."

Anne's heart was beating furiously. She knew something of the canker that gnawed into young Brown's brain. Ted had told her. Brown, a decent boy, had fallen in love with a woman some years his senior, and married.

It was useless for his intimates to tell him he'd get over it, to point out the error of his ways. He loved her with all the depth of a boy's passionate attachment.

After a pause Anne heard Eaton reply gravely.

"You needn't tell me. I understand enough to know whatever it is it's giving you a bad time. You're a good man and we don't want to lose you. We cannot see your future—and our own future depends upon the work of men like yourself—wrecked because of some emotional unbalance."

Accepts Job

"I suggest that you take six months' vacation, Joe, with full pay. Go abroad, go West, go anywhere, and fight your battle. Then come back to us and tell me if you think you can go on again, giving us the best that is in you."

"Don't try. We've all been up against it sometime, one way or another. Good-bye, Joe, and good luck."

A moment later Brown passed through Anne's office without seeing her, so dimmed were his eyes. But his face was lighted with a new hope, with returning confidence in himself and in his star. And Anne's eyes were equally misty. She thought, "He's more than a great business man after all, he's a man."

This was his human side, the side which made him beloved, not for his business capabilities but for himself, his understanding of his associates, and a side of him which showed a response to emotional appeal.

In his office Eaton sat thinking of the boy who had just left him. He had heard rumors, vague but enough to give him something to go on. Sex, the primal hunger, the impetus to progress and sometimes the obstacle. Sex and a man's needs. First passion and its demands.

He sighed, his face suddenly lined and altered. Well, if he'd needed—excitement, the thrill of pursuit, the aventuring chase, he'd sublimated it in his work—almost—but not quite.

When some weeks had passed Eaton spoke to Anne.

"Miss Andrews has sent me her resignation," he told her. "Would you care to carry on with me, Miss Murdock? There'll be an advance in salary. You've done excellent work and even in this short time I've grown to depend on you. I'll speak to Mr. Sanders, if it's a bargain. Is it?"

Anne Excited

Then, feeling that she had been a trifle informal in her acceptance of the advancement, she managed a brief speech of gratitude and a promise to work hard and well. But Eaton cut her short, reluctantly, for he enjoyed watching her expressive face, her lovely eyes.

"It's all right, then. I warn you, I'm a slave driver," he said, and laughed.

As she went into her office he thought how pleasant it was to have a secretary so soothing to the eyes. He had not missed beauty in Janet Andrews, but he appreciated it in Anne Murdock. He liked the way she walked, the way she carried her shining head; he liked watching her hands, capable, well-cared for, prettily modeled. He liked her voice and her manner and her way of anticipating his needs before he himself was aware of them. He liked her. And he found himself looking forward to seeing her every day.

Anne sat down at the desk—her desk now—and tried to control the rapid pulsing of her heart. Another step up the ladder. An office of her own.

But as exhilarating as office and salary and title was the thought of working permanently with Eaton, in intimate daily contact with him.

She saw that her hands were shaking. She felt an impulse toward laughter or tears. She shook herself mentally, pulled herself together. Such hysteria wasn't like her. Even a better job was no excuse, she told herself severely.

Chief Is Restless

Of course, it was the thought of the job which excited her, the job which was a sign and seal of success. The job and not the man, after all. The man was a symbol, also. Yet, as she sat there and heard him moving about the inner room with his light sure step, and felt her heart thud heavily, she was aware of a sudden misgiving, a creeping doubt, a frail but frightening wonder, a warning admission of his growing physical attraction for her.

She turned to her work again, settling her full lips firmly. This was dangerous nonsense, she admitted to herself. Of course, she admired Mr. Eaton, admired him greatly, but that was all.

But as her pulse steadied, she was aware of an ironic hoot of laughter somewhere in the back of her brain. Had Janet Andrews once reasoned in the same manner, "but that was all?"

Poor Janet, whom she had thought so sexless, had permitted her sex to run away with her sanity. Anne felt an unspoken challenge in that diagnosis of Janet's failure. Was it not possible for a woman to work with a man, with a dangerously attractive man, even, and still find herself more worker than woman?

She thought it was, and went back to her typing and did not know that Lawrence Eaton, listening, half-consciously, to the rapid staccato to which business is tuned, sighed a little and smiled a little and wondered why he was suddenly so restless and yet so unwontedly content.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Good Health Is an Asset Worth While

It is surprising and encouraging how much health propaganda we see and hear these days. From the newspapers, on the radio, in the pulpit, go admonitions to all for right living.

(DR COPELAND)

Health has positive qualities. "Health is wealth." Health certainly is wisdom! Health is a condition of well-being of buoyant life and vitality and no one can afford to neglect it.

The value of proper living lies in promoting better health, and these are no mere words. We just have to live properly in order to maintain good health.

The summer is an excellent time to get one's self in good shape for the winter when cold mists blow in from the sea, and east chill winds howl down the chimneys. Sudden changes of temperature in the autumn days bring rainy weather and wet feet after balmy days when light clothing is the vogue. Colds dispose us to easy infection if we have not built for health in the meantime.

Everyone should build up resistance to disease to sudden weather changes by good, vigorous exercise every day in the out-of-doors and sunshine. You can do it, and I can do it, no matter where we are. It just takes perseverance and stick-to-itiveness.

These preventive measures for health mean constant habits of right living. It does not mean too long a tramp one day, and none the next. Over-indulgence in food or drink one night, and none the next. When we once have health, we must keep it.

Our doctors will help and do help immeasurably. But our fates are surely in our own hands. No physician can promise to cure every ailment we have, but he can help in preventing it.

Having a thorough physical examination at least once a year is not an entirely new idea. Thousands pursue this course every year, with the result that health promotion and the prevention of disease are intelligently conducted affairs. Your doctor, consulted in time, prevents many an ailment that you may never know of. By consulting him you are conserving your health, and also you are in line to be cured of any incipient disease which may be lurking in the background.

This matter of consulting your family doctor in order to conserve your own health and your family's health does another thing. In the case of a patient who finds upon examination that he has some incurable physical defect, he is able to take better care of himself, and worries less under the guiding hand of his physician than he possibly could when "lurking in the shadows of the morbidly unseen."

The moral of this is, see your family doctor often for his counsel and a physical examination, and so conserve your good health. Make yourself physically fit by an out-of-doors life during the long summer days. The conservation of health is "up to you."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is graduating from high school soon. When he ordered his cards for his invitations he asked me whether he should have Mr. Daniel G. Leighton, or just Daniel G. Leighton. I told him that on a man's business card the "Mr." should be omitted, but never from his social card. I thought I was telling him correctly, but when the cards came yesterday he was the only one to have "Mr." Now I am worried and want him to get others if I was wrong. MOTHER.

Your advice was correct and it is the correct form for your son's visiting cards to have the title of "Mr." before the name. Stick to your guns and do not have the cards changed.

Or, at least, if you do have them changed, spell out the middle name or omit the initial. It is not good form on visiting cards to use initials or any other abbreviations that can be avoided. But the "Mr." should be there. On business cards, as you said, it usually is omitted, but on social cards in this country the "Mr." should be engraved on a gentleman's cards, even the cards of a young gentleman.

In Reply to 'Thank You'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a young man is holding the door for a girl, is it correct for him to say, "You're welcome" when the girl thanks him?

2. If a young man tells a girl that he is glad he has met her, what should the girl reply? K.

1. Yes, but as a matter of fact it is enough if he bows his appreciation of her expression of thanks.

2. "Thank you. I am glad to have met you, too," or "Thank you. I am happy to have met you, too."

Household Hints

Left-overs of veal or chicken that are too small or irregular in shape to do for direct service may be made quite elegant in appearance as meat cakes. Trim carefully all bits of gristle or bone. Run through a meat chopper or mince finely.

One cup chopped chicken or veal, one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons cream, one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons fine bread crumbs.

Mix together and roll into small balls, then flatten. Dust lightly with flour and fry in butter over a medium flame.

A man who spends a lifetime building up or creating an estate should and does have the right to dictate the disposition of his estate after his decease. Yet, many a man neglects to make a will, and as a result those near and dear to him often suffer.

When a man dies without a will his estate is distributed under the Intestate Laws of the state, and, while these laws are framed to handle the matter in the most fair and impartial manner, it is manifestly impossible in this way to interpret and carry out the exact wishes of the testator.

Every man should make a will. Most of us have belongings of some value, and we should make sure these go to those whom we are most anxious to benefit and safeguard. It is highly important that every man, whether his estate be large or small, provide for the distribution of his belongings after his death.

Then the question arises of "How shall we make a will?" Often the simplest will is the best. We frequently hear of a will being probated that consists of less than a score of words. Yet these brief wills, while they were perfectly clear in the minds of the makers, are often capable of an entirely different interpretation when read by strangers. The one best and sure way is to draw the will with the aid of your attorney. Quite often wills are drawn in which the bank itself is named by the testator as executor of the estate and the testator's personal attorney, who knows his affairs best, is brought in by the Trust Company as counsel. A clause is generally written into the will which gives the bank discretionary power to change certain features of the will to meet the needs of the beneficiaries in the case of emergency, and in this event the bank acts as it feels the deceased would have done had he or she been living.

As Register of Wills of Allegheny County, I am familiar with the heartaches and griefs that have been caused by the lack of wills and by faulty wills—such as deathbed wills, so-called "homemade" wills and similar writings that are so often the subject of successful legal attack. Aged mothers, widows and orphans are many times left in actual want, while a substantial part of an estate rightfully theirs is diverted elsewhere.

It is the purpose of this series to bring home to the public the extreme importance not only of making a will, but of being sure that the will is properly drawn. In the story which will appear next Wednesday, I will attempt to answer some of the questions which are being so frequently asked regarding executors and the growing disposition to use the facilities of Trust Companies in that capacity.

Santa Claus HAS NOT gone into the Gasoline Business

Maybe Santa Claus does give you a break on Christmas and maybe you do get something for nothing then. But the other 364 days Santa Claus can't be found—and you get only what you pay for.

Always remember that there are two decidedly different things—regular gasoline selling at no increase in price and special motor fuels selling at a premium. And remember that The American Oil Company makes both types and can speak without prejudice—without pretending that Santa Claus is on our side.

Let's take "Regular Gas" First

We will not say that you can get something for nothing. Orange American Gas, selling at regular gas price, will not give real special motor fuel performance and we won't say that it will. It is made from the best crudes. It is refined by the most modern methods. It will give you better performance than any other product in its price class—and that's saying a lot. But we can't go any further without roping in Santa Claus.

Now let's consider "Special Motor Fuels"

There never has been a regular-priced gasoline or even a motor fuel, that can deliver performance like that of Amoco-Gas. Until you've used it you don't know what a real special motor fuel is. And one feature that has made Amoco-Gas so popular is that it actually costs less per mile. It gives you more miles to each gallon. It reduces operating expenses by reducing repair bills. And it increases the trade-in value of your car.

Amoco-Gas costs more per gallon—costs less per mile

If you pay regular gasoline price you get regular gasoline performance. If you choose carefully, you get the best buy in that price class, Orange American Gas.

If you want motor fuel performance it will cost you more per gallon. But if you get Amoco-Gas—and get real special motor fuel performance—while it will cost more per gallon, it will cost less per mile.

When someone tells you you can get a special motor fuel at the price of Orange American Gas—or that you can buy a regular gas or a special motor fuel that will give you the same results as Amoco-Gas at a lower price—stick your tongue in your check, say "Who are you anyway, Santa Claus?", and keep heading straight for the Amoco-Gas or Orange American Gas pump---and better results.

ALL ALIEN BIDS FOR BIG TITLE FAIL

Tradition is another thing that lines up on the side of Jack Sharkey and adds its weight to the dope pointing to a victory for the former member of Uncle Sam's Navy in tomorrow night's big Queensberry debate in New York. For since the world heavyweight fistic championship first became indisputably the property of this country, no fighter wearing the American colors has gone down to defeat in a real international battle involving the title. It was in a bout of that character that Gene Tunney scored his last triumph in defense of the crown before hanging up his gloves, and prior to Tunney's reign all other American defenders repulsed every attempt by foreign challengers to carry away the honors.

Gene Tunney.

Two of the earlier battlers who succeeded in winning the championship were not natives of the United States, these being Bob Fitzsimmons and Tommy Burns, but they made their homes in this country before and after winning the title, became American citizens, and were in every sense American champions.

THE ONLY INTERNATIONAL heavyweight title tilt not actually won by the American champion competing was that between John L. Sullivan and Charley Mitchell at Chantilly, France, in 1888, but Sullivan was not defeated, the fight being called a draw after 39 rounds. Mitchell was again the foreign entry in the next international championship contest, and was knocked out by Jim Corbett in three rounds at Jacksonville, Fla., in 1894.

Tommy Burns, after defeating Marvin Hart for the title in 1906 bowled over a string of easy ones, such as Bill Squires, Jack Palmer, Jem Roche, Jewey Smith and Bill Lang, and later Jack Johnson pushed over Victor MacLaghlen and Andre Spoul, but another international championship battle worthy of the name was fought until Jack Dempsey met Georges Carpentier, knocking out the Frenchman in the fourth round at Jersey City in 1921.

TWO YEARS LATER, Luis Firpo came from the Argentine to challenge Dempsey, only to be kayoed in the second round of a thrilling slugfest in New York. American honors were again upheld in the same city in 1926, when Tom Heeney, Australian challenger, was stopped by Tunney in 11 rounds.

Jack Dempsey.

No title was at stake when Sharkey beat Phil Scott in the Miami fiasco last February, but tomorrow night the championship will go with victory, and the sailor seems likely to continue the run of American success by defeating his German opponent, Max Schmeling.

TEMPORARILY, at least, the incapacitation of Chick Hafey and Ernest Orsatti has saved George Fisher from a trip back to the minors. What will happen next Monday, when every big league club must reduce to 25 players, is another question, but for the present Fisher, who was ticketed for the sticks, is hanging on to his job because the Cardinals are short-handed in the outfield and are forced to keep him. Fisher is alternating with Homer Peel at one of the outfield posts, while George Watkins, also a reserve, is occupying another, Taylor Douthit being the only regular flychaser now patrolling his beat.*

THE CARDS ARE the latest victims of the jinx that hit the Pirates, Giants, Cubs, Athletics and other clubs hard this year. Hafey is out with ailing eyes, Orsatti with an injured ankle, Frankie Frisch with a spiked foot, and Charley Gelbert with a charley horse, while Jim Bottomley got back only recently and is still handicapped by a damaged thumb.

To make matters worse, the pitching staff went blooey as soon as the Red Birds hit the road. Only twice in the last 16 contests has a St. Louis pitcher finished the game he started. In both instances the hurler to go the route was Jess Haines, and he lost each time, first to the Cubs and next to the Giants.

PITTSBURGHERS ATTENDING THE Shrine convention in Toronto, Ont., this week will see in competition and have a chance to pull for a girl athlete of this city, who will take part in the athletic events to be held in conjunction with the gatherings. This fair athlete is Miss Virginia Reese, of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

Virginia Reese.

The local girl will team up with Miss Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, world champion feminine sprinter, and two other lassies of the New York Central System to make up the New York Central relay team and compete in the international relay event against the champion four of the Millrose Athletic Association and two champion Canadian teams.

MISS REESE is well known in local track circles and holds the girl's sprinting championship of this district at several distances. It will be interesting to watch the performance of the Pittsburgh girl in teaming up with the world famous Miss Walsh and to note how she compares in competition with athletes of the quality she will encounter in the Millrose A. A. and Canadian champions. In the New York Central System track meet held in the Pitt Stadium last year, Miss Reese distinguished herself by running a very close second to Miss Walsh in the 50-yard event, her time being only one-fifth of a second slower than that of the champion. Virginia may do even better this week, as she has benefited considerably by training with Miss Walsh and her teammates for the international relay.*

IN HELPING THE PHILLIES to trip up the Cubs yesterday, Chuck Klein landed on Pat Malone for his sixteenth home run of the season and extended to 19 the string of games in which he has not failed to hit safely. However, he still is nine games from the year's major league record.

That record is 28 straight games, established by Sam Rice, of the Senators. Starting in the season's opener, Rice batted safely in every

STAGE IS SET FOR MAXIE'S 'DER TAG'

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A new "Der Tag" is just around the corner for Germany, with its Maxie Schmeling awaiting the gong that will send him into action against Jack Sharkey before a crowd of 70,000 fight-mad humans in the Yankee Stadium here tomorrow night for a million-dollar prize—the heavyweight championship of the world. Included in that throng will be no less than 20,000 to 25,000 of German extraction, anxiously hopeful for the success of the fair-haired 24-year-old youth of their Vaderland.

With the fight only a little more than 24 hours away, New York has taken on the excitement of the big fights of Jack Dempsey's time. Already thousands are here from all over the land and from foreign countries for a fistic holiday, and special trains and automobile parties will disgorge a virtual army of others tonight and tomorrow. There is more fight talk in the theatrical and hotel district than there has been in connection with any fistic feature in years.

SHARKEY HEAVY FAVORITE

The betting is light, however. Sharkey, the American champion, continues a heavy favorite, with odds close to 2 to 1, and so far little Schmeling money has made its appearance. This may be due to the fact that the Schmeling supporters—and there are many, judging from the endless arguments—are waiting for a juicy price before putting up their wads of the coin of the realm. Unless business picks up in striking fashion, the Sharkey men soon will be offering 3 to 1. It is not likely that they will go higher, for those are fancy odds for any battle between two men who are supposedly well matched.

While Sharkey left Orangeburg, N. J., after yesterday's workout and already is on the scene, Schmeling was due to leave his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., some time today and come to New York to sleep overnight at the home of a German friend. Both have a long siege of training behind them and they have come through the grind without injuries and should be fit to give their best.

Sharkey had breakfast in his room this morning after which he slipped quietly from his hotel for a stroll with his trainer, Al Lacey. Sharkey showed an inclination to keep to himself and left word that his room number be kept a secret so that he would not be bothered by visitors.

BACKERS PLAY HUNCH

Were it not for the fact that Sharkey is a notorious in-and-outer, he would be considered a sure bet to win this fight for the vacant throne hands down. He has a vast edge in the matter of experience against good opponents and is admittedly the better boxer and two-fisted puncher. Most of Schmeling's backers are playing a hunch that Sharkey may have another of his wild

NEW YORK CLUB QUARTET BEST IN GAME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Giant supporters have begun to rave about McGraw's new and truly remarkable infield. The return to the lineup of Shortstop Travis Jackson rounded out what most critics will agree is the best infield in the game.

The Terry-Critz-Jackson-Lindstrom combination surpasses anything in the game today, and few infields of the past can rank with the Giant foursome. More than 25 years ago the Pirates had a great infield in Bransfield-Ritchey-Wagner-Leach; indeed, this quartet may have been the peer of them all, although the present setup of the New York infield may challenge this contention.

Contemporary with the great Pittsburgh combination was the Chance-Evers-Tinker-Steinfeld array of the Cubs, and a bit later Connie Mack showed the fans some wonder workers in McInnis, Collins, Barry, Baker. A few years back the Pirates with Grimm, Maranville, Wright, Traynor offered the fans an infield which Pittsburgh regarded as one of the greatest. This quartet not only had consummate skill, it drew many spectators to the park on the sheer merit of their practice stunts.

John McGraw has been striving for years to find a keystone tender who would measure up to the skill of his other three stars of the infield. He finally landed his boy in Hughey Critz.

BAN ON MAX'S PILOT LIFTED

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—The State Athletic Association, reversing its previous attitude, today granted Joe Jacobs a license as a second for a period of one year. Jacobs accordingly will be chief second for Max Schmeling in the German's battle with Jack Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

The commission's action removed a possibility of last-minute friction, as Schmeling was strongly desirous of having Jacobs, his manager of choice, in his corner when he makes his bid for world heavyweight supremacy.

Jacobs' license had been revoked at a time when Schmeling was being disciplined for failing to go through with a fight with Phil Scott.

Regis Smith Local Boy, with Governors

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 11.—Regis Smith, 21, of Pittsburgh, was signed by the Charleroi Governors today as the first move in a shakeup to pull the 1929 pennant-winners out of the second division.

Smith will appear at shortstop today against Jeannette. Pilot Dave Lamb will announce a series of releases tomorrow, it was said.

Smith, second baseman with the Jimmy Smith Club, City League, Pittsburgh, was sent to Asheville, Bally League farm of the New York Yankees, last year, but was returned.

GROGAN GOLF PLAY TODAY

Three big golf events are being played today on Western Pennsylvania courses.

At the Shannopin Country Club, members of the Highland and Shannopin teams are playing individual matches to definitely decide the owners of the Grogan Cup, emblematic of club supremacy between the two neighbors, for this year. Highland won the first 18 holes of the annual 36-hole competition last month, and is out to cinch the cup for the year.

The inclement weather of yesterday made Shannopin's beautiful links just right for today's battle. After this afternoon's play has come to an end, the winner settled, the two clubs will gather about the festive board, the winning team being the guests of the losers.

At the Country Club of Pittsburgh, Section II., of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team league, is holding another match. At 10:30, the Country Club team started play against Westmoreland. Longue Vue and St. Clair opened battle at 11 o'clock, while at 11:30, South Hills teed off with Alcoma as its opponent. Longue Vue's team is leading the league at this time—but Westmoreland is hoping to overcome that advantage today.

At the Nemacolin Country Club a big field is playing in the 18-hole qualifying round of that big invitation tourney. Jimmy Devlin, home pro, and A. J. Chapman, of Wheeling, are handling the tourney.

Sharkey, in Fine Trim, Confident of Triumph

By JACK SHARKEY,
American Heavyweight Champion.

NEW YORK, June 11.—They can bring on Max Schmeling. I am ready for my 15-round bout with the German champion which will be staged at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

Jack Sharkey.

My original plans called for me to remain at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg, N. Y., until tomorrow morning. I changed my program at the last minute and popped into New York. Other than for walks and some calisthenics, I shall take things easy until I enter the ring with Schmeling.

I shall then give my all in the fistic line confident that as the American standard-bearer I shall gain the victory.

When I completed my training at Orangeburg, I weighed 198½ pounds. This was the lowest notch I was at during the six weeks I was getting ready for the German. I shall dry out now and this means I shall be at 197 pounds when I weigh in for the title jam.

BOXED 96 ROUNDS

Al Lacy kept tabs on the number of rounds I boxed. The total number of rounds was 96 which proved that I had plenty of ring work. Boxing is the most important part of the training grind. And I certainly had my share of it.

In Johnny Grosso, Paul Cavalier, King Solomon and Larry Doyle I had four fine sparring partners. Jimmy Braddock, who did some training at Orangeburg, also stepped in one day and gave me a great workout. Braddock is a promising youngster and is going some place along the fistic trail.

From now until I enter the ring I shall dope out how I shall lick Schmeling. I saw the German when he battled Paulino. I also studied the slow moving pictures of the Schmeling-Paulino bout.

I shall not have any set battle plan, but I shall map out just what I shall do under certain cir-

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUGS

By THE BENCHWARMER

NEW YORK, June 11. — Well, folks, I guess there's a lot of uneasiness around the league on account of June 15 coming. Any trades that the clubs are working on must be completed before that date. I guess a bunch of our boys won't go to bed until midnight on Saturday to make sure whether they are traded or not.

There seems to be quite a lot of talk in the papers about trades, but Jule says he doesn't look for many swaps.

I'm getting a lot of time to see the sights of New York and us rookies certainly are taking them in.

Bernard Walter and Ben Sankey are a couple more of the young players who want to explore a bit so we are spendin' a lot of time on top of busses and rubberneck wagons. That's a big dime's worth you get on those busses. But you can't get very far in a Pittsburgh bus for a dime. They'd probably toss you out at the next street.

We ain't got much chance to see the night life because we have to be in the old hay by 11 bells and we have to be out of it by 9:30 a. m., But from what I hear, a little of that goes a long ways.

These Broadway cowboys are not what they're cracked up to be. I'll take the kind we have down in Texas for mine.

Nick Altrock Says:

CHICAGO, June 11.—This road trip is not doing our Washington club any good. With the A's ahead of us and the Yankees slowly climbing up it makes us feel like the slice of tomato in a club sandwich. You want to keep an eye on the Giants, too. They are creeping up on the rest of the boys like poison ivy. McGraw has a million dollar infield and he didn't get the rest of his team off a nation counter, either. If the Brooklyns and Giants only had that community spirit they would knock off the Cubs and have the pennant all to themselves. But they have the same kind of community spirit as Cain had for Abel.

CARDS DEFEAT BRAVES; PHILS SLAM BRUINS

CHISOX DOWN A'S; YANKEES TOP BROWNS

Associated Press

A little thing like a rapidly descending elevator which causes unpleasant sensations in many quarters, shouldn't bother the St. Louis Cardinals a bit from now on. The Cards went up to the top of the National League with about the greatest possible speed, winning 17 out of 18 games and have been coming down from the heights with about as great rapidity.

The Cardinals came to a temporary stop yesterday, after dropping five straight games, but it took them 10 long innings to gain a 2-to-1 decision over the Boston Braves and even that triumph left them with a record of only two victories in their last 12 games.

PHILS STOP CUBS

The Chicago Cubs, who appeared to be heading for the top of successors to the Cards as league leaders, suffered another setback yesterday after losing two out of three to Brooklyn. Much to their surprise, they ran into Phil Collins of Philadelphia and got only six hits. They couldn't get a run while the Phillies pecked away at Pat Malone winding up with a three-run burst in the eighth for a 6 to 2 victory. The defeat left Chicago three and a half games behind the league leaders.

All the other National League games and the Washington-Cleveland contest in the American League were rained out.

GROVE BEATEN

Another champion club, the Philadelphia Athletics, played second division baseball as they dropped an eleven-inning struggle to the Chicago White Sox by a 7 to 6 count. The worst exhibition came in the tenth inning when Philadelphia could get only two runs on five hits, having two men thrown out at the plate. The Sox promptly tied it up again and continued scoring in the next frame. Bob Grove, who had won seven straight games, was charged with the defeat although he pitched less than two innings.

The Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers put on another exhibition of poor fielding and heavy hitting. The Red Sox made 17 hits off four Tiger hurlers and reaped the benefit of four errors, all of which figured in the scoring for a 12 to 6 victory.

The New York Yankees got a fast start against the St. Louis Browns and scored all their runs in the first two innings to win 8 to 3.

GOLF
As Champions Play It

How should a drive be made when the ball is to go against the wind?

Answered by
BOBBY CRUICKSHANK.

Maryland open, 1928. Old Westbury P. G. A. qualifying medal. Metropolitan P. G. A. Westchester open champion, 1929.

In playing against the wind I tee my ball just slightly higher than usual. This will enable me to hit down and through the ball better. In making the complete swing for this my elbows are held just a little more to the sides throughout. The clubhead goes on through after the ball is a little lower than usual thus starting the ball away low. This will also give it a slight overspin and a better boring effect into the wind.

In playing such a shot I try to hit a little higher up on the ball than usual, say a little below the center, or almost the center. Of course one must be careful not to hit too high as that will result in a topped ball.

If properly played it is a beautiful shot to watch.

GOLF ENTRANTS ADVISED TO KNOW RULES

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The third annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links Monday, July 7 under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is being held primarily to encourage youthful golfers of the tri-state district—and therefore it is an important thing that all contestants stress the rules and regulations which are being sent out to all individuals who mail in an entry blank. It is of course of primary importance that all players are fully acquainted with the U. S. G. A. rules.

The fact that the Hearst event is open to all junior amateurs 19 years of age and under who are not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades does not necessarily mean that boys who do not know how to behave themselves or neglect their knowledge for the rules of the game can play.

MUST KNOW RULES

We do not expect any contestant to know the rules as set forth by the United States Golf Association word for word—but it is required that all players have a full knowledge of the rules of golf. Therefore, it is important that you if you intend to play in this grand event brush up a bit on the rules of the game. If you don't know the rules of golf—how can you ever hope to play it correctly?

You know the rules of baseball—a foul ball isn't a fair one, is it? You wouldn't care to break any of the rules in games you are thoroughly familiar with—and yet many golfers are playing the game today who do not know it. And golf is the one game which demands every player to be thoroughly acquainted with its code—for in tennis, baseball, billiards or other games your opponent is watching your every move, you have an umpire or referee, but in golf, a man or boy plays alone on his own honor and knowledge of the game.

RULES RIGID

James Francis Burke, of this city, former general counsel of the United States Golf Association, and the man who is primarily responsible for the present rules of the game, had the following to say to the United States Walker Cup team on May 4, 1926, in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, just before that team sailed to meet Great Britain in one of its great international matches:

"As golf is not only a matching of individual skill, but a never-ending conflict with nature itself, rigid rules are essential in order to bring it to its highest standard of interest.

"Golf is the one game of all in which we are not under the eye of our opponent. It is the one game in which the absence of our competitor on the one hand, and the ease with which the slightest displacement of the ball or departure from the rules often invites the conversion of a defeat into a victory. Consequently, there is no game that requires cleaner sportsmanship or a higher order of integrity than the battle of the links.

"On every occasion and in every emergency, the player should know precisely what to do without advice or dispute.

"To win a contest as a result of our opponent's ignorance of a rule makes one feel like a culprit, while to lose it because of our own ignorance, only doubles our humiliation."

cumstances. This is the best way to assure a victory.

CONDITION SUPERB

I was fortunate in coming through my six weeks of training without a mark or a bruise. Never in my ring career have I been in better physical condition than I am in right now.

My splendid physical condition is backed by six years of ring experience. I have been in there under fire with Willis, Dempsey, Godfrey, Loughran, Maloney, Stribling, Risko, Heeney and the other headliners. I believe I can truthfully say I have taken on all comers and that I have fought my way to my present position as a principal in a title bout.

Schmeling has not had as much experience as I have, while at 24 he is only three years younger than my self. Max has had major bouts with Risko and Paulino, and I believe my record is more impressive.

I don't mind saying, I am eagerly waiting for the gong which will start the bout. The delay from the ending of training until the start of a bout is a severe test to the nerves, but I have been through this experience more often than Max and so it won't affect me as much as it will my rival.

Penn Crew Suffers Loss of Star, Boats

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 11.—(AP.)—Misfortune in two guises yesterday struck the University of Pennsylvania rowing squad here in training for the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta on June 26. The first was the loss to the varsity boat of Barnhart, regular No. 2 oar, and the second was the swamping of two shells during the morning workout.

Barnhart suffered a strained muscle in his back at the Childs Cup race and did not row again until Monday. In the evening he reported to Coach Rusty Callow that the muscle had not mended and, after an examination by the trainer, it was decided that Barnhart could not row for the rest of the season.

Sir Frederick was 62 years of age. He was a noted amateur athlete in his younger days and captained several noted cricket and football clubs.

SHARKEY WEAKENING, SCHMELING DECLARES

GERMAN SCORES JACK FOR TALK OF FOUL

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 11.—"Sharkey is weakening!"

Suddenly bellicose, thus spoke the Herr Schmeling today in a long-distance conversation with the writer, 24 hours away from his world heavyweight championship fight with Jack Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night. He commented rather acridly on an innuendo that had been bandied about the Sharkey camp at Orangeburg, in fact had been vouched for by Sharkey himself.

It was to the effect that the fight was liable to end in a foul. The statement was seen by the Herr Schmeling as a token of good cheer.

"Sharkey is weakening or he wouldn't talk like that," said he. "He must be thinking along those lines to make a statement such as this on the eve of the fight. As for me, I never have thought of a foul. Why should I? I have been in 49 fights without the question of a foul arising on either side. Sharkey himself has been involved in seven fights that ended in a foul and now he seems to be ready to talk himself into another. He's weakening.

"If there is going to be any foul tomorrow night, Sharkey will have to commit it himself."

SENDS MESSAGE HOME

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 11.—(INS)—Max Schmeling, always modest, exceeded even his customary reticence in a pre-battle message to his German countrymen, issued today exclusively through International News Service. The message follows:

"I am prepared to make the greatest effort of my life in this fight. My physical condition is perfect, my mind is at ease. I am happy to know that the German people are behind me and I wish to assure them that their faith in me will not be misplaced. Come what may, I will do nothing to disgrace the Fatherland or myself."

BATTLING GIZZY

Whirlwind lightweight boxer, of Donora, who meets Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O., in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight.

GIZZY-O'MALLEY HEADLINE RING CARD TONIGHT

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O., two crowd-pleasing lightweights, box the main bout of the fourth weekly show of the Hickey Park boxing club in Millvale tonight. They are booked for 10 rounds.

In a strong supporting semi-final, Jackie Wilson, of the North Side, and Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, cross gloves for eight rounds. Solomen recently knocked out Wilson after being floored himself in a bout at the Moose Temple and a lot of fireworks are looked for in their return clash.

REPEAT NUMBER

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Muscle Scholes, of the North Side, box the second bout, also a repeat number of a Moose offering, and Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight, of the Hill, is bracketed with Young Berry, of New Kensington, in the opener.

Tonight's boxing program is clogged with postponed shows from the two preceding nights. Philadelphia will try to get its Tommy Loughran-Ernie Schaaf bout off its chest. Willie Davies and Jackie Coogan were rained out at East Liverpool last night and will step tonight. El Kadir and Tiger Thomas will try again at Leiperville, Pa., Maxie Rosenbloom and Georgie Smith are billed at Dexter Park, New York, and Herman Perlick and Jack (Kid) Berg do the honors in the carried-over opening show at the Queensboro Stadium in New York. Another show carded tonight include Roger Bernard vs. Jackie Cohenat, Montreal.

SUBSTITUTE BOUT

Tony Herrera, sensational Mexican lightweight, of Chicago, is matched with Eddie Elkins, of New York, in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night.

This bout was made when Jackie Rodgers, local Negro knockout star, could not go through with his scheduled brawl with Johnny Datto, hard-hitting Cleveland Filipino, originally set for that date.

Tony Canzoneri and Tommy Grogan have been matched to box the main bout at the Queensboro Stadium, New York, next Tuesday night.

Sparky Ewalt, of the Pastorious A. C., and Pete Bandini, heavyweights, will box the main bout in the third outdoor boxing show staged by the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., next Wednesday night.

Johnny Skorin, of Woods Run, who has been boxing around Detroit during the winter months, is back in town to challenge any boxer in the welterweight class. Eddie McEntee, city detective, and an official in the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., will act as Skorin's manager.

Johnny Dunn, New Kensington featherweight, who holds two wins over Jackie Rodgers, will fight Tony Leone, Dover, O., at Wheeling, June 23.

A. M. A. MARKS TO GET HEAVY SHELLING

By JESS CARVER.

The record list, which had such a soft time of it a year ago on the afternoon of the A. M. A. championship meet in the Stadium (only one was cracked) may not find the going too easy Saturday as as strong a field as has competed for the various titles for a number of yars provides competition.

Marshall Lewis

Last year only the mark in the pole vault was bettered. Hank Schnellback, running his two fine races in the 100 and 220, equalled the existing record in the century, but as for all other events, the shades of past standard setters looked on complacently as the perspiring young athletes sought in vain to hang up new times and distances.

It should not be surprising if four or five marks are set here Saturday. Its high time some one was bustin' the hurdle marks wide open and with timber toppers of the caliber of Marshall Lewis, Ben Loveland, Harry Brownlee, Earl Ewing, Tom Esaman and Windy Moore (if he competes) on hand, the assault will be vicious to say the very least.

LEWIS ON HAND

This chap Lewis, who'd have competed as a varsity man for Pitt this year had he not had a tangle with his school books and gone and gotten himself all ineligible, won the high hurdles both in 1929 and 1928 and will be back to make it three in a row.

Cornell Cooper, Pitt's Negro jumping jack, who leaped 6 feet 2 inches a year ago, will set his aim on a point at least two inches higher, but the competition he'll get from Spencer, Fifth Avenue High ace; Work, of the P. A. A., formerly of Purdue; Branch, of the Holy Cross A. C.; the veteran Bill Robusch (the record-holder at 6 feet 5⅜ inches), and one or two others, will hardly be lukewarm.

SPEAR MARK TOTTERING

Then, unlimbering his trusty right arm, Len Friedman should have no trouble at all in setting a new mark in the javelin. He's already bettered the A. M. A. mark in college competition and won't have to throw the spear as far here Sat'day as he did in Chicago last week.

The broad jump mark isn't any too safe, either, and if Jimmy Watkins is in half the form he was all spring as a member of the Pitt freshmen squad, he ought to play havoc with the half-mile.

He'll have Rob Roy, the 1928 champ to beat.

Last year's meet was distinguished for the number of new title holders it produced. No less than 10 new kings were crowned, which came near causing Mr. Will'um (Stogie) Croassmun to do a nose dive. Mr. Croassmun believes in on with the old, the heck with the new. He gets that way ridin' on passes all the time.

BOWEN MISSING

The absence of Pete Bowen, intercollegiate and A. U. A. national quarter-mile champion, will detract somewhat from the special features of the meet. It would have improved the gate no little had Pete been on hand again to duel with Schnellbach in the dashes and with Bill Miller in the quarter. Pete's a New York A. C. runner now, and can't compete in this district.

Maybe he'll be on hand and run a special race against time or Waldy Zeig or somethin'.

JOE JACOBS MAX SCHMELING MAX MACHON

JACOBS VICTOR IN MARYLAND NET PLAY

BALTIMORE, June 11.—(AP.)—Three score matches yesterday cast some light on the annual Maryland State Tennis Tournament and saw several of the favorites fall in the play on the courts of the Baltimore Country Club.

Most astounding of the results was the elimination of Phil Goldsborough, former city champion; Alphonso Smith, seventh seeded player and number one of the University of Virginia team; Louis Kurland, city champion; Arnold Silverman and Hilary Gans, all of whom had been given more than an even chance of going further in the meet.

The defeat of Gans was more expected, the young star, Eddie Jacobs, of Pitt, accomplishing the feat in straight sets, 6-1 and 6-3. Kurland also fell in straight sets in the second round before Albert Hobelmann, 6-2 and 7-5.

The second-round singles and all but four of the first-round doubles were completed yesterday. Thirty-two players remain in the running for the singles crown, with 20 doubles teams still in the running.

JACKET SPORTS RANKS THINNED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 11.—Thirteen athletes who have received their letters in various branches of varsity sports at Waynesburg College will receive their diplomas at the school's eightieth annual commencement exercises tomorrow.

Seven football lettermen, six basketball lettermen and five who earned letters in wrestling are included among those who will receive degrees.

Football lettermen include Sam Smith, Pittsburgh; Tony Guerrieri and Emery Patterson, Brownsville; Clyde Porter, Washington; Dick Toline, Moline, Ill.; Bob Wiley, Wind Ridge and Glenn Woodward, Monongahela City.

The basketball lettermen who will be handed sheepskins are John W. Knox, Waynesburg; Jiggers White, Tarentum; Harry Edgar, Marianna, and Bill Porter, Sam Smith and Glenn Woodward, also football lettermen.

The wrestling men who will graduate are John Eisele, Pittsburgh; John Morgan, Carmichaels; Charles McCall, Waynesburg; Tony Guerrieri and Bob Wiley.

Dick Toline and Sam Smith have been two of the outstanding members of Waynesburg College football teams during their careers here. Although not eligible last fall and while out of school in 1925, Toline played here in 1924, '26, '27 and '28 and was ranked one of the best players ever to perform in Class B circles in the district. He played both at end and halfback.

Smith, a graduate of South Hills High, Pittsburgh, was a regular tackle for the past three years and last year had few peers at that position in college football throughout the East. Smith also starred in basketball and track at Waynesburg.

BASS KAYOES ANDERSON

The fight, originally matched as a title affair, lost its championship angle when Anderson failed to make the required 130 pounds. He was a quarter of a pound overweight. Bass weighed 128½ pounds.

THOMPSON IN BOUT

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—(AP.)—Jack Thompson, world welterweight champion boxer, will meet Joe Cordova, local middleweight, in a 10-round non-title bout here June 17, it was announced today.

PAYNE TRIMS BATTALINO

CINCINNATI, June 11.—(AP.)—Cecil Payne, Louisville, won the judges' decision over Bat Battalino, Hartford (Conn.) featherweight champion, in a 10-round boxing match here last night. The title was not at stake. Payne won nine rounds. The weights were, Battalino, 127½; Payne, 132.

Payne held the upper hand from the start, doing all the leading, landing cleaner blows and battling the champion toe to toe in every round. He staggered the titleholder several times and frequently waded in under the champion's guard and pummeled him with rights and lefts until Battalino went to cover.

Gibson's Estate Set at $24,000

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—Billy Gibson, who handled hundreds of thousands of dollars as manager for Gene Tunney and Benny Leonard when both were champions of the ring, has an estate of only $24,886.92, it was disclosed yesterday in Supreme Court.

Justice Lydon signed an order of which the financial record was a part, confirming the findings of a sheriff's jury that Gibson is mentally incompetent. He is a patient in a sanitarium at Beacon, N. Y.

Minor Leagues' Parley Postponed

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP.)—The meeting of club owners from the American Association, Pacific Coast and International Leagues to decide for or against renewal of the minor league draft agreement with the majors has been postponed from June 16 to August 5.

Dempsey Doped For Title Bout, Said

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(INS.)—The Washington Times today published a copyrighted story from New York, written by its sports editor, Kirk Miller, to the effect that Jack Dempsey doped himself on the eve of the fight in which he lost the world heavyweight championship to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia in September, 1926.

Since that rainy night in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium, the question "What was the matter with Dempsey?" has been propounded thousands of times. The "correct answer"—namely, that the glamorous Dempsey administered laudanum to himself because he was under a severe nervous strain due to training camp worries—was given to him, Miller writes, by Frank G. Menke, of the King Features Syndicate, to whom Dempsey gave the correct answer months after the title was lost to Tunney. Miller describes Menke as "closer to Dempsey than any individual not in his immediate family or fight household."

Menke did not print the story himself, Miller explains, because, coming from him, it would amount to an alibi for Dempsey. And Dempsey never alibied.

Fight Broadcast Hookup Elaborate

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—More than 30 broadcasting stations in the United States and several short-wave stations will participate in the broadcast of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight to be made from Yankee Stadium tomorrow night.

The broadcast will continue from 8:30 to 10 p. m. (eastern standard time), replacing all regularly scheduled programs during the period on the combined WEAF and WJZ networks of the National Broadcasting Company.

The short-wave stations, which will include W2XAF and W2XAC, Schenectady, are expected to make it possible to rebroadcast a special description to listeners in Germany.

Two announcers, Graham McNamee and Miss Carmen Ogden, of Rochester, N. Y., will be at the microphone for the American network, McNamee to give the fight details and Miss Ogden to describe the women in the audience.

till in which he participated until Bob Grove stopped him on May 18. The next longest streak, prior to that of Klein, was 18 games, credited to Tom Oliver, of the Red Sox, who was halted by Sam Gray on May 10.

THE ALL-TIME record for consecutive hitting in a major league still stands to the credit of the late Willie Keeler, who ran up a string of 44 games while with Baltimore in the National League in 1897.

In 1894, Bill Dahlen, with the Chicago Nationals, hit safely in 42 straight games, missed in the next and then connected in 28 more, a record of 70 out of 71 consecutive games. Since Keeler's achievement, the best performances have been 41 games by George Sisler in the American League and 33 by Rogers Hornsby in the National, both in 1922.

Bob Grove.

WHEN BOB GROVE was charged with the defeat suffered by the Athletics at the hands of the White Sox yesterday, his clean slate for the season was marred. Previously he had won seven games in succession, and, though driven from the slab three times, had escaped having a loss marked up against him. By losing to the White Sox, Grove missed a chance for an unusual pitching feat, one that another star southpaw, Wilbur Cooper, once scored for the Pirates—that of beating every other club in his league before meeting with defeat. Grove had downed every American League team except the one that beat him yesterday, holding two decisions over the Browns, and one each over the Senators, Yankees, Indians, Tigers and Red Sox. The only big league flingers who remain undefeated among those who have pitched more than one game are Adolfe Luque, of the Robins, with six victories; Mel Harder, of the Indians, with five; Lee Roy Mahaffey, of the A's, with four; Bob Osborn, of the Cubs, with four, and Bob Burke, of the Senators, with two.*

CITY LEAGUE

By TOM BIRKS

The weather man was in anything but a receptive mood last evening with a result that more postponed games are cluttering up the sandlot diamond schedules. With the first half finish only two weeks away managers should put forth every effort into the listing of these games. Some managers are showing a laxity getting these frays out of the way. Worrying over scheduled independent games is not going to help one bit.

The usual Wednesday night card will be offered for the fans this evening. The City League leads the parade with two games. Stowe Civics will travel to Sullivan Field to meet St. Johns and the other game finds the North Side Civics tangling with W. O. W. at Woodman Field.

BECKMANS AT ETNA

In the Central League Latton will take his Beckman Motor Club to Etna for the first time this season. The presence of this well balanced South Hills aggregation at the Furnace Grounds should pack in the crowds.

The Steel City circuit flashes two games. In the Eastern Division, Hale Club will tackle the East End Cardinals. The Cards are crippled with injuries but will try hard to stop the Valley boys. At the present time only the Young Men's Star Circle has a chance to catch that flying Crimson outfit from Mellon Field. The Circle can tie Cohn's club and that is the best the Bloomfielders can do by winning all of its remaining games.

In the Western Division the Observatory Civics hook up with Fox A. C. Detroit and Meeders are tied for the lead.

One game will be staged in the Commercial and Industrial loop. Reich-McJunkins will go to Dravo to meet Stritzinger's outfit. The titleholders are still keen on stopping Reliance Life.

The Homestead Grays will be called upon to face the slants of Cannonball Redding in their five-game series with the Brooklyn Royal Giants beginning Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, at Forbes Field.

The Brooklyn management will likely save Cannonball for one of the two games which the clubs will play on Saturday afternoon. Redding for years has been one of the outstanding Negro twirlers in the country and each season he earns a large number of victories.

He was dubbed Cannonball because of his wonderful speed with which he throws the baseball, and he has been twirling for several years. He and Smoky Joe Williams used to hook up often when Joe hurled for the Lincoln Giants prior to coming to the Grays, and the spectacle of the pair of veterans opposing each other at Forbes Field on Saturday has caused fans to show keen interest in the series. The Grays and Giants close their series with a twin bill at Sharon Sunday.

The Grays play at Beaver Falls this evening and tomorrow are scheduled at Sewickley.

Last night's sandlot program was effectively washed out by the consistent downpour. Not a game was played which is a record of some sort or other for usually it may be depended upon that some hardy brand of sandlotters will get a game in, rain or no rain.

Ebensburg Card Shows 36 Races

BALTIMORE, June 11.—Ten distance races and 26 sprint affairs will be offered during the six-day meeting of the Cambria County Fair, which opens June 30, at Ebensburg, Pa.

That is what the book for the meeting, released here today by Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan, shows. Brennan's card calls for races from five furlongs to a mile and one-half, and is one of the best ever offered in the East for half-mile racing.

Horsemen possessing sprinters will have a chance to run in nine races at five furlongs and seven at six and one-half furlongs.

Distance running thoroughbreds will be able to perform in five races at a mile and one sixteenth, three at a mile and 70 yards and one each at a mile and one-quarter and a mile and one-half.

French Sport Aces To Wed on June 30

PARIS, June 11.—(AP)—On the stroke of noon, Monday, June 30, the chimes in the tower of Saint Clotilde Church will ring gaily to announce the wedding of Mme. Simone Thion De La Chaume, queen of the French golf kingdom, and Rene LaCoste, former Napoleon of world tennis.

The engagement was announced last September, but the wedding originally fixed for January and later for April, had to be postponed twice owing to the bridegroom's ill health.

LaCoste fought illness with the grit and courage with which he has disputed countless battles on the courts and, as has been the case oftener than not in tennis, he won the victory.

STAGE IS SET FOR BATTLE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Schmeling is a cool worker in the ring. He is a good judge of pace and has patience. He circles about the ring and paws with his left for openings and does his real damage with a straight right. He knocked out Johnny Risko with this punch after being outpointed for eight rounds and he outlasted Paulino to win the decision in 15 rounds after being outfought in the first 10 rounds.

EXPECT CAUTIOUS FIGHT

With so much at stake Sharkey is expected to put on a cautious exhibition tomorrow night. Instead of rushing out wildly for the kill with the clang of the first gong, he is expected to feel out his opponent and if he finds him none too formidable to put on steam and try for a knockout. Failing in this, it is believed he will go back to boxing for the decision. Thus the dope is that if he is to score a knockout he will do so in a comparatively early round or not at all. If he can figuratively keep both feet on the ground, it is generally conceded that he stands little chance of being outpointed by Maxie. The situation with Sharkey as in most of his fights is largely mental. Physically all of the advantages are with him.

Upwards of 500 Pittsburghers are expected to sit in on the shindy. Many of them already are here, mingling with the throngs of out-of-towners in the buzzing hotel lobbies and other meeting places. They are evincing a keen interest in the appearance of the highly-touted Al Fay, of Charleroi, against Walter Cobb of Kansas City and Baltimore in the semi-final, which will be put on after the main bout. Fay is a protege of Jack Kearns, the man who piloted Jack Dempsey to the heavyweight championship and now is the manager of Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion.

FAIR WEATHER SEEN

Indications are that the weather will be good for the bout following several days of rain. The show is being staged by the Milk Fund, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is chairman.

The referee will not be named until just before the principals climb through the ropes. Neither Sharkey nor Schmeling has offered any objection to the New York Athletic Commission's plan to select the referee just before the affray begins.

Ed Forbes, Jim Crowley and Kid McPartland are named by boxing experts as the most likely candidates for the job. Others mentioned are Pasy Haley, Arthur Donovan, Jack O'Sullivan, Mike Hylas, Tommy Sheridan and Jack Dorman. The decision to defer selection of the referee until the last moment is predicated on the desire to see that the bout is handled absolutely on the square.

PLANS RETURN TO LINKS

The former Dorothy Kirby, star golfer now is Mrs. Austin Pardue and mother of two youngsters, who she says, must be a little older before she'll return to the links.

Shires Doomed To Role of 'Benchwarmer

The White Sox first baseman was forced out of yesterday's game with the Athletics when he was hit in the face by a ball during batting practice, and Bud Clancy stepped into his role and won the game in the eleventh inning.

Injury or no injury, Shires is destined to warm the bench for some time as his batting average is less than his last winter's fighting mark.

TIN TOP WINS FEATURE AT SPEEDWAY

Tin Top paying off at the rate of $5.80 for $2 last night won the American Legion Cup feature race at the Bridgeville greyhound races. He beat Midnite Meadow and Southern Jayhick to the wire.

The race was the feature event of the evening's program. American Legion members and their families were guests of honor.

A ringside report of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight will be offered patrons of the New Kensington Kennel Club tomorrow night the management announced today.

Whichone, Gallant Fox to Race Again

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Gallant Fox and his most formidable 3-year-old rival, Whichone, will meet again in the second annual running of the American Classic at Arlington Park, July 12, officials of the Chicago track have been advised by owners of the two thoroughbreds.

The classic, a gallop of one mile and a quarter for 3-year-olds, will have an estimated gross value of $86,900, of which $70,000 will be added money. Ten are expected to start. Blue Larkspur won the inaugural running, winning over a field which included Clyde Van Dusen, Windy City and Dr. Freeland.

TIN TOP WINS SENIOR LEAGUE BALL FASTER, RUTH SAYS

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Believe it or not, I think the ball that's being used in the National League is livelier than the American League ball. And a thing that happened in Cincinnati the other day when the Yankees played an exhibition game there is what convinced me. Here's the story.

Before the game started we were sitting around the Red bench punching the bag with Bob Meusel and Larry Benton and Harry Heilman and some other of the Cincinnati players. The conversation turned to the lively ball.

"I've played in both leagues," Bob Meusel said, "and I'm convinced that the National League ball is more lively than the one used in the American League. I don't know why, nor why, but I just believe it is."

We all laughed at Bob, but that didn't bother him.

Then, as we were about to take hitting practice, he came over to the Yankee bench with a box of National League baseballs.

"Trade a dozen of your balls for these," he suggested. "Then you try the National League balls in your hitting practice and see if you don't agree with me."

FREAK HOME RUNS

We did it—and by the time hitting practice was over our whole club agreed with him. Take my own experience for instance. Roy Sherid pitched batting practice and he tossed me up one ball that was way inside. I swung and hit the ball on the handle of my bat not more than three inches from my hands. I didn't even hit it squarely. Yet that ball carried over the center field fence of the Cincinnati park and everyone knows that's a long, long ways. The same thing happened during the game. I hit a ball over the left field wall for a home run on a wallop that was just a poke. I hit under the ball and I thought sure it would be one of those high, high flies that would be an easy out. Instead of that the ball went over the wall.

Our outfielders said the same thing. They said that ground balls came down through that infield so fast that they were handcuffed. They didn't have time to move on ground balls and grounders were going through them for hits that, with our own ball, would have been easy outs.

Now don't misunderstand me. I'm not trying to start an argument and I hold nothing for the ball in either league. But in the past couple of months when John McGraw and some of the other National League fellows have written about the rabbit ball over there I've figured they were all wet. I figured their ball was just the same as the one in our league and I know that our ball is no livelier now than it was two years ago.

M'GRAW IS RIGHT

But I'm convinced now that McGraw is right. There certainly is a whole lot of jack rabbit in that National League ball, and it certainly does travel when you hit it. Why that should be so I can't answer. I realize that both balls are made in the same factory and that they come off the same machines. And I know that the National League hasn't deliberately gone about to make the ball more lively. Maybe it's just one of those things you can't explain and never will be able to. Just the same though I'm convinced that the National League jack rabbit is no joke and no myth, but a reality.

Now just a word about the big league races. The steady play of the Cubs and Robins continues to be the feature of the National League, though I figure the Giants will be making their bid soon now—just as soon as Jackson is back in the lineup.

In the American League the past week has proved the strength of the A's and at the same time strengthened the idea that the Senators have been playing a bit over their heads. For dark horses in the National League I pick the Cardinals and the Reds, in the American League, Cleveland and Detroit.

Nats May Sign Jim Stroner, Former Buc

Stroner came to Baltimore in the Al Bool deal with the rep of being a long hitter. But neither his hitting nor his fielding on the training trip was anything to cheer about. Up to the very hour of the opening of the league season Manager Maisel was debating whether to start Stroner or another outfielder at the hot corner.

Jim finally was given the job, and so far Manager Maisel's choice has been vindicated. It is Stroner who has helped to keep the Orioles at the top of the International League. He is credited with having the strongest throwing arm of any third sacker in the loop.

And because of his work, Clark Griffith, of the Washington team, has his eye on Stroner. Griffith has motored over to Baltimore three times within the week to watch Stroner at work and is reported to be much impressed by the former Pirate.

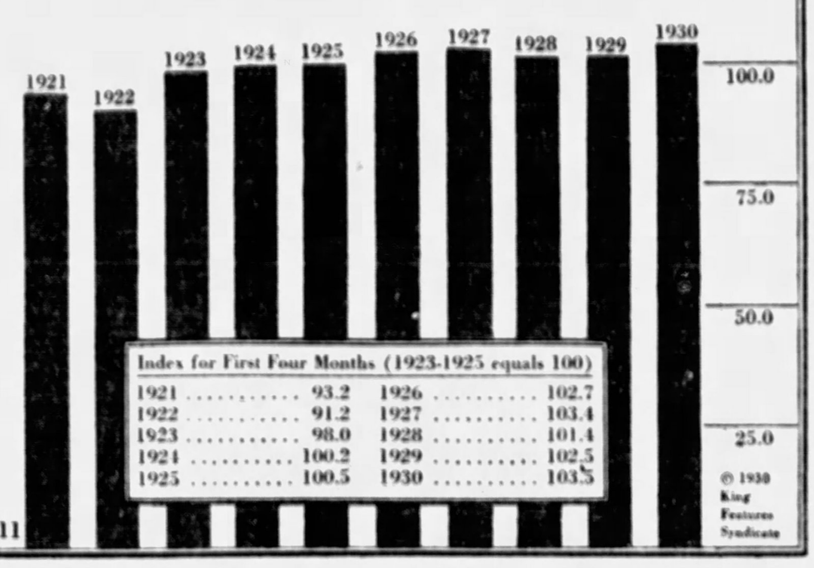
HOW'S BUSINESS? ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

Paper and Printing Employment at Peak

Chart compares the factory employment in the Paper and Printing Industries during the first four months of 1930 with the same periods of the past nine years. Figures cover the manufacturing of pulp, paper and paper products, and the printing of books, job work, periodicals and newspapers. Index figures used—Average 1923-1925 equals 100. Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Chart by FRELING FOSTER

These two great industries, which employ more than 450,000 workers, had more persons on the payrolls during the first four months of this year than in any corresponding period in their history.



PIPE BUSINESS AIDS STEEL

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Iron Age, in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade, tomorrow will say:

With seasonal reaction increasingly evident and affecting most branches of trade, activity in structural work and line pipe is conspicuous as the principal sustaining influence in the steel market.

New inquiries for structural projects, at 112,000 tons, are the largest for any week this year and exceed by 20,000 tons the highest weekly total in 1929. Although lettings, at 34,000 tons, were only of fair proportions, the outlook is for a steady rise in the volume of awards.

Pipe line business recently placed, estimated as approaching 1,000,000 tons, is taxing the capacity of the country.

EXPANSION PREDICTED

Despite improvement in these two important outlets for tonnage, the trend of steel ingot production is still downward. The general average for the country at large is 69 per cent, compared with 72 per cent a week ago. The decline of 294,993 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation in May and the seasonal slackening in most steel consuming lines point to still further recession in output.

The only question on which there is disagreement is how much further the decline will go and how long it will last. Leaders of the industry whose forecasts have proved dependable in the past predict that a gradual expansion in business will make its appearance within 30 or 60 days.

Steel ingot production figures for May again emphasize the fact that this year's record looks unfavorable chiefly because of comparison with 1929.

The daily rate of output, 149,066 tons, was 24 per cent lower than the average for May, 1929. Production in the first five months, 20,352,960 tons, was nearly 16 per cent smaller than in 1929, but except for the year, 1928 and 1926, was the largest ever reported for such a period.

TIN PLATE OUTLOOK

Tin plate output continues to show a seasonal decrease. The year has shown a substantial decline in the requirements of paint manufacturers and makers of oil cans, but demands from the food container manufacturers have shown a gain. In the past few years the canning business has been consistently expanding 10 per cent annually, and it now seems assured that this year's increase over 1929 will be fully that much.

Finished steel prices are still subject to concessions, but have been free from additional open breaks.

Westinghouse in English Agreement

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company announced today that through its subsidiary, the Westinghouse Electric International Company, it had entered into an arrangement with the English Electric Company, of London, whereby there will be an exchange of technical information between the two organizations on steam turbines and electrical apparatus. The arrangement includes the granting of licenses for the use of patents and for the manufacture and sale of various products.

A. P. I. Reports Sharp Crude Output Drop

NEW YORK, June 11.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended June 7 was 2,588,050 barrels, a decrease of 21,400 barrels daily, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Crude oil runs to refineries averaged 2,671,600 barrels daily, an increase of 105,300 barrels.

Standard Oil of N. J. To Report Gains

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

STEADY IMPROVEMENT IN PROFITS has been reported by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the past three years. No official information is available on the earnings results so far this year beyond the fact that sales have shown an excellent increase in volume.

Prices have been relatively stable this year so that continued improvement in earnings should naturally follow the gain in sales. Other contributing factors to increased earnings will be the investments in additional natural gas properties and in the Beacon Oil Company. The acquisition of control of the Anglo-American Oil Company, which is the leading distributor of oil products on the British Isles, offers further possibilities for increased earnings over a long range period.

Profits Show Gains

GROSS INCOME HAS SHOWN a steady year by year gain but better conditions in the industry have made possible even more substantial improvement in net profits. In 1927 gross was $1,256,505,071. This increased to $1,302,779,112 in 1928 and to $1,523,386,465 in 1929.

Net profit, however, jumped from $40,422,857 or $1.52 a share in 1927, a poor year for the industry, to $108,485,686 or $4.43 a share in 1928 and to $120,912,794 or $4.75 a share in 1929.

Since the latter part of 1922 the stock has been on a regular dividend basis of $1 a share. Extra dividends of 12½ cents were paid quarterly from December, 1926, to June, 1929, when the extras were increased to 25 cents. Extras of this amount have been paid quarterly since that time so that the stock may be considered to be on the equivalent of a $2 annual dividend basis.

Funded Debt Small

THE FUNDED DEBT consisting of $120,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures is small in comparison to the enormous size of the organization and its great resources. Physical properties at the close of 1929 were carried at $776,589,417 after deducting depreciation, depletion and amortization reserves of $595,782,902.

Working capital amounted to $613,978,798. Of this cash and marketable securities alone contributed $241,986,490. Investments in the stocks of other companies were carried at $185,123,981 which undoubtedly was a conservative figure.

The company has no preferred stock. A total of 25,418,968 shares of common stock are outstanding.

Natural Gas Developments

THE COMPANY IS OUTSTANDING in the oil industry in point of size and in its earnings record. In addition it has taken an important position in the natural gas industry through the operations of subsidiary organizations. Various units serve parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia with over 100,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas annually. About 15,446 miles of pipe are used to serve this territory.

In addition the company has a large interest in the Colorado Interstate Gas Company which serves New Orleans. It has a block of stock in the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation which serves the St. Louis industrial area. Standard of New Jersey also has an interest in the contemplated pipe line from the Texas Panhandle to Chicago and other midwestern cities.

STEEL PAYROLL SHOWS GAIN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 11.—The May payroll by steel companies of $6,994,159 is the best monthly disbursement since November, 1929, and represents a gain of over half a million dollars over April. It brings the total wage distribution for the year to $32,001,879.

Expansion plans have been announced by Republic Steel Corporation, affecting the company's Brown-Bonnell works. Republic is obtaining options on additional land required for expansion of tube, bar and other finishing mills in the Haselton district.

Newton Steel Company declared second quarter dividends of 50 cents per share on common and $1.50 on preferred, payable June 30 to holders of record June 20. Heretofore the company has been paying 75 cents per share quarterly on common. The reduction is in line with lower earnings.

Columbia to Start Work on Pipe Line

—By B. C. FORBES—

SQUALLS HAVE AGAIN struck Wall Street. Emboldened by their Saturday's success, professional bears hammered the market quite viciously at the beginning of this week. They caused declines serious enough to unnerve a good many holders of stocks, including small owners. This public selling hastened the drop. This, in turn, forced some calling for additional margins.

Selling outweighed the buying when the stock exchange opened yesterday. Meanwhile, however, heavyweight investors, including individuals, investment trusts, estates, etc., had become interested in picking up bargains. There was sufficient buying of this class, supplemented by some short covering, to arrest the downswing. In the afternoon a very spirited rebound occurred.

WHILE RECOGNIZING that the summer months may bring dullness and more or less weakness in the country's stock markets, I—perhaps foolishly—bought a few stocks during yesterday's spasm of weakness. I never considered myself smart enough to catch little ups and downs in the market from day to day or week to week. When I buy stocks I am prepared to hold them for an indefinite period. When any of them rise beyond what seems to me a reasonable height, I start taking profits. I sold a moderate part of my holdings before the last violent relapse because I couldn't but feel that the recovery was too violent.

There is still a chance, in my humble opinion, that stocks will enter a strong upward movement well before the end of this year. Should general business develop pronounced recovery, we could easily see very animated speculation at rising prices, amid the prevailing gloom in Wall Street, such talk doubtless sounds extremely foolish, but experience has taught me the wisdom of buying when others are selling and selling when others are buying.

You can't keep either down, America or a good man very long.

SEVERAL AUTOMOBILE COMPANIES this year, instead of granting vacations piecemeal, are closing down for a fortnight so that everyone can get away at the same time. This plan has long been followed in certain foreign centers. For one week each year Glasgow, for example, practically stops business so that everyone can enjoy a holiday.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S APPOINTMENT of a commission to study problems confronting the U. S. Shipping Board, especially regarding rival bids for certain Transatlantic services, is wise. Sharply conflicting interests are involved. So is the public's pocket.

The President might also interest himself in certain air mail contracts, notably that for carrying mail to the East Coast of South America, by a company operating, not along the East Coast, but along the West Coast, thus having to cross the Andes Mountains before effecting delivery.

Business may have its faults—does have its faults. But it isn't fit to hold a candle to Washington when it comes to perpetrating amazing maneuvers.

Will corporations, merchants and others take note?

"A friend of mine, who has nearly $2,000 due him by a large corporation, was asked if he would mind waiting for payment," relates one of my associates. "He couldn't refuse. But the result is that he is making others wait, too. Behold, shortly after this incident my friend read a statement issued by the corporation about its wonderful financial strength and boasting of how much cash and securities it had on hand.

"If many corporations are doing such stalling, is it not an unconscionable contributor to depression?"

It is. Things would be greatly helped were every business concern to pay every bill at the first moment possible. Happily, the majority of concerns are in a position to pay promptly. So are a great many families who are slow payers for no reason except sheer thoughtlessness.

If you have the money, pay up instantly!

J. CHARLES JORDAN, of Pacific Gas and Electric Company, writes:

"Several years ago during a visit to San Francisco you noted our 'Sign of Progress' trench barrier and commented favorably upon it. With the advent of natural gas in our territory, we have redesigned our trench barriers to read 'Another Sign of Progress:' P. G. and E. Natural Gas—The Modern Fuel.'"

In and around New York I noticed that when people came to a tornup street they often growl. The sign used in California somehow, seems to appeal to the pride of the people in their state's progress rather than make them sore. A little courtesy is a wonderful lubricant along the pathway of life.

DON'T LET PESSIMISM engulf you. The biggest things are achieved, not by pessimists, but by optimists.

SAXET BONDS OFFERED

G. E. Barrett & Co., is offering $5,000,000 of Saxet Company first lien collateral 6 per cent convertible bonds series A at 99 and accrued interest to yield 6.10 per cent.

The company, through subsidiaries, is engaged in the production of natural gas, oil, sand and gravel.

Approximately 27,000,000 cubic feet of nautral gas are sold daily at the company's wells in the White Point, Saxet and Refugio fields in South Texas under favorable long term contracts to Houston Gulf Gas Company for distribution in Houston and vicinity and to the city of Corpus Christi which owns and operates its own distributing system. The net earnings from natural gas operations alone for each of the years ended April 30, 1928, 1929 and 1930 were in excess of the interest requirements on this issue of bonds. At present more than 5,000 barrels of high lubricating content oil are produced and sold daily from five different fields all located in Texas. An average of 70 cars of washed and screened sand, gravel and railroad ballast are produced and shipped daily from an extensive deposit near Victoria, Tex., believed to be the largest single deposit in Texas. Ballast is sold under contract to Missouri Pacific Railroad; over 300,000 tons having been delivered during the 12 months ended April 30, 1930.

The earnings indicate that the annual interest requirements on this issue of bonds were earned over four times, before reserves. After depletion, depreciation and estimated Federal taxes, the earnings accruing to the 334,086 shares of common stock presently to be outstanding, were approximately $1.50 per share.

NO BEAR RAIDS IN FALL PANIC

BOSTON, June 11.—The 1929 stock market panic taught several lessons but no practical measures have been suggested which could either have prevented it or minimized its force, Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said in an address before the Boston Association of Stock Exchange Firms last night.

Mr. Whitney disclosed the result of an investigation by the business conduct committee of rumors of bear raids during the height of the autumn liquidation. Questionnaires to stock exchange houses on their condition at the close of business on November 12, which marked virtually the lowest point of the drop in prices, discredited rumors of a large short position.

Discussing the lessons the crash taught, Mr. Whitney said that in the panic, the stock exchange demonstrated the necessity of holding its markets open as far as is humanly possible, even in the face of great liquidation.

Mr. Whitney cited the experience of the stock exchange in 1873 and 1914, the only two occasions when a definite suspension of the exchange has ever occurred. Irregular and irresponsible markets for securities quickly developed over the counter and even in the public streets. In such markets, he said, quotations are unreliable, and the marketability of securities on an extensive scale is actually impossible.

HOLIDAY CUTS CAR LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on May 31 totaled 860,249 cars, the lowest for the period since 1922, according to the American Railway Association. Due to observance of Decoration Day, which was on Friday, May 30, with the following day in many instances also being observed as a holiday, this was a decrease of 71,223 cars below the preceding week and a reduction of 112,575 cars below the same week in 1929. Compared with the same week in 1929, it was a reduction of 74,424 cars.

Celotex Suspends Common Dividend

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Celotex Company, of Chicago, has omitted the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock due at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred was declared, payable July 1 to stock of record June 20.

Lackawanna Earns 55 Cents a Share

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad today reported net income for the first quarter of $936,711, equal to 55 cents a share, compared with $2,325,995, or $1.38 a share, for the like quarter last year.

Stock Exchange Topics

There has been a revival of rumors of a split-up in American Tobacco A and B shares on either a two-for-one or a two-and-one-half-for-one basis. Such action might be taken next month. While confirmation is lacking, the report has been widely discussed in the last two days. It also is rumored that if the split-up is two-for-one, the new stock will be placed on a $6 a share annual dividend basis. That would mean $2 a share more annually for present stockholders. At times, there have been reports that the shares might be split four-for-one, but the latest rumor has it that the purpose will be to keep the price of the new stock above $100 a share.

With the acquisition of Pacific Coast Biscuit Company, the National Biscuit Company gets a good subsidiary in the coast territory, so that it can expand to meet the rapidly growing demands in that part of the country. National Biscuit is going to expand further in other parts of the country. Announcements undoubtedly will be made in that connection as the year advances.

Margin clerks were busily engaged until a late hour Monday night in the task of dispatching calls for additional funds to protect such holdings made necessary by the severity of the day's late break. The response was quite favorable on the whole, but the run of selling at the opening indicated pretty clearly that sufficient selling had resulted to make for a good deal in the way of new offerings. Such selling, however, was rather well absorbed and the market displayed a fairly firm front in most directions in spite of the flow of necessitous liquidation of that character.

This week's condition statement of member banks reporting to the Federal Reserve shows loans on security collateral expanded by $184,000,000 to an aggregate $1,406,000,000 in excess of the total on the corresponding date a year ago. Commercial loans show a nominal increase but are still $706,000,000 less than at this time in 1929 when the boom was at its crest. The steady expansion in security loans, which are now larger than at any time, except in the stress period last fall, is generally attributed to the sluggish flow of new issues to investors. The combined total of net demand and time deposits is now $1,094,000,000 in excess of last year, while member banks borrowings are less by $596,000,000.

The rally which got under way after mid-day yesterday was accompanied by a sharp drop in the volume of trading. Business tended to taper off sharply as evident from the fact that by mid-afternoon, the ticker was fully abreast of the market, having closed up the gap of 25 minutes which had been opened by the heavy run of selling that appeared to have run its course at high noon. Slackening of the trading pace did not, however, detract from the significance of the rebound, with limited demand bringing sharp rallies in stocks like Steel, Electric Power and Light and others indicating that nearby offerings in most active issues were small.

The bear crowd, evidently inspired by its marked success of the last few days, sought to bring about a continuation of the liquidating movement yesterday by occasional thrusts at certain of the leaders which were believed vulnerable to attack. The first of such drives developed about the middle of the first hour when it became apparent that the market was taking selling rather well. The final attack was launched shortly before noon, at which time forces operating on the side of the decline directed their energies chiefly against Radio, United Corporation and Westinghouse Electric. All three issues were driven down to new lows for the move, but rebounded sharply as the general market rallied following the appearance of the steel tonnage report.

Paragon Head Seeks Valvoline Shares

CINCINNATI, June 11.—E. W. Edwards, president of Paragon Refining Company and Valvoline Oil Company, is offering to buy for his own account 32,229 shares of Valvoline common stock now held by Paragon. This number represents 83 per cent of the outstanding common stock of Valvoline.

Mr. Edwards is offering to pay $200 a share, the price at which Paragon acquired controlling interest of Valvoline in October, 1929.

Mr. Edwards is sending letters to stockholders of Paragon offering them the right to buy any amount of the Valvoline shares at 200. Paragon was recently acquired by the Gulf Oil interests of Pittsburgh.

Bituminous Coal Output Up in May

May production of bituminous coal is estimated at 35,884,000 net tons, an increase of 24,000 net tons over April and a decrease of 4,822,000 net tons from May, last year, Coal Age reports. Anthracite production for May this year is estimated at 5,834,000 net tons, compared with 4,916,000 net tons in April and 6,308,000 net tons for May, last year. Coal Age says that the bituminous markets of the country failed to get out of the doldrums during May and domestic and industrial demand was light, though fairly steady on the whole.

STOCKS RALLY ON COVERING BY SHORTS

Market Heads Upward After Early Decline Under Heavy Selling

NEW YORK, June 11—(AP.)—The stock market, having just struggled to its feet, was sent reeling again by the impact of another wave of selling today, but managed to pull itself together and make substantial recovery by early afternoon. Important shares tumbled about 4 to 10 points before short covering began to cushion the decline.

Trading was in comparatively light volume but the violence of yesterday's late upturn was in itself enough to bring out liquidation being held up for better levels, and this attracted fresh bear attacks. There was no inclination to support the market until the selling had run its course.

STEEL TREND DOWN

The weekly steel trade reviews said that the trend of production is still downward, but reported somewhat better stability in prices. Iron Age said production for the country at large was now 69 per cent of capacity against 72 per cent a week ago. This tended to erase the influences of the somewhat more favorable than expected steel tonnage report yesterday. Iron Age added however that leaders in the industry look for a gradual expansion of business to appear within the next 30 to 60 days and estimate fall production at between 75 and 80 per cent.

Wall street is now giving closer attention to developments in Washington than usual. The tariff bill has become a chief topic of board room conversation, and there is a general feeling that any decisive action on the bill finally disposing of it would be a bullish development.

Corporate news contained several dividend reductions or omissions by smaller companies including Celotex which passed the 75-cent quarterly payment. These developments affected sentiment adversely and bearish rumors, many of them branded as ridiculous in responsible quarters, were widely circulated.

REPORT IMPROVEMENT

One of the more favorable items was an announcement by Western Union management that telegraph business had improved markedly during the current quarter.

Several important issues tumbled to new lows. Lambert dropped 9 points and Bethlehem Steel 6, both new 1930 minimums. Shares losing 4 to 6 points before the rally included such issues as U. S. Steel, Radio, General Electric, American Can, Standard Gas, Electric Power and Light, Western Union, Public Service of New Jersey, United Aircraft and Colorado Fuel. Air Reduction, Johns Manville, Houston Oil, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical lost about 7 to 10. Case tumbled more than 17 points, and Auburn more than 13 to a new low.

Asks Approval on Denver Election

WASHINGTON, June 11.—O. P. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland who recently resigned dominating positions on directorates of several eastern railroads which he and associates control, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to approve his election to the board of directors of the Denver and Rio Grande Western.

The Denver line is one of several systems affiliated with the Missouri Pacific control of which has recently been acquired by the Van Sweringens. Several other Van Sweringen nominees at the same time asked the commission's permission to go on the board of the Denver.

Contracts Awarded Increase in Week

North American to Get Berliner Joyce

BALTIMORE, June 11.—Directors of the Berliner Joyce Aircraft Corporation have approved an offer from North American Aviation, Inc., to acquire the Berliner Joyce company.

The plans call for formation of a new company and the exchange of Berliner Joyce Class A stock share-for-share for Class A stock of the new company, in addition to which an option will be granted to holders of this stock to convert each two shares owned into one share of North American.

Northerns Will Not Release Burlington

ST. PAUL, June 11.—Congressman M. J. Mass, of this city, stated today that Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway, and Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, told him in Washington recently that in no circumstances would the two northern lines completely divorce the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad in order to effect the proposed merger.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 11. Influenced by moderate speculative selling and a scarcity of buyers, wheat values averaged lower early today, varying sufficiently to make it worth while for traders to take profits on the recent upturn. Bearish factors were placed on the United States government crop report, and the market effect of the report appeared to be slight. Opening ½c to 1¼c off, wheat afterward rallied somewhat, but then sagged again. Corn, oats and provisions also were easy with corn starting ½c lower to a shade advance and subsequently holding near to the initial range.

At noon wheat was 1⅞c to 1⅞c net lower and corn ⅛@⅜c lower.

Prospects of showers in Canada affording some relief from persistent moisture deficit that has been handicapping the spring wheat crop led to pronounced downturns at times in Chicago wheat prices today. Besides good rains were reported in places from this side of the Canadian boundary and field experts reported that much domestic spring wheat showed good stand and color with the plants well stooled and sufficient moisture for the present.

Absence of any adequate buying support in the wheat market during much of the day was revealed when speculative sellers put a little pressure on the market. An incentive to sell wheat was found in the fact that the twin breadstuff, rye, had dropped today to a new low price record for the season as a result of stop loss selling on the part of holders. July delivery of rye sold at about 21c a bushel lower than July corn.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 11. Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged early today. Nearby duty free were available at last paid prices of 3.27c with Cuban held at the same level for prompt shipment, but offered at concessions of 1.32c for later shipment or at 3.24c. The only sale confirmed was 28,000 bags of Cuban made late yesterday for June 17 arrival at 3.24c.

No changes were reported in refined prices with all refiners listing at 4.50c, but a little better demand was reported.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 11. Selling pressure was again directed against the curb stocks today, eliminating gains made on yesterday's technical recovery. Opening prices were slightly higher but the heats resulted operations after the first half hour. Trading was much less active than in recent sessions, however, and the market had no difficulty in keeping even with the market.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded in, 000 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.

TRADE HINGING ON SEASONAL FACTORS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 11—A Year has elapsed since the late era of prosperity reached its peak.

How far has the country gone toward exploiting an over-exploited and over-estimated business situation in a year of readjustment? Of course the turn downward last autumn was at first so moderate that it was sensed only by the sensitive readers of business barometers. With the stock market panic in late October and early November general business slumped more dramatically toward the close of the year. Such changes as have taken place since the December low point in business have depended mainly on seasonal factors which have been helpful to employment.

In its recent exaggerated bluerness, Wall street has been seeking to make up its mind whether the present situation is merely a normal setback in the business cycle, or whether it is a prolonged economic depression such as followed the Napoleonic and Civil wars. Conditions have changed so radically since those earlier wars that they constitute no reliable historical analogies. The widespread development of new products, resulting from advances in the laboratory give business a new urge and a new stimulant.

HOOVER SEES RECOVERY

President Hoover who is a close student of the country's economic annals, has been of the opinion that the present situation paralleled the setback in 1907-08 which lasted about 18 months. This does not mean that he believes that six months more will be required this time before business is out of the woods. For the President has told visitors that he sees evidence that business has been recovering much more rapidly in this cycle.

The present recession phase is running true to form. Pessimism frequently reached a climax at the darkness which comes before the dawn. The majority are always victims of the prevailing collective psychology, but the astute minority lay the basis for family fortunes during interludes of temporary lack of general faith in the economic grandeur of America.

A graduate student in economics, who is trying to apply theory to practice, writes in to ask whether this is not the time to begin thinking of making long term cash investments in high grade common stocks. The answer is that to buy only common stocks would be to speculate, however wise the speculation might prove to be. The true investor, who is seeking to conserve capital and to buy assured income, is best served by a balanced investment diet, consisting of cash reserves, short and long term bonds, high grade preferred stocks and a diversified list of common shares of the strongest companies.

BANK LOANS RISE

One complicating phase of the financial scene is the rising proportion of loans on stocks and bonds by ordinary banks as compared with unsecured commercial loans. If present tendencies persist until midsummer, reporting member banks for the first time will show more collateral loans than commercial loans. Of course, the sharp rise in collateral loans since the beginning of the year has been accelerated by the shifting of loans by bootleg lenders, who were attracted to Wall street in previous years of high interest rates on brokers' loans, back to the banks, now that interest rates are subnormally low.

Although the total volume of brokers' loans is far from alarming, the new composition of the loan portfolios of representative banks raises interesting new problems in finance. To an increasing extent, banks, if you add to collateral loans the investments which banks themselves make, have become investment institutions, rather than agencies for financing the short term operations of business men. This exaggerated new use of bank credit is a phase of the post-war tendency of the great banks to get away from their own specialized traditions and to become instead great department stores of finance.

Close students of banking recognize that the new use of bank credit entails some loss of liquidity, for these collateral loans, unlike commercial loans, are not intended for self-liquidating operations. Theoretically, collateral loans are immediately convertible into cash, and to a certain extent this liquidity is true in fact. It is true for single institutions, who can induce borrowers to shift loans from one bank to another, but obviously it would be impossible for banks as a whole to liquidate or cut down such collateral loans except in so far as the people of the country generate new capital out of savings.

Associated Gas Sets Sales Mark

To hundred and thirty carloads of refrigerators, the largest number ever sold to date in a single campaign by any public utility system in the United States, were recently sold by the Associated Gas and Electric System. During a six weeks' campaign, which ended May 31, 13,700 refrigerators, valued at $3,500,000, were sold to customers by 17,000 associated employes. This is almost as many as were sold last year, and more than were sold in the entire United States during 1922. It is estimated that dealers in the territory served sold an additional 4,000 during the campaign period.

That Corn Products directors contemplate declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents.

That United Corporation is not planning any new financing until fall, despite recent rumors to the contrary.

That announcements of vacation shutdowns in several of the motor factories have discouraged market operations in the motor shares.

That most of the larger market operators look for another period of dull markets, after the readjustments necessitated by the recent flurry are completed during the next day or two.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Doubling for Dora

Financial matters were at a low ebb in the Knowlton home.

Martha, eldest of three daughters, home from the rather expensive finishing school, had a talk with her father and made him admit how things stood.

There was a year and a half ahead before this finishing school was to properly "finish" Martha. She did some figuring and showed her father the results.

"I'll leave the school," she announced, and I'll go to New York. Ollie Stacey's father owns a big share of a big store. Ollie is no shoo, but just a wonderful girl. We are chums. She will get me work in the store. I will be self-supporting and all that money you would have to pay for me at the school will tide you over beautifully."

Naturally Martha's mother protested. But her mother knew that when Martha decided, protestations were useless. Her father was frankly grateful and mighty proud of her.

That explains why the educated and refined Martha Knowlton disappeared from her suburban home and found work in the interior decorations department of the big store.

Perfect Double

He was thinking that she would have a limited vocabulary and a Canarsie accent, but that he could use her to double in stunts while Dora Dawne did the speaking close-ups.

"How would you like to go in pictures?" was the way Chris Goulding approached Martha. It was customary for girls to go into raptures whenever he said this to them.

Chris Goulding flushed instantly. He had made a mistake—the girl wasn't the type he had expected.

"Was there something you wished to buy?" Martha asked before Goulding could stammer an explanation.

"I came to see about some decorations. I thought for a moment that you were Dora Dawne. I am directing her in her next picture," and he handed her his card.

"You want me to double for her?"

"How did you guess that, Miss ——?"

Martha didn't supply the name just then.

"I know that she resembles me considerably," Martha said. Goulding chuckled. He liked the way she put that—making the famous star resemble her, rather than saying that she looked like the noted Dora Dawne.

"I know that I have had no experience in pictures, and since you direct the Miss Dawne, your only object would be to use me for a double."

"Right." He marveled at this.

"I like this work here, Mr. Goulding, and doubling for some star doesn't appeal to me as having any future. I suppose I am to fall off cliffs, make parachute leaps and be blown up at sea."

"Not exactly. You see Miss Dawne doesn't ride, she doesn't swim, she cannot drive a car nor play any of the outdoor games."

"I do all of those, but I prefer to remain here," Martha said, politely.

Goulding looked over some decorative effects and gave what was much like a wholesale order for certain materials.

Takes Job

"There would be no publicity for you, naturally," he said, then going back to the subject, "However, there are several pictures we want to make that will be impossible without a double for Miss Dawne," and then he named a figure. Martha eyed him suspiciously.

"How long a contract?"

"Two years, at least."

Martha figured rapidly. Her expenses paid out, and the amount in two years would be much more than she could possibly get in the store in a dozen years.

So Martha Knowlton went to the coast. She wasn't thrilled over anything except the, to her, big salary. She could send money home and help the kid sisters through school, she could study her interior decorating out there and come back at the end of the two years with a most substantial sum of money.

Dora Dawne was not at all pleased when told about the double. She insisted that Goulding bring the girl for her inspection. Miss Dawne looked Martha over rather disdainfully.

"I suppose she will do for very long shots," Miss Dawne commented, "but no near shots—everyone would see the difference. And for heaven's sake keep it quiet. I'm not supposed to — er — associate with her, am I?"

This was said before Martha, who smiled brightly at the spoiled screen beauty.

"I should certainly object to that," Martha said.

Chris Goulding made a mistake then. He laughed loudly and Dora shot him a hateful glance.

Dora Dawne became furious.

"On second thought," she said, trying to be haughty, "I shall do without a double. There is nothing on my contract that makes it necessary."

"Take a third thought, Dora," Goulding said sharply, "about the contract. There's nothing in it to prevent me from not doing the story you want, 'Foothills,' or from putting some other star in it."

What a terrible way to joke with your little Dora Chris," she murmured. And then: "I really don't mind having a double—so many of the really big stars have them."

And, of all things, she fell in love!

Falls in Love

To make it more absurd, the object of her affections was an unimportant chap who played minor parts, usually the society heavy who was known as Vance Pritchard.

Martha, being thoroughly honest with herself, admitted that she was very much in love with young Mr. Pritchard, but she admitted this only to herself and did not intend that Mr. Pritchard nor any other person would ever know about this.

He rode extremely well. The action of the story called for Pritchard, as society heavy, to ride up a steep trail in the mountains after the heroine, catch her in a cabin and threaten to remain through the night.

Dora Dawne did the cabin scenes, but in the long shots it was Martha who appeared. Martha who had the cliff-edge struggle with the society "villain," who leaped from a cabin window to a tree and thence to her horse.

Pritchard told her that she rode extremely well. They had a number of pleasant conversations. He was a clever villain on the screen and a delightful and thorough gentleman otherwise.

At the studio, where there was a big "exterior," which was really an interior, Martha climbed out on a balcony and dived into the pool in evening dress, in accordance with the demands of the story. Pritchard was supposed to be chasing her and to follow suit—all very entertaining. While they were having their "fight" Dora Dawne yelped a great protest—they were taking some close-ups on her double.

After this Dora Dawne went out of her way to be disagreeable to Martha and to make a lot of insulting remarks because Martha and Mr. Pritchard seemed so friendly.

"You are a great girl, Miss Knowlton. You have more brains than Miss Dawne and all her ancestors ever had, and you are far more beautiful!"

"I like to hear you say it, even if it is such a silly thing to say," Martha answered.

Happy Ending

Dora Dawne's publicity man arranged for a good stunt. Young Lord Sythington was coming over from London. He owned an interest in a British picture concern. Coulter, the publicity man, had some sort of a pull, he announced to Director Goulding, and young Lord Sythington's first public appearance on the Coast would be at a reception Dora Dawne would give in his honor.

The picture had been finished. Martha was already interesting herself in the script for the next picture. She even got up courage to ask Director Goulding if there wouldn't be a part in it for Mr. Pritchard.

"If he wants it," Goulding told her.

Martha tried to get in touch with him, but he had gone from the modest little side-street hotel where he had been living, and had left no address.

Dora Dawne was all ready for the big reception. Young Lord Sythington would be on from the East—he would be her guest—it meant front page publicity for her—perhaps she could marry him—so many of the stars were marrying titles these days.

This was the time when Vance Pritchard telephoned Martha. She was overjoyed. He came over that very afternoon. They had a long talk—a most satisfactory talk.

Coulter, Dora's publicity man, dashed in to see her that evening.

"Reception's off," he said.

Dora wouldn't believe it and called him an assortment of not very choice things.

"This New York guy fell down on me. Had no right to promise he could arrange for Lord Sythington to come on and have you publicly entertain him and introduce him to Hollywood," Coulter explained.

"Make him come on—you've got to!"

"Not very well. He's been here for ten months—he worked in your picture, using his private name of Vance Pritchard."

"Well, for goodness sake, I can handle him, then!" Dora cried.

"Not very well. He's marrying that girl tonight, Miss Dawne."

"What girl?"

"That girl who was doubling for you!"

Musmanno Is Again Out To Change Old Blue Law

Representative M. A. Musmanno, whose effort to remedy the repressive unfairness of the Blue Law was smothered in committee in the last session of the General Assembly, has announced that he will introduce another measure having that purpose in the next Legislature. Mr. Musmanno will be re-elected and in a position to do that if one judges his chances from the enormous vote by which he was renominated in the recent primary.

In the next legislative session he should not have such a difficult time in his attempt to provide relief from the unjustly restrictive law of 1794. Mr. Musmanno had vision enough to see that the law was objectionable because it is out of date and not at all in line with modern needs. Other legislators, lacking that vision, gave him no support.

But vision is not needed now—only ears. The people themselves have spoken in Philadelphia. Many of them have spoken in Allegheny County. The Philadelphia Record newspaper ballot in the state's most populous county was heavily on the side of doing away with the tyranny of the Blue Law. A similar ballot, being conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in Allegheny County, shows a like result in Pittsburgh and all other districts from which there has been response.

Legislators of Philadelphia County know what the citizens of that county demand. Legislators from Pittsburgh also know what this city wants. Soon they will know how the entire county stands. It is strongly indicated that sentiment will be a message from the people to their representatives to stand by Musmanno, or some other legislator if he shall sponsor a better bill.

Cheer Our Graduates As They Face the World

This is commencement week for graduates of four of Pittsburgh's higher institutions of learning. Those of Pennsylvania College for Women and Duquesne University received their diplomas Monday. Yesterday the exercises that mark completion of school duties for students of Carnegie Institute of Technology were held. Today is sheepskin day for the University of Pittsburgh.

These are important days for these young people. They should be inspiring days for the rest of us. They are on the threshold of life's activities, with the vigor of youth and dreams of ambition. We are in life's stream, our schooldays behind us, our zest for its problems perhaps a little dulled. They have ideals—we have experience. We hesitate in our caution while they will display the impetuosity of youthful courage. In all that they possess they should be a stimulation to us, making these commencement days for all of us.

We are proud of these young people. Their achievement in fulfilling requirements that are preliminary to receiving degrees is a real achievement. In the classrooms they have acquired knowledge in advance of our own and the effect of this will be felt eventually in the processes of daily existence. It is in our youth that we progress, hence we hail the influx of young life into our activities.

We are proud of the institutions of which they are a product. They hold high places among the schools of the land. Their graduates in technical lines are eagerly sought for membership in the industrial army. The professions are strengthened by those who leave the schools to take up medicine and law. Among the graduates possibly is a great statesman, jurist, healer or industrial leader of the future. Or, perhaps, destiny may hold for none of them a high position in the vast world, but it has equipped them to be as conspicuous as they will in the world they choose to make their own.

Pittsburgh Shippers Get Temporary Victory

Postponement of the date for the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on its order abolishing circuitous rail routes used by Pittsburgh manufacturers represents only a temporary victory for shippers in this district. It will have no bearing on the final disposition of the case.

June 17 was set as the original date for the presentation of evidence by local industries on their charges that the discontinuance of the routes would retard Pittsburgh's industrial development by reducing the speed of shipments of freight in this district. The order of the commission, if placed into force, will eliminate four of the principal routes to eastern points.

Shippers were given a period of six months from May 20 in which to protest the changes before the new rules become effective. The postponement practically assures that the old routes will continue in use for the full length of this period.

'Sheer Brazen Impudence' On Part of Senator Jones

What Is It On the Part of President Hoover?

The following editorial was printed in the Seattle Star under the heading "Brazen Impudence":

ED BENN, United States marshal, brings about investigation that leads to indictment, on conspiracy charges, of

BILL WHITNEY, assistant prohibition administrator and federal czar in the Northwest, who has sought to get Benn's job and replace him with

CHARLES E. ALLEN, former employe of Whitney in the Young Men's Republican Club, but realizing the strangle hold that Whitney is trying to get on federal affairs here, the REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION repudiates Whitney and passes a resolution indorsing Benn and asking that he be kept in office. Two days after this is done Whitney and other highups in federal circles are indicted on conspiracy charges, but

SENATOR WESLEY JONES, under whose patronage Whitney has built himself into a power, announces he will fight for them and persuades

PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER to send to the Senate for confirmation the name of Allen to supplant Benn as marshal immediately. If the PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON will analyze this picture—of a United States Senator deliberately defying the expressed will of the people of this state and replacing in an important office a man who has brought about indictments against several officials with a man recommended by one of those indicted officials, they cannot help but believe this is SHEER BRAZEN IMPUDENCE on the part of Senator Wesley Jones and tell him so.

The resolution indorsing Benn and asking that he be kept in office was passed by the Washington Republican state convention at Bellingham May 24 without a dissenting vote.

The Vanishing America

Cities are getting so big that all orchards will soon consist of telegraph poles and lamposts.

And all waving fields will be traffic cops' hands.

Towns are increasing by leaps and bounds. There are 14,000,000 people in the metropolitan area of New York, half of whom do not know how to knit a sweater.

"Bugs" Baer

What's happening to the country while the cities are putting on fat around the waist line? That's the stinger in the spelling bee.

The country is shrinking like flannel in the tub. It's getting so narrow that the cows have to stand sideways between two office buildings.

The farmer is in a big town college taking engineering lessons so he can run a tractor.

The hens are working on forced production. Electric lights are blazing in the henneries all night long and the poor clucks think it is daylight and start laying eggs.

A hen never lays an egg in the dark. And we never ate one in the dark. Both procedures are dangerous.

It may be all right for the cold storage plants which accumulate all the barnyard pearls. But it teaches the hen bad hours.

They milk cows by machinery. Babies have to drink their milk out of oil cans.

There are no more hicks, weed benders or clover kickers left. Even the apple knockers are disappearing along with the hay grabbers.

Everybody wants to live in town now in order to be near the movies and also to get a stem-winding hold on the community chest.

The farmer is right. Why should he wait for the Senate to help him and grow whiskers for the owls to snap at? In town he has a bath tub, elevator service and hot and cold water.

In the country all he gets are blisters, sleet, snow and catalogs. We know that all our great presidents were born in farmhouses. But the minute they got into that government palace on Pennsylvania avenue they showed great reluctance about returning to the scenes of their boyhood triumphs over berry patches and horned toads.

HEINRICH HERTZ

By Archibald Henderson

Three great names stand out conspicuously as pioneers in the modern theory of electro-magnetism: Faraday, Maxwell and Hertz. Faraday originated the conception of the "field" and lines of force. Maxwell mastered Faraday's "Experimental Researches on Electricity," and developed the mathematical machinery for the field theory of electricity and magnetism. Hertz furnished the verification, in the laboratory, of Maxwell's beautiful and complicated theories.

Hertz's momentous achievement will preserve his name as one of the immortals in the history of science, in founding the modern experimental physics. Hertz verified the intuitive genius of Maxwell, and opened up the greatest era in the history of the application of science to practical life.

Heinrich Rudolph Hertz was born at Hamburg, Germany, February 22, 1857. After finishing his studies in the schools of his native city, he went to Munich at the age of 20 with the idea of entering the profession of engineering. Because of his consuming interest in physical theories rather than in their practical application, after a year he abandoned the idea of becoming an engineer; and resolved to devote his life to the study of physical science.

By way of preparation for this work, he concentrated his energies upon mastering the contents of some of the greatest works of science, notably the treatises of LaPlace and Lagrange. When he entered the University of Berlin in October, 1878, he was already a marked man—for his knowledge of both theoretical and practical physics. The original researches, in which he showed brilliance and skill, soon brought him to the attention of the famous Helmholtz, whose favorite pupil he became. During the years 1880 to 1883, while he was assistant to Helmholtz, he successfully prosecuted various difficult researches in physical science.

The year 1883 marks the beginning of Hertz's practical interest in Maxwell's electro-magnetic theory, in which the existence of electric waves was assumed and their lengths were calculated. Maxwell's theories had not been accepted by his scientific colleagues at Cambridge; and no one had succeeded in practically demonstrating the existence of free electric waves undulating in the ether. Maxwell had shown, according to his own satisfaction, that if a conductor is electrically charged or discharged with sufficient suddenness, it must emit electrical waves into the ether, because the charge given to it will not settle down instantly but will surge to and fro for some time.

It was these surgings or oscillations which were believed to give rise to waves in the ether. Maxwell and his disciples calculated that these waves would do many strange things; their velocity was calculated in various media; and formulas were found for computing their length, from one foot to a thousand miles.

Unfortunately, all these were paper results. No one had yet demonstrated, experimentally, these complicated theories. No one had created an electrical wave of any length, so far as was known, which would do the "stunts" predicted by Maxwell. Hertz seriously set himself to the task of supplying the verification of Maxwell's ingenious and complicated theories.

Between 1885 and 1889, Hertz succeeded in producing electrical oscillations by taking advantage of the electric discharge discovered by Henry. The waves produced by his apparatus were only a few meters long. He detected the existence of these waves by means of a resonator consisting of a piece of wire, with polished brass balls on its ends, bent into the form of a circular loop so as to leave a small gap between the knobs.

Hertz thus proved that the oscillating discharge would produce electro-magnetic waves, precisely as Maxwell had predicted, and that these waves had many, if not all, of the properties of light waves. The velocity of these waves was subsequently computed, and found to be identical with the velocity of light. Although Hertz never regarded his discovery as of much practical importance, he gave the world, on the basis of Maxwell's theoretical discoveries, a new world of electric power symbolized in wireless telegraphy and radio.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I have a sweet walled garden. It is very quiet in my little garden, inside the rose-covered walls, beneath the cool, blue veils of the great gum trees. Quiet and fragrant and filled with peace. Nothing happens there. Nothing hurts. Sitting in my garden, I can forget all the ugly conflict that rages outside. I can drug myself with beauty and comfort and peace.

There is only one ugly thing in my garden—the great slugs that hide in the wall and creep beneath the shadow of the leaves. Nasty yellow fellows—soft as custard. A pinch of salt dissolves them. They cannot stand salt. There is no toughness in their pampered fiber.

I love that little garden. The memory of it is never absent from my heart. Always I am longing for its sweetness and peace. And yet—I never stay there long. For I am afraid of it! I am afraid of that sweetness and peace, that comfort and safety. I am more afraid of it than I am of anything else in life.

Something happens to me when I stay too long in that garden when I shut myself away from ugliness and conflict and live within those walls. The hardness goes out of me—and curiosity and love of adventure—and courage. I grow comfortable and complacent. I begin to think that I, too, am apart from other people, as my garden is apart from dusty, beaten earth. Different from other people—more sensitive. I forget that I am nothing but a common cabbage at heart. I begin to treat myself as though I were an orchid—or at least an Easter lily.

And I grow timid and lazy. Naturally I'm built for battle and plenty of it. But, drowsing in my garden, I shrink from conflict. I don't want to be bothered or bewildered, criticized or challenged. I just want to sit there and write lovely words—far, far from all dirt and distress.

In short, I become exactly like one of my spineless slugs. Soft as custard. Unable to face life. At a touch of reality I shrivel, as a slug shrivels and dissolves at a touch of salt.

That is why I do not stay very long in my garden. I am afraid of its peace. So I go away—although all my lazy, cowardly, self-indulgent nature rebels at going away. I go away and seek a dangerous and difficult life—a rough, unwalled life where I must toughen myself against reality. I go away to keep from being a slug.

And always, wherever I go, I see slugs—as a terrible warning. Human slugs oozing around hotel lobbies—lolling in theater and limousine seats. Fat, soft, complacent, comfortable human slugs who can't stand a touch of reality—who shrivel and dissolve under the salt of reality.

If God's listening, I hope He hears this prayer: "Give me all that's coming to me, God. Make things as hard as I deserve, and I deserve them plenty hard. Make me poor and despised and desperate—if that's part of the program. But don't, I pray, make things easy and comfortable. Deliver me from contentment! Keep me from being a slug!"

Text For Today

Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it: thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water: thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it. Thou waterest the ridges thereof abundantly: thou settlest the furrows thereof: thou makest it soft with showers: thou blessest the springing thereof.—Psalms, LVX: 9, 10.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Sec. 3. Fertilization.

We turn now to the next stage in the reproductive rhythm—the conjugation of sperm with ovum. What exactly happens when the gametes unite to form a zygote?

Let us study the process in the sea-urchin, because there it can be watched — even cinematographed—without any difficulty. The stages of the microscopic drama are the same in higher animals and in ourselves.

H. G. Wells

We take a number of urchins during the breeding season, open their shells one by one, and separate them into male and female. From a female we take out a number of eggs into a flat dish and let them settle to the bottom as a sparse single layer of just-visible grains of life.

Then we take a single drop of fluid from a male's testis, shake it up in a test-tube of sea-water and add about half a dozen drops of this to the dish with the eggs. In these few drops there will be ample sperms to ensure that every egg is found and fertilized. We peer into the dish with a microscope.

We see the egg-cells, now appearing as gigantic grey spheres, and the tiny tadpole-shaped sperms fussing about among them. The sperms are attracted by the eggs and run their heads against them. As soon as an egg is touched by a sperm it protrudes a little cone of protoplasm and sucks it in.

Immediately afterwards a transparent membrane appears round the egg a defensive shell, which prevents other sperms from approaching. The egg has got all it needs.

Only the head of the sperm-cell enters the egg. The tail is left curling outside, to die very shortly. The tail was simply a device for getting the head to the egg-cell, and now its part is played.

When the head is sucked into the egg it undergoes an important change. It swells up like one of those Japanese toy flowers that expand when they are dropped in a glass of water, and it reveals itself as a nucleus, which has hitherto been very tightly packed and compressed to facilitate its journey.

Slowly it creeps toward the other nucleous, which belongs to the female cell. The two come together in the middle of the cell and unite completely to form one.

Henceforward the fertilized egg and every cell in the individual into which it develops—urchin or man, for the same is true of ourselves—has a compound nucleus, derived half from the original egg cell and thus from the mother, and half via the sperm, from the father.

The egg, which was haploid, has become diploid and continues to divide into diploid cells.

Now we can see the reason for the reduction division, which occurs when the sperms or egg cells are being prepared for their adventure.

If each of the gametes had the full number of chromosomes, then the zygote (and therefore the next generation) would have double the number, the generation after that would have double again, and so on. Which would be absurd.

So each of the gametes is reduced to half its normal outfit, and thus the constancy of chromosome number is preserved.

SEC. 4. WHAT THE CHROMOSOMES ARE FOR.

We have seen that in every kind of animal and plant, wherever sexual reproduction exists, the nuclei of the cells contain sets of chromosomes.

The actual constitution of the set varies from species to species. Some creatures are provided with many chromosomes and some with few, some with small and some with large (there are round-worms, for example, which have only two in each nucleus, while some crawfishes have over 200.

Moreover, when they escape from the nucleus and collect on the spindle, the chromosomes may have characteristic shapes—they may be straight or curved, stout or slender—and in these details also there is variation even from species to species.

Each kind of living thing has its chafacteristic chromosome outfit, and takes the most minute and elaborate precautions to preserve the constancy of that outfit at every cell-division.

Looking more closely into the matter we find that every cell of the zygote stage (with certain exceptions to be noted in the next section) has a double set of these precious chromosomes.

In species whose chromosomes vary in shape it can be seen that the nuclei have each of the kinds in duplicates. In the fruit-fly (drosophila melangoaster) for example, each nucleus contains a pair of very little blobby chromosomes, two pairs of longer V-shaped chromosomes and a pair of stout straight rods.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 11.—Belle Livingston seems, temporarily at least, to have become the reigning queen of New York's night life, despite the recent prohibition raid on her establishment. She has been queening it in a salon along an exclusive strip of Park avenue, an Amazonian type and a citizeness of the world.

Born in a Kansas village, she began a life of adventure early and married, among others, an Italian count, a British army officer, and a railroad capitalist. She has roamed the seven seas in private yachts, invaded darkest Africa and endured the isolation of far-away outposts.

She has a hearty laugh and a tongue as sharp as Texas Guinan's. She can suddenly snap into a cold stare that brings rowdy drunks instantly to heel, and needs no retired pugilist to do her bouncing. Several years ago Miss Livingston wound up a hectic career in Paris—slightly deflowered.

She became a part of that American colony found relaxing in Harry's Bar, the Ritz cocktail room and other haunts where world wanderers "await the breaks." I remember seeing her now and then holding court among the self-exiled in Willis Morgan's pork chop palace back of Eiffel Tower.

Somehow she managed to get passage to America, and landed in New York with only a few dollars, but courage aplenty. She has not catered to the mob. Her salon is "lit'ry, very lit'ry." Scarcely anyone drops in until after midnight, and the real people do not arrive until around 3 a. m.

From stark poverty, Miss Livingston has not only become financially independent, but is on terms of easy intimacy with Park avenue's cafe society. Young debutantes on the loose hail her with huzzahs. A night out is incomplete without "dropping into Belle's."

She chants with a narrowed eye and lifted finger that her rendezvous is a place "where the best minds meet the best minds." Unless the crowd is strictly up to her standard she remains in her quarters. She has found, as so many others found, that snootiness often pays in the metropolis.

Broadway, so long over-romanticized, is losing much of its night glamour to resorts eastward. Its fickleness is reaping a just harvest. The Broadway of today seems interested chiefly in such figures as Arnold Rothstein and Legs Diamond. Its sentiment is maudlin, its tears crocodilian and its camaraderie as false as the paste of its jewels. No longer is it the street that whips the universe.

It was 42 years ago DeWolf Hopper first recited "Casey at the Bat" from the stage of Wallack's Theater. The poem had been clipped from a San Francisco newspaper and handed to the actor by the house manager. Today it is Hopper's trade mark and Nemesis. He has never since been able to appear in public without reciting the rather mediocre poem that he has made a classic. From stage, banquet board and over the radio he has delivered it thousands of times.

Frequently I wonder if any man can look so superbly trim and neat as those barefoot figures in pajama ads. I know I can't—not with my feet.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you give your friends a square deal—those you count your very best?

Don't you frequently treat them in a way you would not think of treating some of your acquaintances?

They know you so well and think of you so kindly that you dare do it.

Of course you don't put into so many words.

But when occasion comes to favor an acquaintance you want to cultivate you are very likely to put the acquaintance first if it comes to a choice between your real friends and what the new acquaintance has asked you to do.

You are pretty sure your best friend will forgive you and you know a refusal would lose you one you want to gain.

Would you be as generous if the tables were turned and you were slighted?

Your friends are not to be considered merely as conveniences.

They should not be expected to forgive you for setting them aside for those for whom you have expressed less friendship.

If your best friends do not come first when an important decision is to be made you have not the right sort of feeling for your friends.
